Boudreau, Lemon Lead Indians to 4-1 Victory

Tribe Evens Series With 8-Hit Hurling, Manager's Clutch Hitting, Fielding

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Oct. 7.—Bob Lemon, who turned to pitching for a living after being a career flop as a third baseman and outfielder, squared the World Series for the Cleveland Indians today.

By the score of 4-to-1, he deflated the Boston Braves and their 39,633 fans with a powerful lift from Manager Lou Boudreau. Lemon and Boudreau ganged up on the Braves, with arm and bat, respectively.

While Lemon held them tight in the grip of his eight-hit pitching that deserved a shutout victory, Boudreau belabored the Braves with two big hits off his own bat. The Cleveland manager was an inspiring figure all day.

Gordon's Fumble Leads to Run

When the Braves, with their eight hits, did make motions toward restoring themselves to the ball game, they felt the deadly touch of the Indians' double-play infield, and twice were wiped out in that manner.

The one run the Braves did get was not quite Lemon's fault. It spawned from a fumble by Joe Gordon. But after that first-inning lapse, Lemon pitched eight innings of frustration at what had been a jaunty Boston club.

And so Boudreau is taking his Indians back to Cleveland on an even keel for the third game tomorrow, when World Series attendance records will fall in the big stadium that seats 80,000.

Spahn Starts Strong

For three innings, Spahn appeared on his way to duplicating Sain's 1-0 victory of the opener, but then launched a two-run inning for Cleveland.

Spahn didn't last out the fifth, bequeathing a 3-1 deficit to Red Barrett, who was later relieved by another shop-worn right-hander, Nelson Potter.

Lemon had his fast ball buzzing all day against the Braves, save when he discombooberated them with a show of side-arm crossfire that wasn't fast, but effective. The tall Californian got the Braves out in order in only two innings, but never was there a sign of panic among the Indians.

The Braves were the jittery ball club today with their three errors. Only one of their misplays figured in the scoring, helping the Indians

Charge Due In Reuther Attack Today

Warrant to Name Former Minor UAW Official in Shotgun Assault

Pontiac, Mich., Oct. 7 (AP).—Police, trailing for months the shotgun-wielder who tried to assassinate Walter P. Reuther, today said a warrant will be asked Friday accusing a former minor official of the big CIO United Auto Workers.

He is Carl Bolton, 39, a former vice president of the UAW-CIO's Local 400 at the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor Co. Bolton was defeated for reelection nearly two years ago.

Reuther, red-headed president of the UAW-CIO, was shot down in his home the night of April 20. No motive for the attempt to kill him ever was established.

UAW-CIO headquarters said Bolton never was regarded as an active foe of Reuther in union politics.

Two 'John Does' Also

Prosecutor James N. McNally of Wayne County (Detroit) said he would go into Recorder's Court in Detroit Friday to ask a warrant. It will charge Bolton with assault with attempt to kill Reuther, he said.

Two unidentified persons, named only as "John Does," will be included in the warrant, the prosecutor said.

McNally gave credit for progress in the case to two Michigan State police officers. They are Lieut. Joseph Sheridan and Detective Sergt. James Van Landegend.

Michigan State police are not eligible to collect rewards, which total $117,800 in the Reuther case.

The prosecutor gave out details sparingly. He did not reveal what led up to today's conference with State police, Detroit officers, Wayne County law enforcement representatives and Oakland County authorities at Pontiac.

"Unanimous Opinion"

Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy, in charge of the Reuther case in Detroit, told newsmen:

"It was the unanimous opinion of the conference that the evidence justifies the warrant."

On September 4, Bolton was arrested in Hammond, Ind. He was accused of the burglary February 28 of a CIO cooperative store in Pontiac. He was brought back here, where he awaits circuit court arraignment on that charge.

Officers began questioning him in what appeared to be an extension of the burglary probe. Also questioned were John Miller of Highland Park and John Pantello, whose address was not listed. They were being held on a separate burglary count.

Reuther was shot in the kitchen of his home. He had just returned from a UAW-CIO executive board meeting and was standing in the kitchen having a late snack with his wife, Mae.

Denies Idea of Motive

Outside, witnesses told of hearing a car speed away a moment after the gun blast broke the quiet of the conservative northwestern Detroit neighborhood where Reuther lives.

Reuther told police at the time that he had no idea who shot him or the motive. He said it could have been "management, Communists or a screwball."

Bolton was questioned at that time among many others but later released.

Bolton was active in union affairs within the Ford Motor Co. for

Truman Sees World-Wide 'Tragedy' if Dewey Wins

U. S. Leadership For Peace Periled, His Theme Before Mill-Town Crowds

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 7.—President Truman tonight ripped into the Republican leadership as never before and said it will be a "tragedy" for the whole world if a reactionary government is elected in November.

"World peace comes ahead of everything else," he told an audience in the Lincoln High School auditorium here.

"But we can make our full contribution to peace only if we retain a strong and vigorous economy at home."

"To do that, we must fight for the great causes in which we so deeply believe—for equal treatment and equal opportunity for all of our people."

He never said election of a Republican Administration would endanger American leadership for peace but he plainly implied it when he said return of a reactionary government would be a "tragedy" at home and abroad.

Friendly Crowds Turn Out

"We cannot let that happen," he said. "It will not happen if America turns out in full force at the polls on election day. That is your sacred duty.

Truman had been plugging all afternoon for Archibald L. Alexander, Democratic nominee for the Senate. The Robert Treat Hotel, where Truman dined, turned out to be campaign headquarters for Alexander's opponent, State Treasurer Robert C. Hendrickson.

Police estimated the crowd outside the Mosque Theater at 10,000 and said more than 100,000 glimpsed the President in Newark. The small 4500 capacity hall was jammed and the crowd cheered, waved tiny American flags and yelled "attaboy, Harry." He told them he hoped for this kind of a turnout at the polls.

Hague Puts on Big Show

In Jersey City, former Mayor Frank Hague really put on a show for the President. The man who tried to ditch Mr. Truman before his nomination, and predicted he would lose New Jersey by 300,000 votes, atoned for it with a mass Jersey turnout, a spectacular fireworks display, and a reversal of his forecast.

Flowering rockets lighting the sky marked the President's passage down Hudson blvd. At Bergen and Montgomery sts. the fireworks turned into blazing portraits of the President. Crowds solidly filled Bergen st. for blocks on both sides of the procession.

Hague's "show" continued in the packed Lincoln High School auditorium, and Truman publicly forgave him.

"I want to thank my good friend, Frank Hague, who got this all up," he told the crowd. "This is something to write home about."

The President said he had been

Meat Drops 2 to 20 Cents A Pound Here

Biggest Break in Year Forces Prices Down On More Than 30 Items

By Walter T. Pulliam
Post Reporter

The biggest break in Greater Washington retail meat prices in more than a year yesterday forced prices down 2 to 20 cents a pound on more than 30 meat items.

One grocery chain here also announced an additional 2-cent drop in butter and lesser reductions on canned goods.

Steaks Down 20 Cents

Last Friday this chain sold sirloin at $1.05 and porterhouse and round at $1.09. In July, the same quality steaks were being offered at $1.15.

The price reductions varied considerably from store to store, but were reported by many independents as well as chains, a survey showed. The slashes in beef appeared to vary more widely than in pork.

One chain, it was found, had cut chuck roasts 10 cents a pound, center pork chops 14 cents and other beef and pork cuts 2 to 14 cents. This chain had brought its top steaks down from 99 to 93 cents. Another chain had cut its steaks 11 cents, pork loin 10 cents, rib pork chops 10 cents, whole ham 8 cents.

Comparative Prices

One chain, with approximately 200 stores in the District, Virginia and Maryland, handed out this comparative list of some meat prices, showing vividly the meat tumble since last weekend: Chuck roast, 73 cents last week, 69 cents this week; rib roast, 83 cents last week, 79 cents this week; center pork chops, 93 cents last week, 89 cents this week; end pork chops, 69 cents last week, 65 cents this week; pork loins, 75 cents last week, 73 cents this week; fresh picnic hams, 59 cents last week, 57 cents this week.

Another chain, with stores in the Washington area, announced it had cut loin pork chops from 79 to 65 cents a pound; center chops from 97 to 83 cents; rib pork chops, 77 to 65 cents; ground beef, 73 to 59 cents; chuck roast, 73 to 63 cents, and porterhouse and sirloin steaks, 99 to 93 cents.

The meat price tumble toward pocketbook level appeared to be Nation-wide, the Associated Press reported, although how permanent it will be was the $64 question. The Department of Agriculture

Area Draftees Will Go to Camp Pickett

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Oct. 7.—All draftees from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and other Middle Atlantic States will be sent to Camp Pickett, Va., for basic training, Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army Commander, said today.

Gerow made the announcement at a meeting with members of the Army's Civilian Advisory Committee on Personnel and Administration who visited Second Army Headquarters here.

Camp Pickett, a wartime built training area about 7 miles from Blackstone, Va., will receive its first drafted men next month. Closed after VJ-Day, it has just been reopened and the training cadre established.

Two Months Basic Training

Draftees and recruits will be trained by the Seventeenth Airborne Division, which will have a permanent strength of 800 officers and 3000 enlisted men, and take in a new group of 17,000 trainees every 8 to 10 weeks. The latter will be reassigned after their two months basic training to overseas forces, other combat or service units in this country or to schools.

No paratroop instruction will be given during basic training, officials said.

Camp Breckinridge and Fort Knox, both in Kentucky, also will serve as Second Army training areas, General Gerow said. Inductees from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia will go to Pickett, along with those from Maryland, Virginia and the District. Men from the Middle West will be assigned to Knox and Breckinridge.

First Definite Announcement

This announcement of the selection of the training centers was the first definite word of an Army decision on the point. Earlier, it had been indicated that inductees from this area would be assigned to a number of posts for their basic training.

General Gerow told the civilian committee that he had visited all of the training areas at least twice in recent weeks to determine if they are equipped to handle the inductees and recruits.

"We feel responsible for the young men taken in, not only to make them good soldiers, but to return them as better citizens," Gerow declared. "Things are not going to my satisfaction, but they are being improved.

"The trouble is a shortage of qualified instructors, especially noncoms. We're using the best noncoms we can get and replacing them with better men as they come in."

Food Complaints Numerous

Gerow said he talked to large numbers of men to find out what their "gripes" were. Homesickness and the fact that the food is not "seasoned like mother does" were the chief complaints, he said. The food is good, but some of the Army cooks are not as well trained as they might be, Gerow added.

McKellar Out For Truman Despite Crump

Tennessee Senator Declares It's Just a Difference of Opinion

By the United Press

Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee yesterday shattered one of the Nation's oldest political partnerships by breaking openly with his long-time friend and ally, Democratic Boss Ed Crump of Memphis.

The 79-year-old Democrat reiterated his intention of supporting President Truman only a few hours after Crump swung his own backing to the States' Rights Democrats.

McKellar denied that his stand meant a switch in his friendship and admiration for the head of the powerful Memphis political organization. He said Crump "is doing exactly what he thinks is right and I am trying to do exactly what I think is right and what is my duty under the circumstances."

"It is just a case of honest difference of opinion between us," he added.

McKellar, recalling that he announced his support for the Truman-Barkley ticket several weeks ago, repeated his belief that it is his "duty" to support the "regular ticket" because "of the many honors the party in the State has bestowed on me."

McKellar's stand, coming after overwhelming defeat of Crump's candidate in the Tennessee Democratic senatorial primary, was viewed as further loosening Crump's hold on Tennessee politics.

In the primary, Representative

The Berlin Story

Big 3 Ended Negotiations When the Russians Broke Every Promise of Stalin's

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

THE blockade had lasted 69 days when the four military governors met in Berlin on August 31.

The commanders were under orders from their governments to find "practical" ways of doing two things at the same time: (1) lifting the blockade, and (2) introducing Soviet zone currency into Berlin under four-power supervision.

The orders, approved by Stalin himself, were to get the job done in a week. But Marshal Sokolovsky, the Soviet commander, was in no hurry. He shrugged his shoulders when the Western generals reminded him of the one-week deadline.

He seemed to them to be interpreting the agreed orders as if the Moscow meetings with Stalin on August 2 and August 23 had never taken place.

He started by announcing that he would discuss lifting only a part of the blockade—namely, those restrictions imposed after June 18. Stalin had assured the Western envoys in Moscow that all restrictions would be removed.

The Soviet commander then argued that the proposed four-power commission to supervise the new currency would have no authority whatever over the operations of the Soviet-zone bank that printed and issued the money. Stalin had led the Western envoys to believe that the four-power commission would control the bank's operations, at least as far as Berlin was concerned.

Finally, Sokolovsky flabbergasted the Western generals by insisting on new Soviet restrictions on air traffic into Berlin. It sounded like a demand to stop the airlift before he would even discuss relaxing the land blockade.

* * * *

TO THE Western commanders and their governments, this was the final proof of Soviet bad faith. The alarm bells rang loudly in every Western capital. The Soviet reversal could only mean that the Soviet leaders no longer wanted an agreement.

These suspicions were deepened on September 6, when Soviet sector police smashed into an American office in the Berlin City Hall and kidnaped 19 Western sector-policemen—with the help of Soviet troops brandishing tommy-guns.

The Western commanders in Berlin asked for instructions from home after a week of wrangles with Sokolovsky. In Washington President Truman met with the National Security Council and decided to break off the negotiations, to tell the whole documented story to the world and to bring the case to the United Nations as a threat to the peace.

In London the cabinet voted to speed up recruiting, to delay demobilization, to improve civilian defense and to double the output of fighter planes. Already a powerful fleet of 90 American Superfortresses was assembled at wartime bases in England, ready for trouble.

The question now facing the Western governments was no longer whether to break off, but how. At first American officials thought the negotiations should be ended without further talk of any kind; the British and French persuaded them to make one last approach to Stalin before taking an irrevocable step.

The envoys in Moscow were told that Stalin was out of town and could not see them. They thereupon saw Molotov and handed him a stern memorandum asking whether the Soviet government would send a new set of instructions to Sokolovsky.

Molotov retorted that the military governors in Berlin should

St. Augustine, Fla., Oct. 7 (U.P.)—Forty-four pilot whales, believed motivated by a follow-the-leader instinct, beached themselves on Florida's east coast today and many were gasping their lives out tonight, flopping helplessly along 300 yards of beach.

Workmen managed to refloat three, but they turned blindly back to shore again.

Three were loaded into tank trucks alive and taken to Marineland Studios for exhibition.

Beachcombers planned to cut up another for steaks.

According to local belief, the pilot or caaing whales will follow the leader even to death. Fishermen have slaughtered herds of them by steering the leader into shallow water and letting the others follow, it is said.

The whales averaged from 16 to 24 feet in length and weighed 5000 to 6000 pounds.

More than 10,000 people flocked to the beach with hammers, saws and other instruments, pulling out teeth and even cutting open the carcasses looking for ambergris.

Bystanders swore that a three-year-old named Mittens Bacon stared into a whale's mouth and asked his nervous mother, "Ma, where's Jonah?"

J. M. Mitchell, D. C. Native, Named to Civil Service Post

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

James M. Mitchell, a 38-year-old native Washingtonian, yesterday was given a recess appointment by the President to the GOP vacancy on the Civil Service Commission.

His was one of eight major Civil Service appointments that were made yesterday. The seven others were named by the commission to the new Fair Employment Board which will operate within the commission to decide cases where discrimination because of race, color, religion, or national origin is charged.

Guy Moffett, a former Civil Service and White House personnel adviser, was called out of retirement to be chairman of the new commission board which was set up under a recent order by the President. He's 65 and he lives on a farm near Leesburg, Va.

Both the Mitchell and the Moffett appointments were tipped off in this column.

Members of the antidiscrimination agency are as follows:

DANIEL W. TRACY, a former Assistant Labor Secretary, who is now president of the AFL's Brotherhood of Electricians;

FRED C. CROXTON, an industrial relations authority, who formerly served as a Labor Department conciliator, a Social Security official, and in other Government agencies;

JESSE H. MITCHELL, a Negro, who is president of the Industrial Bank of Washington. A civic leader, he formerly was employed in the Navy Department;

ANNABEL MATTHEWS, the first woman member of the Federal Tax Court. She served for many years in the Internal Revenue Bureau;

DR. ETHEL C. DUNHAM, a former director of medical research in the United States Children's Bureau, and,

EUGENE KINCKLE JONES, another Negro, who is general secretary of the National Urban League. He is the only member who hasn't had prior Federal service.

On the Civil Service Commission, Mitchell will take over the seat vacated by Arthur S. Flemming who resigned to become president of Ohio Wesleyan University. He must be reappointed when Congress returns in January and be confirmed by the Senate if he's to retain the post. A Republican, he would stand a chance for reappointment even if Governor Dewey is elected President.

Mitchell received his education in the public schools here and he holds A.B. and M.A. degrees in personnel management from George Washington University. He started his personnel work while he was

Furnishing Staff Cars

Army to Shorten Draft-Exam Trip for 13 Hyattsville Boys

Thirteen Hyattsville (Md.) draft registrants scheduled for preinduction examinations today will not have to spend 2½ hours in traveling from Hyattsville to Silver Spring, Md., and back by the same zigzag route.

Originally, the Selective Service schedule called for a train trip to Washington, a two-hour wait at Union Station, and another train ride of 12 minutes to Silver Spring, where physical and mental examinations are held.

Yesterday Army recruiting station officers devised plans to send two staff cars to pick up the youths in Hyattsville, where they are due to report at the County Service Building at 7:30 a. m. They will return the same way.

While the Hyattsville registrants will thus have their travel time cut to about 20 minutes each way, those from the southern part of Prince Georges County still face a long, complicated three-stage bus trip from Upper Marlboro to Silver Spring, where most of them will have to stay overnight after their examinations.

Ten men registered with Board 56 in Upper Marlboro, scheduled to report on Monday, and nine with Board 57 in the same town, who are called for Wednesday examinations, would get home

RAF Blasts Helgoland

Live Russian Bombs Reported Dropped 12 Miles From Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Russians announced large-scale maneuvers in the Berlin air corridor today and the British reported the Russians dropped live bombs 12 miles northwest of Berlin.

British Royal Air Force bombers droned out from England tonight and dumped 17½ tons of live bombs on the North Sea island of Helgoland in the RAF's most realistic war exercises since spring. About 50 planes attacked Hitler's one-time U-boat base.

The Russians warned that they planned extensive gunnery and parachute jumping as well as formation flying in the Berlin area. United States air officials said the increasingly frequent Soviet warpings of air activity are intended to harass the Allied airlift.

The Americans made the usual protests to the Russians.

Actually there were only two reports of the Russians carrying out their activity. One American pilot said he nearly collided with one of three Russian transport planes as he approached for a landing in the British sector. A British pilot reported that he saw a Soviet bomber drop explosives in the Soviet zone near Berlin.

Asked what he thought about the Soviet tactics, Gen. Lucius D.

First Lady Escapes Injury When Car Decorations Burn

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 7 (U.P.)—Paper decorations on an automobile carrying Mrs. Harry S. Truman were set afire by fireworks along the President's campaign parade route in Jersey City tonight.

Mrs. Truman and two women riding in the car escaped any serious injury, although their clothes appeared to have been slightly scorched.

The fire occurred when an open car bearing Mrs. Truman, Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey and a local Democratic woman leader, drove beneath a fireworks display intended to resemble Niagara Falls.

Embers falling from the display set fire to paper serpentine with which the car was decorated.

Secret Service men quickly tore the blazing serpentine from the car, hurled it to the ground and stamped it out.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Guy Moffett Is the Rare Kind of Official Who Makes Red Tape and Makes Friends, Too

Uncle Sam just won't let Guy Moffett, retired public servant, retire in peace. For the third time, now, he's been called upon to give up the restful, rustic life of a Virginia farmer to take over a typically thankless Government job.

This time Guy will head the seven-man Fair Employment Practices Board of the Civil Service Commission, and as such direct the fight against job discrimination within the Federal service.

Eight years ago, at the age of 57, Guy Moffett achieved the point in life that so many Americans of the male species dream about as they approach the half-century milestone. He retired, bought himself 80 rolling acres outside of Leesburg, Va., and with his wife, devoted himself to the pursuit of happiness by raising pigs, beef, steers, chickens and corn.

The halcyon holiday was wonderful . . . and lasted exactly two months, when the White House sent out an SOS for Guy. Washington was booming with defense activities, and William H. McReynolds, President Roosevelt's administrative assistant, needed a personal trouble-shooter. And Guy was it—right through the war.

Back to the farm went eager Mr. Moffett, to retire for sure, and sure enough, within a matter of months he was pacifying personnel problems for the World Bank, again on an emergency basis.

So, when Guy Moffett retired for the third time in the winter of 1947, he really meant it this time . . . at least until President Truman asked him to pitch in again yesterday.

At 65, his brown hair graying, ruddy-complexioned and glowing with the healthy look of a stocky gentleman farmer, Guy Moffett goes to Washington once more.

Guy Moffett, descendant of Scotch pioneer settlers, was born at Freemansburg, W. Va. His father was a preacher. His mother died when Guy was 4, and he was sent to Kansas to be reared on his uncle's farm.

At 16, Guy joined the Army—he admittedly "fudged" on his age—and went off to the Philippines to battle the insurrectionists. He then returned to Kansas, finished high school, entered Kansas U., and then chucked further formal education by reenlisting for another three-year hitch in the Regulars.

He took a civil service exam and caught on as a Federal employe at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and first came to Washington in 1907 as a $52-a-month clerk.

It was in 1909 that Guy transferred to the Civil Service Commission, and for the next 20 years he moved progressively upward on the ladder of responsibility. His last and most important post with CSC was as the commission's representative on the Federal Classification Board, which decided the value and pay of each job.

Quiet, efficient, hard-driving, fair and firm in his decisions, Guy Moffett built on a stone-by-stone basis a solid reputation among public administrators in and out of the Government as an expert on personnel and procedures.

In 1929, Moffett left the Federal service to join the Spelman Fund for 12 years, first as an associate, later as an executive. The fund was set up by the Rockefellers to stimulate projects in the field of public administration.

The cheers and kudos are usually reserved for the men who cut red tape. Guy Moffett is that rare bird who helps make red tape and yet makes friends and influences people, too.

Dewey to Miss Truman's Visit

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—Governor Dewey left town today and will not be here when President Truman visits Albany Friday.

But before the Republican presidential nominee departed for his farm at Pawling he issued a statement wishing his opponent "a very warm welcome." Mr. Truman will give a train-side talk in this Democratic stronghold at 8:30 a. m. (EST) Friday.

Dewey will stay at his farm tonight, go to New York in the morning and return here Friday night. In New York he will take part in a ground-breaking ceremony starting a housing project to be named for the late Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Dewey is preparing a speech on his labor views for presentation in Pittsburgh Monday.

His appearance there will start his second trip of his campaign. The Governor's friends say he thinks the Pennsylvania steel center is a good place to air labor views.

Dewey asked today that State employes be given time off to hear President Truman speak.

Although J. Edward Conway, president of the State Civil Service Commission, had promised such privilege would be granted whenever a presidential candidate stopped here, the Governor addressed a specific request to Conway.

In so doing, he said:

"It is my hope that the President will receive a very warm welcome from the residents of the area when he visits the capital city of the State of New York.

Md. Dixiecrats To Make Final Ballot Try

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—The State's Rights Democrats will make their final plea for a space on the Maryland ballot tomorrow before the Court of Appeals.

Judge Joseph Sherbow turned them down yesterday in Baltimore Superior Court on grounds Maryland election laws specify petitions for nominations must be filed at least 15 days before the primary.

The State's Rights Party was not formed until after the Maryland primary.

If the appellate court rules against them, the State's Rights Democrats may engage in a campaign for "lick in" votes for Gov. J. Strom Thurmond and his running mate, Gov. Fielding Wright.

Attorney General Hall Hammond said he can see no objection to the party preparing gummed stickers containing a slate of eight electors for Thurmond and Wright.

The Gallup Poll

Latest Check Gives Dewey Popular Vote Edge in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 7.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today holds a marked popular vote advantage in all four States of the East North Central section—Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Including these four States, the Institute has now reported current presidential standings in 16 States in it first Nation-wide State-by-State roundup of political sentiment. Earlier this week the current picture in the 12 New England and Middle Atlantic States was presented.

Of the 16 States, Governor Dewey leads President Truman in all but Rhode Island. But the areas surveyed thus far are regions where Republican support is traditionally the strongest. The national survey will continue during the next week with reports on the West Central, Mountain and Pacific Coast States, concluding next Friday with the Southern section and a 48-State summary.

The Republican candidate's clean sweep of the East North Central section as of today contrasts with his record of 1944, when he took only two of the States, Ohio and Indiana.

Moreover, the margins by which Governor Dewey leads President Truman in the four States are substantially wider than the winning margins four years ago. Roosevelt's pluralities and Dewey's were very slim in each case.

Governor Dewey's margins this time are broad enough so that in none of the States is the Henry A. Wallace candidacy a decisive factor in the current standing of major party candidates. Mr. Wallace will not be on the ballot in Illinois under present State Supreme Court decisions.

With a month to go before election day this is the political scoreboard in the East North Central region:

"If the presidential election were being held today how would you vote—for Truman, for Dewey, or for Wallace?"

East North Central Section

State	Dewey	Truman	Wall.	Undec.
Illinois	49%	40%	*	11%
Michigan	52	41	4	3
Indiana	52	40	2	6
Ohio	51	42	3	4

Institute interviews in Illinois did not ask respondents whether they would vote for Mr. Wallace, since they will not have a chance to do so in November. Incidentally, this may account for some of the large difference between the undecided vote there and in the other three States.

Figures in today's survey are not final because the Institute is continuing to survey representative voters in these four States as well as in the rest of the Nation. Neither of the major party candidates has campaigned intensively in this region, although President Truman will stump Ohio, Illinois and Indiana next week. New reports based on polls now under way will be made before November 2.

Present evidence indicates, however, that political sentiment in the East North Central section has swung so heavily over to the Republican column that Governor Dewey may carry these States with larger pluralities than any candidate since Roosevelt in 1936.

The trend in the four States is shown in the following table, which gives the Republican percentage of the major party vote in the last three elections:

REPUBLICAN PERCENTAGE MAJOR PARTY VOTE

Illinois	40.8%	48.8%	48.3%
Indiana	42.5	50.7	52.9
Michigan	40.8	50.2	49.5
Ohio	39.2	47.8	50.2

Twelve States have previously been reported in this series of articles surveying political sentiment throughout the country, section by section. The first two sections were New England and the Middle Atlantic States, with the following results:

New England

	Dewey	Truman	Wall.	Undec.
Maine	56%	34%	3%	7%
N. Hamp.	54	36	3	7

Truman Sees Peril In Dewey Victory

welcomed in many cities here and abroad, but "this tops them all."

The President said he not only wanted to keep wages up but to increase them. He charged Republicans offered "breadlines instead of paylines."

Earlier, at Newark, he said there would be no American "Munich"—no appeasement of special interests in this country.

In reading his prepared speech, the President dropped the word "Munich."

At nearly every stop he called Republicans the party of 'reaction."

All day, in rear platform talks and motor tours he worked the Pennsylvania and New Jersey factory beat, playing to oversized crowds that raised a faintly flickering hope in some Democratic breasts.

In his open-armed appeal for labor's vote, he promised to take "advice" from labor leaders.

The workers turned out in numbers reminiscent of some Franklin Roosevelt used to draw. There the analogy ended. The crowds were friendly, respectful, but seldom yelled themselves hoarse.

To the men and women who man the steel and textile factories of the area Mr. Truman brought his one-man, "fire-fighting" campaign against the Taft-Hartley Act, high prices and short housing. He blamed them all on "that no-account" Eightieth Congress. He conjured up memories of the great depression and predicted it will "happen again" under a Republican Administration, and in Grundy territory, he slashed at "Grundyism."

See Return to Sweat Shop

Then in former boss Frank Hague's Jersey City territory tonight he pulled out all of the stops.

He called the GOP Eightieth Congress' record the "handwriting on the wall" and asked these questions.

"Do you want even stronger antilabor legislation than the Taft-Hartley law?

"Do you want a return to sweat-shop-wages in the United States?"

"Do you want your social security benefits endangered?"

"Do you want to play second fiddle to big business?"

And he answered each question with this refrain—"If you do, vote Republican."

Then he asked if they wanted a government that puts people ahead of property "and thinks the little folks have just as many rights as the big fellows?"

"People vs. Interests"

"If you do," he said, "vote Democratic."

Both in Jersey City, and earlier in Newark, he said there is only one issue in this campaign—"the people against the special interests."

He told the Newark audience Republican leaders could have solved the housing shortage last session. He said they had a choice between "the needs of the people and the greed of the lobby" and they sided with the real-estate lobby.

Mr. Truman began his day-long stump of the factory towns and blunt appeals for labor's vote in a rear-platform talk to a crowd of 10,000 at Bridgeport, Pa.

There a CIO worker handed him a bolt of brown suiting and asked him to have it made into a suit to wear at his inauguration. He promised not only to do that, but to have the suit made "by a union tailor."

Made Honorary Fireman

At Reading, Pa., he left the train and drove through a crowd of more than 30,000 to the center of Penn Square. There he was made an honorary member of Rainbow Fire Co. No. 1 and America's Club, oldest Democratic club in the country.

Mr. Truman said there wasn't even a voluntary fire department in the town when he grew up in Independence or "I certainly would have belonged to it." Then he promised to continue his "fire-fighting, whirl-wind campaign."

Some 12,000 turned out at Allentown, Pa., near Joseph R. Grundy's home town of Bristol, and in the same congressional district. Here he first hit at Grundy. He said the Republican Party believes in the "trickle down theory"—that some prosperity may trickle down to the little people.

"That is what Joe Grundy preaches," he said. "That is why he is such a power in the Republican Party—one of its pillars."

Truman charged Grundy "turned down" Senator Robert A. Taft, (R. Ohio) for the Republican nomination because he thought his housing bill was "socialistic."

"Taft came back to the Senate and voted against his own bill," he added.

At Bethlehem, Pa., where some 10,000 jammed the streets around the depot, Truman said he was told before he left Washington that Pennsylvanians weren't "interested" in seeing him. He said instead his crowds are getting "bigger and bigger."

He made another slashing attack on Republican "reactionaries" to a similar crowd at Easton, Pa., and then carried his campaign into New Jersey.

"Home-Front" Munich

Leaving his train at Elizabeth, N. J., he rode through jammed streets to the Elizabeth City Hall. Fireworks popped and parachutes bearing American flags drifted down on the parade. CIO-PAC placards dotted the crowd.

"The election isn't all over but the shouting," he told the thousands in front of the hall. "Republicans would like to have you believe that it is, but it isn't."

The parade continued into Newark and Jersey City and late at night Truman and his party rejoined the train at Weehawken, N. J.

McKellar Out For Truman

Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) defeated Crump's candidate, John A. Mitchell for the senatorial nomination. Kefauver is opposed by Carroll Reece, former Republican national chairman, in the general election.

Crump has taken no stand on the hotly contested Kefauver-Reece race, although Republicans say his support of the Thurmond-Wright Dixiecrat ticket will help the entire GOP slate in Tennessee.

But McKellar said he will support Kefauver and hopes he will win, although he predicted it may be a close race.

Truman Supporters Drop Louisiana Suit

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 7 (AP).—Louisiana supporters of President Truman today withdrew a suit seeking to require his designation as a Democrat on the State's Presidential ballot.

Strong Local Rule Favored by Warren

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Gov. Earl Warren of California, Republican Vice Presidential candidate, tonight condemned "the jealous watchful eye of a paternal Federal Government" which he said has weakened the authority of local and State governments.

Warren told an audience of 3500 at a GOP rally here that State and local administrations must be strengthened by allowing them to solve more of their own problems or they will "wither from disuses and eventually die."

The Nation must revive its faith in a government closer to the people, Warren said. He said it was time to "tone up local government" by encouraging it to take the initiative.

He promised that a Republican administration would improve the cooperation between Federal, State and local governments and counteract the "propaganda" that every program to improve their welfare "must be administered from Washington under the jealous watchful eye of paternal Federal Government."

"There is no magic in Washington," Warren said. "I do not believe that we can make real progress if we stand by in local and State governments with our eyes fixed only upon Washington, helplessly waiting for some specific high sounding solution to be pulled like a rabbit out of the hat of this or that expert in some governmental agency."

Barkley, in Montana, Urges Reelection of Sen. Murray

Lewistown, Mont., Oct. 7 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky today urged Montana voters to return James E. Murray (D.) to the U. S. Senate.

In his first Montana speech, the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee assailed the Republican farm power record. He said the farmers of America cannot rely on the GOP.

The Democratic Party, Barkley said, believes full development of the West with Federal aid will bring in new industries to the advantage of the entire Nation. Adequate soil conservation, reclamation, price supports and farm electrification programs are essential, he declared.

The Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress, Barkley said, tried to cripple the big farm programs developed by Democratic administrations "and there is no guarantee that they won't cut appropriations again if they are continued in power."

As indicative of Republican sentiment, Barkley said, the last Congress passed a "shoddy and makeshift farm bill cutting price support payments on farm products as low as 60 per cent of parity."

Wallace Marks 60th Birthday With Attack On Administration for Activities Outside U. S.

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 7 (AP)—Henry Wallace said tonight the Government is building Arctic air bases, dredging European harbors, and helping "unfortunate Arab chiefs" while Americans "suffer in squalor, waiting and waiting for adequate housing."

The candidate for President made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at a rally of his Progressive Party.

The speech was mostly about power—electric and atomic. He made the blast on housing in connection with the flood here last May which destroyed the Vanport City housing project.

Today on his sixtieth birthday Wallace carried his vote-seeking drive into the Pacific Northwest in his chartered plane. He didn't slacken the rapid pace of his speech-making schedule.

Concerning electric power—a hot subject in this region with its Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams—Wallace said the private power "monopoly" has decided this is the time to "wreck" public competition.

Wallace pledged himself anew to work for a power program "owned and operated by the people—for the people."

Concerning atomic power he said 95 per cent of our atomic energy program is devoted to making war weapons. He criticized "trigger-happy brass hats." Switching to the international control of atomic energy, he said the idea that the American formula is the only formula is "ridiculous."

He lumped the Democratic and Republican parties together and said they aren't just "opponents." They are "enemies," and "their real intention is to surrender this country—its resources and its people—our earnings and our children—to a chosen few who will march us either to slavery or to war—or both."

He said this "two-headed creature which calls itself the Republican and Democratic parties" can only be defeated by "the unified resistance of the American people." And "I say we shall defeat them."

Thurmond Urges U. S. Worker Slash

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 7.—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina tonight called for a one-third cut in the number of Federal employes.

The Dixiecrat presidential candidate attacking the centralization of Federal authority, declared: "We must abolish some of these commissions, departments and bureaus. We could reduce Federal employes by one-third and get just as much efficiency and save the U. S. Government millions of dollars."

Speech Heard by 1200

The economy plea was made to capacity crowd of more than 1200 persons including University of Virginia students and residents of Charlottesville, gathered in Cabell Hall at the university.

Sound Truck Out

The Governor hit a jackpot of enthusiasm when he arrived here this afternoon. One of the first things he saw and heard when he arrived at the Monticello Hotel was an improvised sound truck blaring out an advertisement for the night meeting. The truck was manned by two members of the States' Rights Democratic Club of the university. Cecil Kilpatrick, who lives at 4120 42d st nw. in Washington, publicity manager for the States Rights group in this area, and Bill Baylor, of Richmond.

Thurmond, accompanied by his pretty wife, Jean, 22, was greeted upon his arrival here by Colgate W. Darden, jr., president of the university and former Governor of Virginia.

The Thurmond party made an afternoon visit to Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, and to Ash Lawn, the home of James Monroe. President Darden showed them over the campus of the university which was founded by Jefferson.

Blasts Opponents

In his night speech, Governor Thurmond stepped from a prepared manuscript into a hard-hitting extemporaneous blast at his opponents.

Challenge to Truman

He said that if President Truman is sincere about the civil rights program he ought to have the courage to face another candidate in a debate on the program.

"If he doesn't have that courage he knows he's wrong and again he's not fit to be President.

"Harry Truman has never been elected President of the United States and he never will be," Thurmond predicted.

Turning to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, Governor Thurmond attacked the GOP candidate's sponsorship of the New York fair employment practices law and his support of the Federal civil rights program. He also charged that Dewey attempted to hold up equalization of freight rates for the South.

Then Governor Thurmond asked, "Now what about Henry Wallace?"

After a pause he added: "Let's just pass him by."

Thurmond announced plans to stay overnight at the home of President Darden, before moving on Friday to Richmond for two speeches there.

Earlier in the day he spoke spoke to some 400 students at Washington and Lee University in Lexington.

Arter the speech at Lexington, Governor Thurmond visited the campus chapel where Gen. Robert E. Lee is buried. The general was president of Washington and Lee from 1865 until his death there in 1870.

This was the second day of Governor Thurmond's swing through Virginia, where 11 electoral votes are at stake in the November election. Traveling with the Thurmonds were Virginia State Senator Frank Richeson of Richmond, campaign director for Dixiecrats in the State; J. O. Emmerich of McComb, Miss., publisher, and Frank Burton, jr., Virginia State chairman of the party.

During the morning ride from Roanoke to Lexington, the Governor rode in a Virginia State car, driven by Police Lieut. Charles W. Blue. On the afternoon ride, following lunch in Lexington, the Governor took over the back seat of a second car for a brief nap before reaching Charlottesville.

W. & L. Denies Suspending Classes for Thurmond Speech

Lexington, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Washington and Lee University officials said today there had been no suspension of classes for the appearance of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond on the campus.

This followed publication of an announcement in Ring Tum Phi, campus semiweekly newspaper, that classes for the 11:10 a. m. hour today would be suspended to permit students to attend a rally sponsored by a student States' Rights club.

A university spokesman said the administration simply had "offered the use of its facilities" for Governor Thurmond's address and the rally of the undergraduate States' Rights club.

"Without any authorization whatever from the university administration," the spokesman said, a representative of the campus States' Rights club gave the college newspaper mistaken information that classes would be suspended for the rally."

Stassen Urges 'No Retreat' in Soviet Dispute; Asks West Virginians to Back Sen. Revercomb

Weirton, W. Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, University of Pennsylvania president and former aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, today declared the United States should not retreat "one inch" in its dealings with Russia.

"It is time for the United States to face up to Russia," Stassen declared in an address at Weirton High School stadium. "We must not yield one inch."

Stassen called for a change in administration to assure a "clear, confident" American foreign policy as the best hope for world peace.

He also urged West Virginia Republicans to support U. S. Senator Chapman Revercomb in his campaign for reelection, despite the Senator's assailing of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's stand on the Displaced Persons Act.

Stassen was the first national GOP campaigner to mention publicly his support of Revercomb.

(Gov. Earl Warren of California, GOP Vice Presidential nominee, said in a news conference at Chicago today that he had specifically endorsed Revercomb during his recent visit to West Virginia, and "I speak for the party and for the platform.")

Wright Sees South Revealing Its Strength

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The South is proving itself "too strong to ever again be insulted, ignored or abused" in national politics, States' Rights Vice Presidential Candidate Fielding L. Wright said in an address prepared for delivery here tonight.

States' Rights Democrats of South Carolina, native State of their presidential candidate, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, gathered at a campaign-fund-raising dinner to hear the Mississippi Governor.

"Not in your lifetime nor in mine will we find national parties ever again snubbing the electoral votes that are behind the States' Rights Democratic campaign," Wright declared.

"We have created a bloc of votes dedicated to the preservation of States' rights and local self-government."

Satira Occupies Cell Last Night in Cuba

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, American dancer convicted of slaying her married lover, is spending her last night in Cuba in the same jail cell from which she was formally released today by a full presidential pardon.

Friends said it had been decided that "it would be much better if she was not seen around town." Tomorrow morning Satira and her dog, "Problem," will depart by air for New Orleans and her home in Toledo, Ohio.

Senator Martin To Start GOP Parade to Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) will be among speakers to campaign in Virginia in behalf of the Republican ticket.

State GOP headquarters, announcing campaign plans yesterday said Martin is scheduled as main speaker at a Third and Fourth District rally in the Petersburg Armory on the night of October 15.

Virginia Republicans have also been counting on a personal appearance in the State of Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey. The date and time of the Dewey address, however, had not been confirmed tonight.

Taft, Stassen on List

Two weeks of intensive campaigning will follow the Martin address. Three other United States Senators and several Congressmen from other States will come to help Virginia GOP members make their bid for the State's vote.

These speakers tentatively include Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington, Senator James P. Kem of Missouri, National GOP Chairman Hugh R. Scott of Pennsylvania, Representative John C. Kunkle of Pennsylvania, Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth of Massachusetts, former Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore, and Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and now president of the University of Pennsylvania.

Israel Seeks Billion In Foreign Capital In Next 10 Years

Tel Aviv, Oct. 7.—The Israeli government wants one billion dollars in foreign capital investments during the next 10 years and will introduce special legislation to encourage a capital influx, David Horowitz, Israel's economic planning director declared today.

Horowitz said legislation being drafted by the treasury department would provide preferential treatment for private investors through either tax reductions, subsidies, land grants or lowered customs duties. He emphasized that private enterprises were eagerly welcomed under Israel's dominantly labor government.

In a broad review of Israel's economic position after nearly five months of statehood, Horowitz revealed that private investors were already stimulating the young state's industrial growth. He reported that several million dollars were now being expended by American capitalists for the construction of a new chemical industry here.

Horowitz explained that a 100-million-dollar loan from the Export-Import Bank was needed to establish Israel's credit. He said this request was still in abeyance.

1958-Carat Sapphire Found in Australia

Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, Oct. 7 (AP).—A blue sapphire, claimed to be the biggest in the world, has been found near Emerald, central Queensland, by Mrs. Roy McKinney, a miner's wife. It weighs 1958 carats and is as big as a coffee cup.

Mrs. McKinney found the stone on the ground about 300 yards from where the now famous Black Star sapphire was found last May. The Black Star weighed 1156 carats and was sold in New York for $300,800.

Mrs. McKinney sold the stone to the manager of a nearby claim for an undisclosed amount.

Jews Win Truce's Fiercest Battle

To Fight Inflation

Britain Sets Double Duty For Aid Fund

The United States and Britain agree last night on a financial arrangement to make Marshall Plan funds do double duty in fighting British inflation.

European Recovery Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said the agreement provides for the release of 50,100,000 pounds sterling held by the British government in a special counterpart fund established under the terms of the Marshall Plan.

The money, equivalent to about $201,900,000 in American dollars, will be used to pay off short-term British government debts to the Bank of England. That operation is intended to reduce Britain's public debt, ease the inflationary pressure on her economy and help her along the road to financial stability.

The Marshall Plan requires that for every dollar's worth of American help received, the recipient nations must deposit in a special counterpart fund the equivalent of $1, in their own currency—in Britain's case, sterling.

Philippine Gunners Fire on 2 U. S. Planes

Manila, Philippines, Oct. 7 (U.P.). Unidentified gunners fired on two American planes, spraying DDT insecticide north of Manila today, injuring a pilot and damaging his plane, American officials at Clark Field reported.

Tel Aviv, Oct. 7 (NYHT).—The Israeli army announced tonight it had won the fiercest battle of Palestine's truce era—a 36-hour struggle against Egyptian infantry tanks and bombers on the northern approaches to the Negeb.

Two strategic heights guarding the lone Israeli convoy route to the southern desert were captured early yesterday by surprise Egyptian infantry assault, according to a Jewish army representative. A hastily mounted counterattack put them in Jewish hands again, but this provoked further action by the Egyptians, whose armored spearhead rests on Palestine's southern coast from Isdud south.

Two heights at Tel El Kunetra and Hirbet Makohz wound up last night in Jewish hands, the army spokesman said, and Egyptians launched their most intensive effort this morning to regain them.

The Jews said tanks supported reinforced infantry companies in the push up the hillside. Overhead Egyptian bombers made several passes at the hilltops, according to the Israeli version and dropped bombs on entrenched Israeli troops. Fighting continued until early afternoon, when Jewish forces reported that the Egyptians had given up the attack.

Moshe Pearlman, Foreign Ministry press officer, said: "This was the hardest fight we have had since the truce started. Hills changed hands several times, but we have them now. There were more troops involved here than in any of the others."

At Jerusalem, Jews alleged that Arab sappers again penetrated their lines in the Dier Abu Tor sector and partly destroyed one house.

"At the same time," the Israeli communique declared, "Arab troops were also active in the Mus-rara region where Jewish positions came under mortar fire from enemy lines."

Hurricane Roars Over Bermuda, Leaving It Dark

Hamilton, Oct. 7 (AP). — The hurricane which hit Havana and southern Florida this week roared over Bermuda tonight, plunging the resort island into total darkness.

Power lines were blown down by winds which were believed to have reached 110 miles an hour. The storm struck at 5 p. m. and battered the island for 45 minutes.

Slates were ripped off rooftops, but an estimate of the total damage could not be made because of the darkness.

The hurricane, third to hit Bermuda in two months, caused the barometer to fall to its lowest point this year.

After the center of the hurricane passed over the island there was a half hour of absolute calm. Then terrific winds lashed the Atlantic resort.

Russian Dispute

Italy Asks Decision on 33 Warships

Rome, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Italy has referred the problem of the delivery of 33 warships to the Soviet Union back to the Four-Power Naval Commission, following Russia's refusal to accept Italian conditions for delivery, a foreign ministry spokesman said today.

Italy's position was stated after Radio Moscow charged Italy with violating the naval clause of its peace treaty by failing to deliver warships assigned to Russia.

The spokeseman said Italy had wanted to negotiate an accord with the Soviet similar to those with the United States, Britain and France concerning the execution of peace treaty terms.

Russia rejected Italy's proposals.

U. S., Britain Await Ship Return by Italy

Russia is holding up return of 12 warships to Britain and the United States until Italy hands over the Soviet share of the Italian fleet.

Government officials who said this yesterday added that Russia legally can continue using these vessels, loaned to her in 1944, until Italy has complied with peace treaty provisions.

Eleven of the warships are British. The other is the 25-year-old U. S. cruiser Milwaukee.

The United States had hoped Russia would follow the example of the Western powers and renounce its share of Italian warships.

Rubirosa Quits Envoy Post

Buenos Aires, Oct. 7 (AP).—Porfirio Rubirosa, husband of the American Tobacco heiress, Doris Duke Rubirosa, has resigned his post as the Dominican Republic's Ambassador to Argentina. Rubirosa and his wife, however, were reported to be returning to Buenos Aires from France, where he has been playing polo.

AEC Requests Checkup on German Plant

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 7 (U.P.). The United States Atomic Energy Commission has asked the military government to investigate the only plant in Germany legally using American radio active materials industrially, military government officials said today.

One purpose of the investigation is to determine whether secrets on the method of separating radio active thorium from chemical salts are leaking out, officials at the combined anglo-American plant said.

The commission's move, one information said, was aimed at keeping information on the refining of radio active matter from Russian or German Communist hands. A cable from Washington to officials here said the investigation should be made as soon as possible "if we are to continue to make thorium nitrate available."

(Wiley E. Kelley, manager of the New York operations office of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, described the investigation order as "routine." He said periodic examinations are required at all plants permitted to use thorium nitrate.)

The plant involved is the Kilfing Apparatebau, in the British zone, which has been allotted 22,000 pounds of American thorium nitrate to manufacture gas mantles for German railways.

In approving a second allotment, the commission asked that an investigator be sent to the plant.

Stalin's Promises Broken by Soviet have been allowed to go on with their talks for two days, so that they could send an agreed report of their discussions. The Westerners reminded him that the generals in Berlin had been disagreeing for a whole week and that a joint report had been proved impossible.

Four days later Molotov handed the Western envoys a long note, backing up every contention Sokolovsky had made, and reversing every crucial assurance Stalin had given. In this note the Soviet government officially demanded control of air as well as land traffic into Berlin, basing its stand on an alleged decision by the Allied control council in Berlin on November 30, 1945. (In fact, the Soviet commander had asked for such control back in 1945, but the other three commanders had rejected his demand.)

* * * *

WHAT HAD happened to reverse the Soviet position? In the Western capitals two theories were discussed and pondered. One was that Stalin had been overruled by the 14-man Politburo, the supreme governing body of the Soviet Union. Once before, at the Yalta Conference of 1945, Stalin had made promises which his government promptly violated. Then, as now, there were rumors that his promises had been repudiated by the Politburo.

More believeable was the second theory: That Stalin had lost interest in an agreement when he saw he could not delay the Westerners' plans in western Germany. In every document and every conversation, the Russians had pictured their blockade as a reply to the Westerners' London decisions to set up a west German state.

Molotov had tried, but failed, to make a trade—to lift the blockade on condition that the Westerners postpone their West German regime. Stalin had given the West a chance to delay its plans without losing face; he had expressed "insistent desire" for delay in western Germany, but without making it an outright condition. Still the Westerners had held their ground.

The record of events suggests that after the August 23 meeting with Stalin, and after the instructions on the subject of western Germany had come from the Western capitals, the Russians decided they had had enough. They concluded that they would get neither the abandonment of Berlin by the West nor the postponement of the west German constitutional convention scheduled for September 1.

In these circumstances, the Soviet Union could gain nothing from an agreement over Berlin. This, at least, was the most plausible explanation of (1) Stalin's gentle urgings on August 23 to delay the west German plans, (2) Mototov's "less pleasant" manner on August 27 when he heard the final answer from the Western governments, (3) the disorders in the Soviet sector of Berlin, and (4) Sokolovsky's reversals in the final Berlin talks.

* * * *

WHETHER to send the Berlin case to the Security Council or the Assembly caused some inter-Allied disagreements in mid-September, but it was a minor matter easily resolved. The United States persuaded the others that the Security Council would be better because it was the body set up to deal with threats to the peace, and because there could always be later recourse to the Assembly if the appeal to the Security Council failed.

Nobody expected the U. N. to settle the dispute directly, but at least the Western Allies felt the U. N. would bring them the support of opinion throughout the non-Soviet world. Perhaps, too, some third party could think of a way to bring the disputants together again.

On September 22 a brief note from the three governments was delivered to the Kremlin, putting the final question whether the blockade would be lifted. The Russians, as expected, rejected it, and in a long note dated September 25 sought to place all the blame on the Western Allies for the blockade and for the collapse of the negotiations.

The next day, September 26, the three governments announced their recourse to the Security Council. They also told the Soviet government of the move in a long note, prepared days in advance by officials of the three governments in London, giving the Western version of the negotiations. In Washington, the State Department published a 25,000-word report, containing the full texts of the most important Western and Soviet documents, for the world to judge.

Looking back over their records, officials in the Western capitals asked themselves whether they had left anything undone that might have averted the crisis or produced a settlement. They wondered again whether they should have pushed ahead in the spring with their political plans for western Germany; whether they might have foreseen the blockade months earlier and made their plans for it; whether they should have replied more sharply, or more softly, when the Russians first tried to inspect all passengers and freight entering Berlin at the end of March.

But what really made agreement impossible, they felt, was not anything the Western Allies had done or had not done. Discussion of other German issues was impossible as long as the Russians held the club of the blockade over the West. And agreement on Berlin was impossible, the Western governments were sure, as long as the Russians showed so little good will, good faith and honest dealing.

Live Russian Bombs Dropped

Clay grinned and said: "Who is being harassed?"

The American governor then said Berliners fed by the airlift may get an increased food ration this winter.

In his most optimistic declaration yet about the airlift, Clay said the Western Allies plan to grant a "small increase" soon. He added that if the present good weather continues, every German will have some coal, too.

Clay also said the West has an "economic counter blockade" under way as a retort to the Russian move. He said he "hopes it has had an effect."

Today's airlift figures were 5203 tons of supplies unloaded in Berlin by 440 flights.

An eastern zone spokesman indicated here that the Communists of eastern Germany are preparing for eventual civil war by arming 400,000 police in the Russian occupation zone. The spokesman—Kurt Fischer, chief of the Soviet zone interior ministry—claimed the measures were necessary to protect the Soviet zone against the "alarming preparations for civil war being made in western Germany."

Air control officers at Tempelhof airdrome said the lights on one runway went out suddenly tonight and remained out for six or seven minutes.

Small Nations May Demand Blockade End

Paris, Oct. 7 (AP).—Small non-Soviet members of the United Nations Security Council tonight were reported preparing a demand that Russia lift the Berlin blockade.

Authoritative sources said one of the small countries on the 11-nation body would introduce, probably next week, a resolution to carry out American-British-French demands to end the blockade. Under the resolution being drafted, the Council then would call for a meeting of the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers on the whole German question.

The East-West struggle continued unabated on two other issues—atomic energy and arms reduction—with Russia clashing with the West again in the Assembly's political committee.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky accused the Western powers of blocking world disarmament for the last 20 years and demanded that the Big Four cut their forces by one third immediately.

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, said the Soviet plan was not "realistic" and not calculated to create the confidence necessary for disarmament. As for the present Russian government, McNeil said:

'Everyone who dares to disagree with them is a dirty 'warmonger' who is 'waiting to attack us.'"

Vishinsky pressed his arms-slashing plan after the political committee voted to send the ticklish atomic energy question to a subcommittee. Under this action the United States, China, Britain, Russia, France, Canada, Sweden, Brazil, Ecuador, the Soviet Ukraine and India were directed to try to reach agreement on a resolution for submission back to the full 58-nation committee. Some delegates predicted the resulting resolution would order the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission—now stalemated—back to work.

Vishinsky aid nothing about Berlin today. Yesterday he sat mute through two Security Council meetings on the subject, refusing to take part in the discussion on the contention that it was illegal for the Council to be debating the problem. Vishinsky went silent after Russia was voted down, 9 to 2, in efforts to throw out the case.

Informal working committees of the Security Council delegations, with the exception of Russia and the Soviet Ukraine, kept busy today privately exchanging views on the Berlin situation.

After the Council meeting yesterday the six "neutral" countries—China, Canada, Belgium, Argentina, Colombia and Syria—met informally. The feeling then was that they should support the general position of the Western powers. In talks today a resolution began to take shape.

The United States was said reliably to be content for a small nation to put in the fateful resolution.

As far as it is known here the non-Soviet nations on the Council are planning their moves in the expectation that Russia will veto any action the Council tries to take. The issue then may be tossed to the Assembly.

Vishinsky concentrated his fire in the arms debate on British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak. He said Lenin was the first to propose disarmament and he said Bevin and Spaak opposed it and aided forces trying to overthrow Soviet Russia.

Vishinsky spoke of the abortive disarmament conferences of the 1920's and said each was throught to naught by Western insistence on "security first." He said that now, 20 years later, Bevin was going back to the old "security first" theme.

McNeil denied that Bevin had favored intervention in Russia against the Soviets. He said, however, that many people have changed their minds about things they said 20 years ago. He added that Lenin said many things which present Soviet leaders deny although the writings of Lenin are not denied.

McNeil assailed the Soviet arms plan at length, declaring that Vishinsky "knows down to the last ha'penny" what the British are spending for armaments. He added:

"Can anybody, even those most intimate with Soviet Russia, tell us what forces the Soviet Union has deployed?"

The Scot said that the "quantitative method" of arms reduction proposed by Russia "places immediately a premium on the country with the largest armed forces." He said Britain already was down to an "irreductible minimum."

Henri Rolin, the Belgian delegate, said the Soviet arms reduction plan would not work and that it made no provision for the necessary controls.

Anti-Franco Spaniards Ask Backing

Paris, Oct. 7 (AP).—Anti-Franco Spaniards have called upon Britain, France and the United States to make good their pledge to back a democratic regime in Spain.

Disclosure of this appeal came shortly after the British foreign office said in London exiled Spanish Republicans and Monarchists had patched up their differences in a formal agreement.

A Spanish foreign office spokesman in Madrid tonight attacked the British Foreign Office for giving out what it called "false information." He said the Spanish minister in London had been instructed to protest the British report which, he said, had caused "great displeasure" in Madrid.

Agreement Confirmed

Representatives of exiled Spanish Republicans and Monarchists said they had reached agreement on steps to form a coalition government which would displace Chief of State General Franco. The British and United States Embassies confirmed that they had received copies of the agreement.

Spaniards here said the agreement was welcomed by British and French officials, but that they were uncertain of the American reaction.

(In Washington, the State Department said it had received no official word of the agreement and declined comment on it.)

Speculation on U. S.

The announcement was timed at the height of speculation that the United States might revise its anti-Franco policy on the ground that Spain is important to the defense of western Europe.

The agreement was reported to call for a mixed committee in Paris to continue working for the overthrow of Franco, an interim government, free elections and a plebiscite on the return of the monarchy.

It was said to contain a pledge of support from Monarchists, Socialists, the Spanish Confederation of Labor and underground democratic forces in Spain.

Hoffman Due in Paris Oct. 19 to Check on ERP

Paris, Oct. 7 (NYHT).—Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation administrator, is expected to arrive here on October 19 for his second visit to Europe since the beginning of the European Recovery Program six months ago, it was learned today.

The ECA administrator will also be interested in seeing what progress is being made by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation in drawing up the master "plan of action" aimed at recovery by 1952 which he asked them for when he was last in Paris.

Ike's Wac Boswell Charms the Press

A fair colleen named Kathleen, who was yanked out of comparative obscurity to become aide to a five-star general, neither acted nor wore green at her "very first" press conference yesterday.

Kay

Apparently taking a leaf from the book of her former boss, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower (who fills many a leaf in hers), Irish-born Kay Summersby handled a swarm of inquisitive reporters with the aplomb and dexterity of a diplomat.

Auburn-haired, lissome and 37, she manipulated queries about feminine reactions to her new book, "Eisenhower Was My Boss," as deftly as only a celebrity can.

Flashing a winning smile and a heliotrope orchid, Miss Summersby reckoned "it's just gossip," all this talk about women in service and American men overseas.

"It's All In My Book"

Was there any real purpose in mentioning such things in a book about General Eisenhower?

"I have nothing to add—it's all covered in my book," she replied. "As a matter of fact, I've received quite a lot of—shall I say—fan mail, from women defending what I had written regarding the WAC, the Red Cross and women overseas."

Her publisher's representative, who accompanied Miss Summersby from New York, was seen to smile contentedly.

As for her previous vocational pursuits—ambulance driver during the London blitz, chauffeur to American officers, secretary and finally aide-de-camp to General Ike—she was less noncommittal, but no less alert.

"Lots of officers, American and British, were not very fond of the field marshal," she confided when asked about Montgomery. "But it was a matter of personality."

And her boss, a close personal friend of General Patton before and during the war, found it "awfully hard" to relieve the dashing cavalryman of his command after "that business in Sicily."

No Desire to Appear on Screen

Was Ike a Republican or Democrat? He never said. He was always "just a soldier."

Did he approve of her writing a book? "He said he had no objection at all, be ause he was writing some things himself."

As with many writings published nowadays, there is the matter of moving pictures. Could she play the part of herself on the screen?

"Gosh, no," was the retort with a crisp British accent, but in the vernacular of the American citizen which she expects to be in a few months.

Airing Coming Up

Top Britons Are Linked to Black Mart

London, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—A black market scandal said to involve high Labor government officials will be aired in Parliament soon after it reconvenes October 25, informed sources said today.

Laborite Will Nally said he would introduce a question on the matter to Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade.

The Daily Graphic indicated American steel probably would figure in the scandal, along with huge quantities of lace, textiles, paper and other tightly rationed goods which allegedly were diverted to the home market from the "do-or-die" export program through illegal licenses.

"Large quantities of steel and raw materials are believed to have been imported from America by several Midlands and North-of-England manufacturing firms without authorization," the Graphic said.

Voice 'Debunking' Soviet Atom Plan

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Marshall has ordered an international campaign to "debunk" Russia's latest proposal for control of atomic energy.

Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett yesterday said the order came from Marshall in Paris.

Lovett said Marshall acted after the French radio reported that Russia was retreating from her previous demands on the control of atomic energy and making a concession to the Western powers.

"Retreat Imaginary"

"The retreat is entirely imaginary," Lovett told President Truman's new advisory commission on inflation.

He explained that the "basic problem" still remains:

"Do you get international inspection, and do you get elimination of the veto in order to make international inspection effective?"

Russia's latest proposal was submitted to the United Nations General Assembly in Paris last Saturday by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

The Soviet minister demanded that the United Nations ban the atomic bomb and set up atomic energy controls, but still insisted on veto power over the controls.

Lovett said the Soviet proposal merely "clouded the issues" and the American U. N. delegation became concerned over the French reaction to it. As a result, he said, on Marshall's instructions the State Department's "Voice of America" broadcasts have beamed explanations overseas in a score of languages.

Give Editorial Comment

He said the broadcasts outline the American position in detail and give American editorial comment.

Official explanations so far have included a statement by Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate, who told the U. N. on Saturday that Russia's attitude indicates she is "not ready for effective international control."

Ethridge told the commission yesterday that a Government overseas information program is "not only necessary but vital to the United States and to the people of the world."

George V. Allen, Assistant Secretary of State, said the United States should continue to let Russia and Soviet satellites distribute propaganda in this country.

He told the commission that information activities "must be a two-way street if we are to avoid a justified accusation of imperialism.

"The American Government maintains reading rooms behind the Iron Curtain, distributes a daily information bulletin to any who are bold enough to take it, and of course we broadcast daily in the principal language of the area," Allen said. "Moreover, we send 50,000 of the magazine Amerika, in Russian, to the Soviet Union each month for sale throughout the country."

He contended that if the United States imposed a censorship or made difficulties for people who visited foreign information centers in this country, "we would arouse 10 times more interest in foreign propaganda than exists in the United States today."

Two Sides to Meeting Of Minds, Lovett Says

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett told the advisory commission on information yesterday that diplomats trying to reach a "reasonable meeting of the minds" have to assume that "there are minds on both sides."

That, he added caustically, "is frequently an extravagant assumption."

Strikes Halt Passenger Runs On Paris-Strasbourg Railway

Paris, Oct. 7 (NYHT). — Passenger traffic on the Paris-Strasbourg line, the first trunk route to be affected, came to a halt today as locally authorized strikes of railwaymen gained momentum in the wake of the four-day-old miners' strike for higher wages and for government action against inflated living costs.

Eighty per cent of the 2000 rail workers at Chalons-sur-Marne quit their jobs and piled up through traffic at the halfway station on the Paris-Strasbourg line. The strikers are mostly members of the pro-Communist General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

Premier Henri Queuille's government took steps meanwhile to implement its promise of taking "all necessary measures" to reopen the strike-bound mines to men belonging to the non-Communist trade unions.

Andre Marie, Minister of Justice and acting as Minister of the Interior, consulted with General Georges Revers, French chief of staff. Prefects, who direct police activities in the various north of France departments, were present.

But it appeared evident that the Queuille coalition cabinet, a combination of Socialist, pro-Catholic Popular Republican and Moderate Parties, was not certain how far to go in the face of reports that mine picket lines were being doubled against the threat of police interference.

A 2½-hour cabinet meetting tonight ended with the statement that "necessary measures" were being taken "to assure the protection of installations and the conservation of material."

There were sporadic reports of miners of the two non-Communist trade unions—the Force Ouvriere and the Christian Workers Confederation—returning to the pits in some localities.

Argentina Sells Army 8,256,300 Lbs. of Meat

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Army today announced purchase of 8,356,300 pounds of Argentine meat for military feeding requirements in the European command.

The total purchase price was $1,839,760. The meat was purchased from five firms.

Meat industry sources here said the huge purchase would have no effect on the domestic meat supply or the price situation, since import of Argentine meat, except canned meat, is forbidden by Federal law.

Soviet Strongly Hit By State Official

Some of the strongest language ever used against Russia by a high State Department official came last night from Assistant Secretary Charles E. Saltzman, in charge of occupied areas.

Saltzman

Saltzman said Russia's "aggressive dictatorship - type government" was "determined to dominate the world," and jeopardized American security and American rights "as surely as Hitler did."

The text of his speech, delivered at the University of New Hampshire at Durham, N. H., was not submitted to Secretary Marshall or Acting Secretary Lovett before being released to the press on Wednesday.

Recalling American efforts since the war to cooperate with Russia as well as with other countries, Saltzman said "it became increasingly evident that Soviet policy was animated by a spirit of rivalry and antagonism, and that its primary aim was territorial expansion and the extension of communism by every possible means, regardless of the rights and wishes of other peoples."

"It is now perfectly plain," he said, "that the policy of the Soviet Union is not based on a genuine spirit of reciprocity and cooperation, but on the dogmatic doctrine that conflict between Communism and the rest of the world is inevitable and must continue until one of the two rival systems utterly destroys the other.

"No matter what the Communists may say, on the cynical grounds that the end justifies the means, all their acts confirm the conclusions that they are determined to dominate the world and impose their will on all other peoples."

The struggle now going on, he continued, "is a conflict which the United States does not desire and which we sought by all honorable means to avoid."

"But the threat exists, and it jeopardizes our national security and the fundamental rights of our people as surely as Hitler did," he declared. "We have no recourse but to recognize the challenge and to take bold measures to meet it successfully."

Saltzman said the record of the Berlin negotiations showed "the enormous difficulties encountered by a peaceful, democratic government in dealing with an aggressive dictatorship-type government with wholly different objectives and a wholly different concept of international relations."

"This is a new kind of test for the American people," he said.

"We are engaged now in a struggle that cannot be settled properly by some quick and decisive action. We are exerting our utmost effort to avoid war. We hope to win this conflict this side of war by patience, calmness and spiritual fortitude.

"Perhaps this will not be possible. But we shall proceed on the assumption that it is possible.

"The primary lesson of our postwar experience and particularly the past few months is that there is no short-cut to the kind of world we want. We dare not seek the way out through wishful thinking, escapism or appeasement, lest we drop through the trapdoor to oblivion.

"There is no magic formula, no man-made miracle, that will quickly free us of the ever-present danger inherent in the machinations of a ruthless and unrestrained group who wield great power.

"The eyes of the American people should now be fully opened. We have completed a painful process of disillusionment. We know now that the Soviet rulers have no intention of cooperating in establishing peace and order in the world."

The Soviet rulers have made it plain, he went on, "that their real aim is world domination through the instrumentality of communism and that they will stoop to any stratagem of coercion, subterfuge, duplicity and double dealing that serves their purpose.

"Their aims and their methods are a direct threat to the national security of the United States. Forewarned by this knowledge, we must be forearmed by an alertness to danger and a readiness to preserve our security and freedom at all cost.

"If we do so," Saltzman said, in a last-minute addition to his prepared text, "the prospects of peace will be much greater, since it would then be less likely that any foreign power would attempt to coerce this or other countries by force."

British Coal Miners Told to Work Harder

London, Oct. 7 (AP).—The British government told the nationalized coal industry today it is falling down on the job and must increase production immediately.

"The present level of output is insufficient to maintain exports at the present rate, far less to enable them to be increased next year to 23 or 24 million tons," an official statement said exports now are about 16 million tons a year.

Communists Using Russian Shells, Chinese Charge

Nanking, Oct. 7 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Teng Wen-yi, government military spokesman, said today Chinese Communists have been firing "Russian-model" shells into besieged Chinhsien.

Teng said the Chinhsien garrison had recovered several unexploded 76.2-milimeter shells which "appeared to be of a Russian type" inside the city. The Defense Ministry, he said, had asked the commander of the south Manchurian city to rush a report.

Teng said the fighting around Chinhsien had abated except for artillery duels. He admitted, however, loss to the Reds of Ihsien, government strongpoint 50 miles north of Chinhsien.

Reversing his earlier confirmation of a report of the government's evacuation of Changchun, Manchurian capital, Gen. Teng described the movement of the garrison there as "an offensive drive southward."

He declined to affirm or deny that the government actually had abandoned the old Manchurian capital, although his own newspaper published under a Peiping dateline a dispatch that the Changchun garrison was already 65 miles south of the city.

Jap Cabinet Dissolved in Loan Scandal

Tokyo, Oct. 7 (AP).—Japan's ultra-conservatives pressed a drive for power today as the coalition cabinet of Hitoshi Ashida resigned because of a government loan scandal.

The conservatives, misnamed the Democratic-Liberal Party, picked their president, former Premier Shigeru Yoshida, as candidate to head a new cabinet.

The Democratic Party, headed by Ashida, favored trying another coalition to thwart Yoshida, but the Socialists, who hold the key to such a solution, were undecided.

The Socialists precipated the cabinet resignation after a former deputy premier and president of the economic stabilization board were arrested on suspicion of bribery in a 10-million-dollar government loan to the Showa Denko Fertilizer Co.

Union Red Probe Brings Move for Citing of 11

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Representative Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.), chairman, said today contempt citations will be sought against 11 men who did not answer subpenas to appear before a congressional subcommittee investigatting alleged Communist infiltration into labor unions.

The group held its last session yesterday.

Among those recommended for contempt would be officials and attorneys of eight seceding left-wing locals of the CIO Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

The locals cut loose from the union when their leaders refused to sign Taft-Hartley Act non-Communist affidavits.

Earlier yesterday, a claim the eight locals were offering $200,000 to affiliate with an AFL union was termed "a fantastic lie" by Sidney E. Conn, New York attorney.

Conn said the story of the alleged offer "is a lie made out of whole cloth."

Samuel Wolchok, president of the CIO union, testified the locals offered $200,000 to go into the AFL Building Service Union as a "cloak of respectability." He charged the locals were Communist-dominated.

William L. McFetridge, president of the AFL union, testified that "at no time was any money offered or talked about" in connection with negotiations to take the eight locals into his union.

He said the negotiations have been canceled because of "the variety of jurisdictional problems involved."

Five former officials of the giant Local 475 (Brooklyn) of the CIO United Electrical Workers testified yesterday they were ousted or had to quit because they would not work for the Progressive Party or against the Marshall Plan.

Peru to Arrest Apra Chief

Lima, Peru, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Interior Minister Cesar Villegas said today that Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, internationally known head of the Apra Party, will be arrested and tried for complicity in Sunday's abortive sailors revolt at Callao.

Villegas said 127 home-made bombs, grenades and other explosives had been found in the Lima metropolitan area and that all precautions were being taken against expected Apra terrorism.

He added that 1200 persons were in custody, including participants in the Callao naval uprising.

Oil 'Confessions'

U. S. Accuses Hungary of Third Degree

The State Department yesterday accused Hungary of using third degree "police state" methods to make two American oil men sign false confessions of sabotage against the Hungarian oil industry.

The department issued a statement giving the official backing of the United States Government to the public protests made by the two Americans on their return to this country last week.

It dismissed as "unfounded" sabotage charges against Paul Ruedemann of Hartsdale, N. Y., and George Bannantine of St. Louis, Mo., officials of a Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey subsidiary in Hungary.

The men were arrested by Hungarian police during the night of September 18 and were held incommunicado until September 25, when, after signing confessions of guilt, they were permitted to return to the United States.

They told the State Department, the statement said, that their confessions "were, in fact, prepared by the Hungarian police that the contents of the documents are wholly false, and that they copied and signed these 'confessions' only under duress."

"On various occasions," it added, "they were required to stand with their faces against the wall and arms upraised until they collapsed. During this time, they were permitted very little food and sleep."

The department said two notes had been sent to Hungary protesting the men's arrest and the false charges against them.

Police Puzzled On Prowler's Legation Entry

Investigators theorized yesterday that the prowler who entered the Hungarian Legation and fired a wild shot at a woman Sunday night may have been someone formerly connected with the legation.

State Department security agents and Metropolitan Police detectives went over the sumptuous dwelling and yard at 2118 Leroy pl. nw. carefully after talking with John G. Florian, first secretary; Odon Pozsgai, legation messenger, and the latter's wife, at whom the intruder fired wildly in the semi-dark entrance hall about 8 p. m. Sunday when she approached as he let himself in with a key.

They searched vainly for the bullet that passed through a hallway and shattered a rear window. They found no sign that the intruder had forced the front door lock. Mrs. Pozsgai said she distinctly heard the man turn a key in the lock as she sat waiting for her husband to return from walking their pet Pekinese.

Refusing to be quoted, investigators were convinced no ordinary burglar would have had a key, and any ordinary burglar would have chosen one of many windows and doors in the nearly all-glass rear of the first floor to force an entrance. They believe the man had watched Pozsgain leave with the dog, knew the Pozsgais were the only occupants of the building at that hour, and mistakenly thought Mrs. Pozsgai also was out.

But what the man wanted in the legation and who he was was still a mystery.

Area Draftees Go to Pickett

Army disclosure of the selection of Camp Pickett, officials at the Pentagon revealed that an Army committee already has made a survey of "community relations" in towns and cities near the camp.

Their report disclosed that there is no extra housing at Blackstone, a town of 2700 people, and that the problem of visiting parents will be critical. Public health, recreation and police problems were discussed with civic leaders there and at Petersburg, 40 miles east, Richmond, 60 miles northwest, and Lynchburg, 80 miles west. Camp Lee near Petersburg, will be the training center for the WAC.

Plans for reopening of USO buildings were mapped.

The visit of the civilian committee to this post was part of the group's quarterly meeting with Army officials. Composed of outstanding civilian personnel and administration experts from all over the country, it advises Lieut. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Army personnel chief. Members here today include: Dr. Walter V. Bingham, of Washington, psychologist; Prof. Douglas D. Bond of Western Reserve University; Mrs. Carter Collins, author, Berkeley, Calif.; Dr. John J. Corson, circulation director, The Washington Post; Thomas G. Spates, vice president, General Foods Corp. and T. T. Stevenson of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

RECIPE

LEMON COCONUT CAKE
Snowdrift's new "quick-mixing" way to get a lighter, richer, moister cake!

Sift together in a large bowl:
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons double-action baking powder (3¼ teaspoons single-action)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar

Add: ½ cup Snowdrift (quick-blending!)
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Mix until flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand and take "rests," count beating time only. (If you use electric mixer, set at "low speed"; scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add: 2 eggs
¼ cup lemon juice

Beat 1 minute. Turn into 2 greased 8- or 9-inch layer pans, with bottoms lined with thin plain paper. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks 5 minutes; turn out of pans, invert and cool. Put layers together with—

COCONUT FROSTING
2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
⅓ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup shredded coconut

Put all ingredients except vanilla in double boiler, over boiling water. Beat constantly with rotary beater 7 minutes, or until icing "peaks." Cool. Add vanilla. Ice cake; press coconut against sides of cake.

Merchant Marine Needs a New Champ

(Sixth of a series.)

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America's merchant marine needs a world champ—a high-speed new super-liner to outsail and outshine the present North Atlantic queens.

Not in a hundred years have we had a champion. Since the days of the Yankee clippers, when radically designed United States ships set the pace for the world, we have taken a backseat and let others rule the waves.

More cogent reasons than national pride demand that we build a giant passenger ship which will outstrip anything now afloat.

Navy chiefs are worried about the present shortage of modern passenger craft in the maritime fleet. Today we have less than 50 vessels in operation with a passenger capacity of about 12,000, compared to 113 craft operating before Pearl Harbor carrying 35,000 passengers.

The Nation is warming in the face of disturbed world conditions. We are building up our Army, Navy and Air Force, but paying little attention to the service which will enable us to carry the fight overseas if war comes.

Fast transports are essential to overseas warfare and the armed forces rely on the merchant marine for a large portion of our wartime troop ships. Lack of them constitutes one of our most serious military weaknesses today.

One new super oceanliner, of course, will not solve our wartime needs. We'll require a fleet of them. But there's a peacetime place for such a fleet. Our world-wide trade routes require fast new passenger craft. They are not being built because of lack of public support of the American merchant marine.

British Wouldn't Dare

A majority of Americans today prefer Cunarder or other foreign flag vessel when crossing the Atlantic. They take the Queen Elizabeth or the Queen Mary if available. United States Government officials do the same thing—something no British official would dare.

Aside from seaboard cities, there is little public interest in the American merchant marine, in the wide variety of problems it faces in the postwar world. Such apathy among the people at large and members of Congress and potential investors in shipping companies, in particular, is a major factor in its decline.

A new American merchant queen, a champ winning headlines with new transatlantic speed records could change all this. It could attract the public support needed to build the passenger fleet demanded by defense chiefs and help solve the industry's other ills.

Construction of such a champ now is planned, but a big question mark is still attached to the project. United States Lines has 25 million dollars it is willing to spend on a new superliner. The Government would have to put up the remainder of its estimated 65 to 85 million-dollars-cost in national defense and construction-differential subsidy.

Bids have been asked on the craft for a November 1 opening. Though only 48,000 tons to the British queens 80,000-ton odd displacement, it would be as fast as a cruiser and the last word in comfort and luxury. A final decision on building the ship—largely turning on the question of cost—has not yet been made.

Foreign lines have dominated the North Atlantic route—the world's main shiplane—since the end of the war even more than they did in prewar days. The SS America, flagship of United States Lines, was reconverted into a first-class liner, but the SS Washington—also a wartime troop transport—received only a makeshift reconversion into a "dormitory" type vessel.

Believe It Was a Mistake

Most shipping men now consider this was a mistake. Practical shipping operations require that two first class liners operate continuously in the North Atlantic trade—a condition we have been unable to meet.

The steel shortage has helped postpone a new American superliner to date and may delay its overdue keel-laying still further. Navy and Maritime Commission chiefs and the entire shipping industry, however, believe that it should be laid down at once. And followed by a sister ship, two other superliners for transpacific operation and a score or more of other passenger craft within the next year or so.

Great Britain now has 94 passenger or combination passenger-cargo ships under construction. Holland has 20, and defeated Italy 19. We have not laid down a passenger liner since the America was built nearly a decade ago, though contracts for five medium-sized craft were let this summer.

(The concluding article in this series will appear tomorrow.)

Tories Hit Pacts Limiting Empire Tariff System

Llandudno, Wales, Oct. 7 (AP).—British Conservatives went on record tonight against international trade agreements that would limit the empire's system of preferential tariffs.

Their party conference urged Britain to denounce the Geneva trade treaty and refuse to ratify the Havana charter for an international trade organization to the extent that they would curb the system. Both documents aim to lower world tariff barriers.

Surrender or Die, Java Reds Warned

Batavia, Java, Oct. 7 (AP).—The army of the Indonesian Republic warned rebellious Communists by radio tonight to surrender forthwith or be destroyed.

A Republican communique said Republican troops had captured Purwodadi and Gundis, north of Soerakarta where the Communist rebellion broke out three weeks ago. Communists fled to the two points when Soerakarta was captured two weeks ago. Capture of Gundis placed the railway from Soerakarta to the oil town of Tjepoe in government hands. Tjepoe was reported burning yesterday.

Indonesia Air Force Missing

Manila, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Indonesian air force was officially listed as missing today.

The "force" was Bobby Freeberg, tall, raw-boned American who for more than a year had flown through the Dutch blockade in his beat-up old C-47 transport.

His plane has been missing six days on a flight between Indonesian Republican territories in Java and Sumatra.

Freeberg, a former United States troop carrier pilot from somewhere in the Middlewest, was a daring and rather mysterious figure.

The slender communications link he maintained between the Republican capital of Jogjakarta and Manila had long annoyed the Dutch.

He first drew attention a year ago when he flew a $250,000 cargo of quinine from Indonesia. Philippine authorities impounded it, but later released it in an action locally interpreted as tacit recognition of the Republic.

The foreign affairs department gave him a special permit specifying that he could carry passengers and cargo only for the Indonesian Republic and would have no diplomatic protection in event the Dutch captured his plane.

Agreement for United Indonesia Is Reported

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP).—A basic agreement for a United States of Indonesia by 1949 has been reached at The Hague, the Netherlands Information Bureau reported today.

The reported plan will not include the Indonesian republic, which rules in central Java and parts of Sumatra independent of the Dutch.

U. S. Resources Board Names Two Directors

Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, yesterday announced the appointment of John P. Kottcamp, Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., and John D. Mylrea, Wausau, Wis., as division directors in the board's office of production.

Kottcamp, former vice president of the Johns Manville Products Corp., will head the construction materials division, and Mylrea, treasurer and a director of the Mosinee Paper Mills Co., Mosinee, Wis., will supervise the forest products division.

Both will be responsible for mobilization planning for industries in their respective fields.

again the same night only if they provide their own transportation.

Under their routing directive, those using transportation provided by Selective Service from Upper Marlboro, where they report at 8:45 a. m., will reach the recruiting station at Jessup Blair Park, Silver Spring, in midafternoon. The Army plans to put them up overnight.

Using their own cars, they can drive the 25 miles to Silver Spring in about an hour.

Selective Service officials said when the calls become large enough from Hyattsville, Upper Marlboro, or both, buses will be chartered for direct trips.

Meanwhile, the Army notified Selective Service headquarters here that 76 District of Columbia men will be called for induction in December, second month of the peacetime draft. The November call was for 55.

Norton expects to announce today the names of the first District men to be called for induction. There will be not more than three in this group, he said.

Those reporting today for examinations at Silver Spring include two volunteers. They are James D. Kimble, 21, 5024 46th ave., Hyattsville, unemployed Navy veteran, and James R. Sleeth, jr., 22, of 4308 Tuckerman st., Hyattsville, a library assistant at the Library of Congress and the choir director of the Hyattsville Methodist Church.

Others, all 25 years of age, are Robert M. Greathouse, clerk, of Riverdale; Ferris L. Grow, truck driver, Newton Village; James W. Mitchell, merchant seaman, 4705 Edmondston ave., Bladensburg; Raymond T. Fletcher, rigger's helper, 4702 41st pl., Hyattsville; Thomas F. Yates, student, who will be deferred for completion of studies at University of Maryland; Bernard Stebbins, construction lather, 4206 Jefferson st., Hyattsville; and John F. Neitzey, gas station operator, West Hyattsville.

On the Town

THE NEW Club Cairo show is now in full swing. It's led off this week by the Barton Brothers, three boys who pattern their humor after the Ritz team. It smacks of old time burlesque, what with many side remarks to each other. Their laugh getter is a skit on college football players that brought a share of laughs from the opening night crowd.

Phyllis Claire, who's played the Shoreham Hotel a number of times, is right fast with her tap routines, and just as an aside she's very easy to look at.

The Wally Wanger girls are rapidly becoming a very well organized line with smooth routines. It usually takes a couple of weeks for a line of girls to get all the numbers smoothed out.

Dropped in on Dona Mason, the thrush of the King Cole Room Since Dona claims to lead a very dull life (we should be so dull) and didn't have any news for us we flipped the horse and cart around while we talked about columnists. Of course, when people trap you in a conversation you haul in the neck and just wait for the ax. Seems Dona's pet peeves in columnists run to those who sit there during an interview writing notes enough to fill a Britannica and then come out in the paper with one rather dull line, period. Pet number two of the peeves is the boy who just drops in for a chit-chat taking no notes. Next day you can pick up the paper and read your conversation verbatim, which occasionally puts you right in the middle of the proverbial pickle. (We might add that Dona was forewarned in this case.) Of course, there's the boy who was born chewing on a particularly sour persimmon. He probably wouldn't pay the tax on a pass for another Sermon on the Mount. Despite what it all sounds like, Dona has a load of friends among the scribes.

A lot of us used to enjoy dropping into the Burlington lounge now and then to collapse on one of those soft red leather couches while we worried a lemonade to death. When the room closed for alterations it left something of an empty spot in the night club world. Well the place has reopened as the Sombrero Room. It's been completely redecorated right down to the Mexican murals on the walls and seems to have fallen in line with a new trend in restaurant and clubs. Lower prices! Their lunches run from 50 cents and dinners from 80 cents. Sounds like old times, doesn't it?

The Lafayette Hotel Checkerboard Room is featuring Anita Carton with music on the Hammond organ. Some of you may remember her when she played the organ at one of the downtown stores during the Christmas season. Anita used to be a CBS pianist in New York and later made transcriptions for Muzak, so whether you know it or not, you've probably heard her before.

THE Metrohome Room in the Wardman Park has come up with another orchestra that makes some very danceable music. It comes from under the baton of Warren Davis. If the name sounds a little familiar it's because Warren played the Capitol Theater last year when Victor Mature starred there. His style is very much on the smooth side and stays away from the "society tempo" that has become a mania with us.

ACCEPT THE National WINE WEEK INVITATION
OCTOBER 9 TO 16

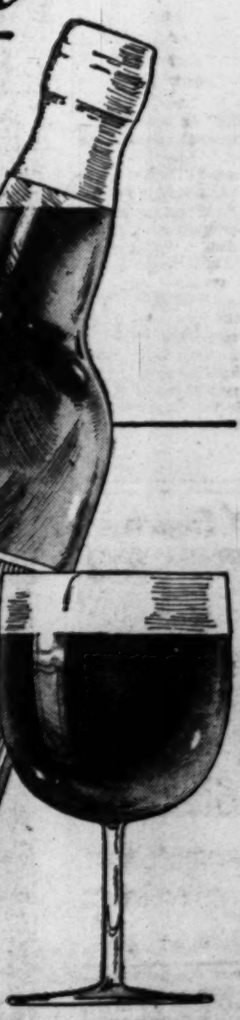
taste the Wines America likes best
... the WINES of California

Serve California Wines with your favorite foods. Notice how good they taste, how little they cost. You'll see why seven out of eight American families, who serve wine, choose California Wines ...wines from the world's most favored vineyards

CALIFORNIA WINES are made entirely from fresh ripe grapes . . . made especially to do good things for the foods you serve when entertaining.

You will find two wonderful wine-and-food combinations suggested at lower left. Try them. And next time fish is your main dish, try serving it with delicate California Sauterne . . . that makes for mighty fine eating. And when you have evening guests try setting out California's velvety Port with cheese and crackers.

You can enjoy wine often—for today the wines of California are surprisingly low in cost. Wherever wines are sold you will find California Wines featured. Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market St., San Francisco, suggests you write for the booklet "Easy Entertaining with Wine." It is free.



Sherry is a grand way to welcome guests

Amber in color, California Sherry has a nutlike flavor that tastes perfect with appetizers before dinner—and wonderfully good with sandwiches, cakes or cookies at any time. Sherry is easy to serve—you do not have to ice it or mix it

Try California Burgundy with your meat dish

Beef stew . . . rib roast . . . pot roast . . . hamburger — any red meat and good red wine is a hard-to-beat eating combination. Before cooking, marinate your thrifty cuts with California Burgundy. And baste all roasts with 1½ cups Burgundy while roasting. Then serve at the table with glasses of the same good wine

NOTHING IS EASIER THAN TO SERVE WINE

Wine has the same good taste from any glass. Even a water tumbler is "correct" for wine serving.

You fill glasses right from the bottle. Most people prefer white table wines well chilled, sparkling wines very cold and all others cool.

After you open the bottle, Sherry and Port keep almost indefinitely. And table wines like Burgundy, Claret or Sauterne will keep in your refrigerator

THEY COST SO LITTLE ... AND ADD SO MUCH

Dealer Goes Broke, 1300 Demand Cars

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 7 (AP).—A mystery car dealer who has been peddling nearly new automobiles at list price from his alfalfa field "show room" the last few months was bankrupt and under arrest on charges of fraud today.

He is Arthur F. Kramer, former home builder, who listed his liabilities at $2,387,063 and assets at $2,533,402.

"If the people give us enough time, we'll pay off," he said.

"Something went wrong," he explained about the blow-up of a business that attracted eager car customers from 15 States.

His voluntary bankruptcy petition listed more than 1300 persons as "creditors with claims unsecured." They had made deposits on cars ranging from $1630 to $1740 and were awaiting delivery.

Kramer, who operated his open-air lot near Jerseyville, in southern Illinois, sought protection from the sheriff before his arrest. Panicky people, he said, were besieging his car lot.

Irate customers filed involuntary bankruptcy proceedings in Federal Court yesterday against Kramer and Robert L. Knetzer of Edwardsville. Kramer claims Knetzer, car dealer, owes him $2,500,000. Knetzer left Edwardsville a week ago.

Kramer's bankruptcy petition, filed soon after the involuntary petition, claimed the money from Knetzer was due on notes and an open account. He did not explain the tie-in further.

attending GWU—a job as position classifier at the Farm Credit Administration. Later he was FCA's personnel officer at Omaha.

In 1937 he was appointed manager of Michigan's municipal personnel service at Lansing and in 1939 he took a position with the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada with offices in Chicago. He's now director of that Rockefeller-endowed agency and he'll take indefinite leave to go on the commission. During the war, Mitchell was a commander in the Coast Guard. He was assistant chief of Coast Guard's administrative management division. He's married and has two sons.

Members of the Fair Employment Board were appointed by the Civil Service Commission. This board will not only hear the appeals of employes where discrimination is charged, but it will lay down policies and procedures for the many agencies to follow in an effort to wipe out all forms of discrimination.

The employe who believes he has been wronged by discrimination should appeal first to the fair employment officer in his own agency. He may then appeal to the head of his agency and finally to the new Civil Service Board whose decision is final.

Actually, the board will have a large degree of independence even though it is under the Civil Service Commission. The commission plans to give it a free hand in fixing policies and making decisions.

Reconsideration Of Revell Road Zoning Is Asked

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Zoning Commissioner Archibald Coleman Rogers today asked the Anne Arundel County Board of Commissioners to "reconsider its ill-advised action" in establishing a 2000-foot commercial zone along Revell highway.

Rodgers released a letter to the commissioners charging the action was taken "without my knowledge and in disregard of a previous recommendation by myself."

Weems R. Duvall, board president, was not available for comment.

The commissioners late Tuesday voted to rezone two 1000-foot roadside areas, 300 feet deep, owned by Ex-State Senator Frank Duvall from agricultural to heavy commercial. Rogers charged the action came "after his departure at 4 p. m."

Research Chief

The tributes which have been paid Dr. Vannevar Bush for his work in promoting and coordinating scientific activity under the Government have been well earned. More, perhaps, than any other man, Dr. Bush has epitomized the tremendous efforts which resulted in the perfection of radar, the atomic bomb and the many other scientific developments that helped win the war. After serving for seven years as director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, last year he became chairman of the new Research and Development Board and helped to make it an integral part of the national military establishment.

As Dr. Bush relinquishes his post to devote full time to the presidency of the Carnegie Institution, the continuity of military science is assured by the selection of Dr. Karl T. Compton as his successor. Dr. Compton already has taken an enormous amount of time from his duties as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to serve the Government in various important capacities, including the chairmanship of the board evaluating atomic bomb tests and of the President's Commission on Universal Military Training. He also is a member of the President's Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange. Thus Dr. Compton comes to the Research and Development Board with a wide experience reaching beyond the board itself. With respect to Government-sponsored science, he has worked closely with Dr. Bush, and the two have been practically alter-egos.

In one sense the change may mean a better working relationship with scientists on operating levels. Dr. Bush is a man of somewhat austere personality, and his conservatism has been resented by some of the working scientists. Likewise, his stand for a National Science Foundation virtually in the hands of scientists alone, and hence dominated by a few large universities, has alienated some students of sound public policy. Dr. Bush has, however, shown an increasing interest in the social sciences both within and beyond the military establishment. It is to be hoped that his successor will continue and expand this trend. There can be no doubt that Dr. Compton is eminently qualified both as a scientist and as a public-spirited citizen to assume his new responsibility. It is a responsibility of almost incalculable proportions, for it encompasses not only the whole direction of scientific endeavor for military purposes, but also almost the entire field of pure research which is now carried on principally under military sponsorship.

Year-Round Job

It has been aptly observed that the principal purpose of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week is to call the attention of employers to something they ought to be doing all the time in their own interest as much as in discharge of an obligation to society. One week is set aside each year to tell the public about the strides made in rehabilitation of disabled civilians and how with proper training they become real assets to employers. But the need for help is year-round. First, employers and the public generally must be convinced that what handicapped persons want is not charity or pity but jobs on an equal footing with other workers; second, the disabled persons themselves must be made aware of the services available to train them to earn their own livelihoods.

In Washington the focal point for such assistance is the District of Columbia Rehabilitation Service located in the Federal Security Building at 3d st. and Independence ave. sw. It helps disabled persons to obtain medical attention, offers counsel, arranges for vocational training and locates jobs. Some 3500 persons availed themselves of its services during fiscal 1948, and 321 of these completed their rehabilitation. The annual earnings of these 321 persons one year after training are estimated at $605,332. This represents the value of useful work performed by persons who without help would have been a burden on their families or on the community.

But the program, though substantial, still misses many persons who need it, as evidenced by the agency's estimate that 7500 residents of Washington should have vocational rehabilitation. Moreover, the local investment in the program is not commensurate with the social gain it affords the District. For example, 45 persons who previously had been on relief rolls will earn this year an estimated $77,790—yet the District contribution is only $25,000 of the $225,000 annual budget for work here, the remainder being supplied by Federal funds. A larger District contribution, to extend the service to more people, probably will have to await a solution to the local revenue tangle. Meanwhile, however, the value of the rehabilitation service is demonstrating itself. It is the most enlightened kind of aid, since it enables the handicapped to help themselves.

No Help To Peace

In the heat of controversy over the Soviet Union's blockade of Berlin there is danger of being carried away from our basic objectives. That danger was pointedly illustrated in the address last night of Charles E. Saltzman, Assistant Secretary of State for the occupied areas, at the University of New Hampshire. Mr. Saltzman bluntly referred to the U.S.S.R. as an "aggressive dictatorship" and declared that the Soviet rulers have no intention of cooperating in the establishment of peace. He asserted that, while the United States is exerting its utmost effort to avoid war, "perhaps this will not be possible." Although Mr. Saltzman asserted that our policy must and does assume that it will be possible, the speech as a whole conveyed the impression that our Government is trying to burn bridges rather than build them.

To be sure, this representative of the State Department said nothing that is not being said by many other Americans. No doubt all of what he said can be justified by cold analysis of the European situation. But that is beside the point. In a delicate situation diplomats often find it the part of wisdom not to blurt out all that they think and feel. So far as we can see this kind of talk only complicates the task of Secretary Marshall in Paris and adds to the very unrest that the Russians themselves are trying to create. It may also raise questions as to our own singleness of purpose; for while Dr. Philip C. Jessup gave the Security Council assurance that the United States will be ready to discuss with the Soviet Union all questions relating to Germany the moment the blockade has been lifted, Mr. Saltzman was saying that the State Department knows that the Russians have no intentions of cooperating for peace.

No less disturbing are the rumors that the United States is about to open its arms to the Franco dictatorship in Spain. That would be equivalent to waving a red flag in the face of the Russians and leaving many democratic peoples puzzled as to the principles for which we stand. If our objective were to widen the breach between ourselves and Russia, these moves would be understandable. But no such objective can rationally be adopted at this time. To be sure, the United States, Great Britain and France are vigorously pressing their case against the Kremlin before the Security Council. But it is a move toward peace and not war. Every realist knows, moreover, that if this effort to end the blockade of Berlin through the mobilization of world opinion is successful, there will still remain the task of working out a settlement of the inflammable German problem.

Meanwhile, every note of hostility that is sounded on this or the other side of the Atlantic tends to undo what we are spending billions of dollars to accomplish under the Marshall Plan. Recovery can scarcely flourish under war clouds. Businessmen withhold their investments; governments go slow with their recovery plans; and people in general lose heart in their struggle for stability if they are faced by the danger of a new conflict that may wipe out everything they have done. It is this fear and sense of hopelessness on which communism feeds. The struggle between the East and the West is in large part a matter of Russia trying to prolong chaos as a fertile soil for communism and the democratic powers trying to buttress freedom by restoring life to shattered economic and social systems. In these circumstances every careless contribution to a war psychology plays into Moscow's hand.

We are not suggesting, of course, that the danger of conflict can be made to disappear by a smiling face or a repetition of a certain mumbo-jumbo. A threat to the peace does exist. But we do think that statesmen and citizens alike can contribute to a peaceful solution, without in any measure countenancing appeasement, by holding hostility in check and not taking an explosion for granted. It is strength, steadiness and firmness in adhering to the peaceful way of settling controversies that are needed. And it is well to remember that the need for these qualities is the greater because they are likely to be found only on one side.

Wilbur Cross

At an age when life is over for most men Professor Wilbur Lucius Cross, whose reputation as a scholar and man of letters had been long established, moved from his classroom at Yale to the office of Governor of Connecticut to begin one of the most successful and fruitful political careers in recent American history.

It was perhaps not remarkable that Professor Cross, a Democrat, should have been elected to the governorship in 1930, for the tide of dissatisfaction with everything Republican was then running high even in New England. What is remarkable is that he should have been three times reelected even after the tide had begun to recede. Even more remarkable is the record of reforms which he persuaded the Legislature, dominated by his political adversaries, to accept.

Part of the explanation, doubtless, was that Professor Cross understood much better than the professionals that "politics is the art of the possible." Although his tenure in office was in a decade when radical experiment had become the doctrine of his own party, he was content to propose only what there was reasonable hope of achieving. And although it was an age in which political passions were abnormally fierce, he never attacked the character or motives of those who opposed him. When he could he won them over by tact and compromise, when he could not he accepted his defeat with equanimity and good humor. As a campaigner he was greatly aided by his knowledge of the people and their ways of thought, for he was himself a rural Yankee by heritage and birth.

A liberal in politics, he was a conservative in education. He believed that an old-fashioned classical education is the best preparation for any sort of career and his academic and political achievements seem proof enough that he was right.

Indifferent Voters

Mr. George Gallup has been looking over the voting registration figures for New York City and doing a little work with his slide rule. In the past, it seems, New York has been a good index of the Nation's electoral temperature. If the rule holds true again, Dr. Gallup finds, fewer people are going to vote this November than in 1940 and perhaps than in 1936. In fact, the New York thermometer indicates a lower total ballot in proportion to eligible voters than in any presidential contest for the past 100 years.

Mr. Elmo Roper, who also earns his living by asking people all kinds of questions, gave up pre-election polling several weeks ago. The voting public, he decided, had already made up its mind on the candidates. The political oratory would make no significant difference in the outcome, already determined in favor of Governor Dewey. If Dr. Gallup's prognosis is correct an equally large group of potential voters have made up their minds in another fashion; they don't care which candidate wins. At least they don't care enough to register and go to the polls on election day.

We do not think the American public is losing interest in the functioning of democratic government. Rather, this drop in registration suggests that a great many people see no compelling issue in the present contest between Mr. Truman and Mr. Dewey. And they do not seem to think Mr. Wallace, who certainly offers a contrast to both the others, merits their votes. Without strong impulse to exercise their franchise, some 11 million who might go to the polls in a "normal" election are going to stay home, it appears from the Gallup scoreboard.

Ironically, these stay-at-homes might make the difference in outcome that would upset Mr. Roper's calculations. The majority of them, apparently, would vote Democratic rather than Republican. But of this there is no proof. It may be that they are willing to have Governor Dewey elected by reason of their silence but are not sufficiently impressed to give him the benefit of their votes.

Montgomery Charter

Montgomery County is left free by a ruling of the Maryland Court of Appeals to go ahead with its referendum on the adoption of a modern charter form of government in the November election. As we understand the court's decision, it also reversed the previous ruling of the Montgomery County Circuit Court to the effect that a clause in the proposed charter is unconstitutional. That should have the happy effect of eliminating petty technicalities from the contest and bringing before the voters the clear-cut issue of adopting the charter on its merits.

Since the charter movement was first inaugurated in Montgomery County it has had our sympathy, as has the charter movement in the District of Columbia. In both instances the basic idea is to modernize the machinery of local government and make it more responsive to the people. That is a cause worthy of the best efforts of all the county's leading citizens. The charter has been drawn up by a bipartisan group of conscientious citizens. It embodies the principle of home rule that is dear to the hearts of all Americans. It aims at greater efficiency of public service—a cause that no taxpayer can afford to ignore. We suspect, too, that it reflects a prevalent public feeling that local government should be more concerned with supplying the needs of the people than with partisan controversy. Whatever defects the proposed charter may have—and a new government is always subject to improvement when it gets into operation—its adoption would certainly open the door to better government in Montgomery County.

Knowing The Score

The obliging New York Telephone Co. is rendering a public service with respect to the World Series which we hope will commend itself to the brothers-in-the-cable at Chesapeake & Potomac. The device, is simple. When a news-hungry fan calls up to learn the time of day, he also gets the score. The famous monotone chant has been expanded to sound something like this: "The time is now 2:07; the score is Cleveland 2, Boston 1." We confess frankly our personal interest in this sort of thing. During the series the strain on our switchboard is tremendous, and we think we can speak feelingly for our press and radio colleagues. To some people there is no other news when the World Series is on. But newspapers and radio stations must nonetheless report on other things of importance, and their efforts are hampered when phone lines are tied up. Please, Mr. Chesapeake & Potomac, can't you help us out?

Carrier Bombing

"Taxpayer," in his letter of September 29, starts with the fallacious and argues to the absurd. He questioned whether atom bombs should be "trusted" to the B-36 which he claims can fly "barely 300 miles per hour" and must cover distances which prohibit the use of fighter escort; he doubts that the Air Force which averaged, he says, only one hit in eight over Germany could hit the target after getting there. He suggests that Navy carrier planes be given the job because they "perform true precision bombing" and would have fighter escort.

He seeks to condemn what the Air Force has today with what the Navy may be able to develop in the indefinite future. He admits that carrier planes have yet to be designed and built capable of carrying an atom bomb. Furthermore, the Navy today has no carrier-based bombers able to operate at the high altitude required by atomic bombing or even capable of carrying the bomb-sight necessary to hit a target from altitude.

His claim that "Navy carrier planes perform true precision bombing" is therefore ridiculous. The only "precision" bombing done by carrier planes is dive-bombing — an obviously impossible tactic for a plane large enough for the atom bomb, not to mention the effect of the explosion on an atomic dive-bomber which could get only a few thousand feet away from its bomb before the explosion.

Carrier-based bombers have a tactical radius of less than 800 miles and cannot attain even the B-36's 300 m.p.h. which he labels dangerous. Unless "Taxpayer" is willing to commit his tax-built carriers with their cargo of "scarce and expensive" atom bombs to the narrow land-locked Baltic, Mediterranean, or Black Seas, no carrier-based bomber could bomb Russia's vast interior or for that matter, even reach the Russian border. Even from these suicidal waters, the most important inner targets would be beyond range.

Looking at the fallacies with which he begins, we find that the B-36, far from being without fighter escort, has already demonstrated its ability to carry its own fighters inside its bomb-bays until needed. Moreover, no fighter escort is necessary for the kind of precision night radar bombing demonstrated by the B-29 attacks on oil storage tanks in July and August of 1945. As for the ability of the Air Force to hit precision targets in the face of the kind of opposition which the Navy never experienced in the Pacific, photographic proof is legion.

A Soda Is A Soda

Mr. Ralph Chillion's letter of October 4, complaining about receiving an ice cream soda made with chocolate sirup and vanilla ice cream when he asked for a chocolate soda, serves to illustrate a general rule of semantics. The rule is: the same words do not necessarily mean the same thing to different people.

Mr. Chillion asks "Don't the people in Washington know the difference between chocolate and vanilla?" The answer is that of course Washingtonians are able to differentiate between chocolate and vanilla but that a chocolate soda here means one made with chocolate sirup and vanilla ice cream.

I know that this definition of a chocolate soda is not peculiar to Washington because it is the one used in the Chicago area. I believe that if Mr. Chillion has occasion to travel a bit more, he will find that the Washington definition is a more widespread one than he presently suspects.

Anzio Veterans

I sincerely hope that the remainder of the series entitled "The Facts Behind the Berlin Crisis" by Ferdinand Kuhn jr., is based on more accurate facts than that used in paragraph three of the October 4 issue, describing the Second Armored Division as "The Veterans of Anzio."

While all of us at Anzio would have more than welcomed the real fighting men who comprised that gallant division, the fact remains that it never got closer than Sicily—leaving there before Anzio was launched—and never was on the Italian mainland. Those of us who were on that famous beachhead are rather jealous of the fact and do not care to see the list of troops who were there enlarged by the addition of units who never were there, however famed their own battle records might otherwise be.

Unconstitutional Act

On page 8 of your edition of October 4 there appears an article by the United Press on the opening of the October, 1948, term of the Supreme Court of the United States. In the article the statement is made that the Supreme Court has not declared an act of Congress unconstitutional since Mr. Justice Black became a member of the Supreme Court in 1937.

The fact is that the Supreme Court did declare an act of Congress unconstitutional in 1943 and that Mr. Justice Black concurred in the result. See Tot v. United States, 319 U. S. 463. The particular legislation involved was Section 2(f) of the Federal Firearms Act.

Racial Justice

At long last interpretations of our Federal organic laws have yielded to the exigencies of justice. I refer to the recent rulings that South Carolina Democrats must enroll Negroes and grant them full rights in party affairs; that Atlanta school teachers' salaries are discriminatory; that certain counties in Virginia must provide equal facilities for white and Negro students, and that Oklahoma University's barring a Negro graduate student is unconstitutional.

These decisions, while confirming that needs and means alone should determine just and useful educational appropriations and that demagogic methods must give way to democratic methods on the electoral scene of any democracy, mean that the Negro will, henceforth, receive due credit for his increased and increasing taxability. As is fitting, this credit can only be beneficial to him through equal enjoyment of the objects available because of his increased production-consumption volume due to his increase in population and productivity.

As a concrete demonstration that the Negro has grown into "good pickings" as the tax-maker understands that phrase, I point out that the handful of Negroes in the District of Columbia—only about 1.5 per cent of the total United States Negro population—in 194" earned about 280 million dollars.

But District of Columbia Negroes are poor because only an ugly employment pattern ban prevails in this hodge-podge that is District of Columbia economy. Recent reports indicate that 50 per cent of all Negroes employed in Cleveland are employed by heavy industry. Another 600 are employed by the Cleveland Transit Co. They carry on quite a volume of business there—taking a commodity here, working on it there, fabricating it here, transporting it yonder, and consuming it at last. This means more jobs, more wealth, more taxation. Hence the Negro's somewhat bulky economic stature means more taxes; more taxes mean more public funds of which justice demands that he receive his share. EDWARD ALFORD.

Republic Or Democracy?

Practically all newspaper, magazine, book writers and columnists write and talk about the United States as a "democracy" and refer to our "democratic form of government."

These terms are misnomers and, no doubt, have influenced hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of people, to vote the Democratic ticket because they have been told "This is a democracy."

The United States is not a "democracy." It is a "republic."

I asked the man I considered the highest authority to give me the historical facts. Here is his answer:

"The founding fathers had very little to say about it (democracy) because the word at the time of our Revolution, was not quite respectable. It had acquired the connotation of 'mobocracy.' Jefferson, being something of a classical scholar, used both republic and democracy in their original senses, and applied democracy to our local self-government only and republic to our State and national governments. When he came to describe our system as a whole, he wrote of our 'democratic-republic' and he called his party 'the Democratic-Republic Party.' But when he shortened this, he never spoke of his Democratic Party but of his Republican Party.

"Strictly and historically speaking, a democracy is a state government by popular assembly of the whole body of eligible voters—as in the rural communities of ancient Greece, the Things and Moots of our Teutonic forbears, the New England town meeting, and similar gatherings which elect executives and pass laws in some of the Swiss Cantons. It is obviously impossible to handle elections and lawmaking in this way in any but small communities, and if one insists on this strict interpretation of democracy, there cannot be many democracies left in this country outside of the New England villages.

"I gather, however, that we Americans, at a pretty early date, conceded that communities in which the executives were chosen directly by popular vote, like the mayors of our cities, were democracies, while governments indirectly chosen (by a college of electors or a legislative body, as in France) are republics. So even though you concede that our system of local self-government is democratic, the Federal Government cannot be called a democracy so long as the provisions for an electoral college in the Constitution are not amended."

In the June 14 issue of the Saturday Evening Post appeared an editorial, with the heading: "Our Form of Government Is Republican."

I suggest that Mr. Dewey and Mr. Warren and all the speakers and writers for the Republican Party, start right now to talk about "the republic" and our "republican form of government."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Dulles' Opposition

ALTHOUGH the inauguration of a new President is more than three months off, a remarkable pulling and hauling match is already on over the position of Secretary of State in what will presumably be a Dewey Cabinet. Rarely, if ever, has such a contest begun so far in advance of the counting of the votes.

Central figure in the race for the prize is Governor Dewey's close friend and intimate adviser on foreign policy, John Foster Dulles. Until recently it was regarded as a certainty beyond any doubt that Dulles would be Dewey's Secretary of State.

But of late he has been the target of attacks that have come from two directions. From both the Left and the Right and for entirely opposite reasons the crossfire has concentrated on Dulles.

To the Left, and especially the extreme Left, Dulles is a terrifying Halloween bogey representing monopoly capitalism, intriguing cartels and sinister fascist conspiracy. At the Wallace third-party convention in Philadelphia speakers were always sure of getting an angry hiss out of their audience at the mere mention of Dulles' name.

Quite apart from this absurd caricature, honest liberals have been concerned with Dulles' far-reaching corporate connections through the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, of which he is senior partner. Sullivan & Cromwell has so many foreign clients that it is organized like the State Department, with separate desks for each leading foreign nation. Since these clients were the rich and powerful of Europe before World War II, they were closely linked to the cartels that dominated most of Europe's trade in the period between the wars.

THIS LENDS color to the picture of Dulles as a master-mind directing the machinations of the combines that reached across national boundaries and ignored totalitarian ideologies when it was convenient to do so. These critics on the Left represent Dulles as seeking to put the old cartels back together again.

The critics on the Right do the Dulles portrait in entirely different colors. They represent him as a churchly figure, absorbed in the peace efforts of the Federal Council of Churches, practically eligible for a halo.

This man, they say, can't possibly be tough enough with Russia. In the bosom of the Federal Council he is susceptible to pacifism and who knows what dangerous radicalism.

In part, at least, this line comes from one or more of the rival candidates for the job. Strange as it may seem to those who have watched him in action in the Senate, holding the appropriation axe over the budget for the State Department and the European Recovery Program, one of these candidates is reported to be the ambitious Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. Here in Washington he is credited with leaking the story that Dulles was responsible for the appointment of Alger Hiss, accused before the House Un-American Activities Committee of being a Communist, to head the Carnegie Foundation.

OPPOSITION to Dulles comes also from those both in Washington and Berlin who are ardent in support of Gen. Lucius D. Clay's policy of firmness in the German capital. They look on Dulles with dark suspicion. A memorandum of an off-the-record talk which he made before the Overseas Press Club in New York was sent to Berlin and is frequently cited as proof of his opposition to the Clay policy.

In spite of all this—perhaps because of it—Dulles remains the choice of his long-time friend for the key foreign policy post. Dulles is in fact Dewey's Secretary of State today. When he flew from Paris this week, it was to give Dewey a complete and thorough briefing on the latest moves before the United Nations, where Dulles serves as a member of the United States delegation.

Among warm admirers of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg there has been a move to push forward their champion and hero for the much-coveted position. But Vandenberg has persistently said no to this move, invariably stating his belief that Dulles would get the No. 1 Cabinet job.

Vandenberg considers it his assignment to keep the bipartisan foreign policy alive in the Senate. He knows that he will have to work with Democrats as well as Republicans and that was the objective of his conciliatory speech of the other evening. Dewey to Dulles to Vandenberg is the likely play when the congressional season opens.

Rose Inspiration

The Potomac Rose Society of the District has presented its twelfth annual rose show. What a lovely display, ranging from the crimson glory to the miniature roses. What a sight to have seen . . . what a sight to have missed.

As I gazed upon this colorful, fragrant arrangement, my thoughts went back to my mother who quoted an old verse to me years ago when I gave her the first single bloom from my garden.

"Whatsoe'er of beauty yearns and yet reposes, blush and bosom and sweet breath took a shape in roses."

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Ace Up Vishinsky's Sleeve

IN PARIS, there have been many arch hints from the Soviets that a big surprise is in store. Despite the air of mystery there is not a great deal of doubt about what Mr. Andrei Vishinsky has up his sleeve. When the time is ripe, he will propose a complete evacuation of all occupation troops from Germany.

There is plenty of evidence that the Kremlin is preparing to play this ace—the Cominform declaration calling for evacuation of all troops, the Korean precedent, the obviously inspired articles in the Soviet-controlled German press. More striking evidence is provided by Western intelligence reports that the Russians are busily organizing a reliable pro-Russian German militia in eastern Germany.

In recent weeks there has been a steadily increasing influx of German prisoners of war into the Soviet zone. Most German prisoners returned from Russia have been bedraggled, half-starved creatures. But these are all healthy, well-fed specimens. All of them are graduates of the Soviet Union's "Antifas"—Communist indoctrination camps—and most of them have served in the Von Seydlitz army of German prisoners.

These men are being introduced into the eastern zone German police force, which is clearly designed to become a thoroughly reliable pro-Russian militia. This militia is doubtless intended quickly to seize power for the Communists if an unconditional evacuation of Germany does take place. But it is not likely that the Western powers will be sufficiently idiotic to accept any Soviet evacuation proposal unconditionally. Then the militia will no doubt fill another role.

FOR THE Kremlin is expected to follow the pattern established in Korea. First, with much fanfare, will come the evacuation proposal, and then, with more fanfare, an announcement that the Russian occupation forces are being drastically reduced. The Russian-controlled German militia could then step neatly into the shoes of any departing Russian soldiers.

There is no doubt at all that such a maneuver would be highly effective. It would be designed to make up for the immense loss of prestige which the Russians and their Communist allies have suffered in Germany as a result of the Berlin blockade. And since occupation troops are no more popular in Germany than elsewhere, the maneuver would certainly in large measure succeed.

There is one obvious way in which this Soviet ace could be trumped. The Western powers could simply forestall it by being the first to propose a total evacuation of Germany, under certain conditions. One condition would be free elections carried out under United Nations inspection and the disarming of the Soviet-trained militia. Guaranties against a rearmed, totalitarian Germany would be another. Finally, the United States could offer France and western Europe military lend lease and guaranties against aggression from any source.

Those who favor such a move by the Western powers argue that even if the Russians were to accept the conditions there can never be a better time than the present for evacuating Germany. By reason of the Berlin blockade, anti-Russian and anti-Communist feeling is now so strong in Germany that even widespread ballot fixing in the eastern zone could not result in a pro-Soviet German government.

IN FACT, the experts believe that the Russians would react by accepting the proposal immediately "in principle" and would then make agreement impossible. The Russians themselves, of course, know the strength of anti-Communist feeling in Germany, for which Soviet policy is responsible. They would almost certainly demand vast reparations and a voice in the Ruhr, knowing that the Western powers could accept neither demand. Moreover, they would insist on continued ownership of German industries in the eastern zone, which would make it possible for them to keep a stranglehold on their new economic empire in Germany. This demand too would be refused.

Thus the probable net effect of such a dramatic initiative by the Western powers would be simply that the advantages which the Kremlin no doubt gleefully anticipates from its forthcoming big surprise would accrue instead to the West. Even so, the Western powers are not likely to forestall the Kremlin in this way. It would be difficult enough for all key figures in the United States and Britain to reach agreement in a short time on so basic a change in policy. And it is quite certain that the French would bitterly oppose a move which they would see as a prelude to turning France over again to the tender mercies of the German nationalists.

Yet some sort of dramatic development in Western policy toward Germany is by no means impossible. For one fact is increasingly clear. The Marshall Plan forced the Soviet Union on the defensive. The blockade of Berlin has reversed the tide. And some way must be found for the Western powers to seize the initiative again.

California Asks Aid in Fight on Bookmaking

The Federal Communications Commission was asked yesterday to aid California in enforcing that State's laws against bookmaking. The California Public Utilities Commission wants FCC to aid in barring the use of interstate telegraph and telephone lines to give racing and other sporting events news to California gambling establishments.

The requets, if granted, might put a crimp in the Nation-wide business of gambling on horse racing by remote control.

The petition said that the Continental Press Service has leased a Western Union Telegraph Co. wire to transmit information on sporting events, particularly horse racing, to ilegal gambling houses in California.

Two courses are open to FCC. It may order a hearing on the petition, or rule that such action is unwarranted. During the war Paul A. Porter, then chairman of the FCC, made a voluntary agreement with Western Union to discontinue such service. That action resulted in releasing 19,000 miles of leased wire services for war uses.

Television Not Luxury, Webster of FCC Says

Television is more than merely a luxury or amusement, Federal Communications Commissioner Edward M. Webster said yesterday.

He was disagreeing with remarks to that effect by J. M. Souby, Association of American Railroads solicitor arguing for first consideration for the railroads, as essential services, in the commission's assignment of radio frequencies. The FCC is hearing arguments on a proposed new allocation of frequencies for so-called mobile services, under which the roads would lose 19 of the 60 frequencies now assigned them.

Souby said the 60 frequencies the railroads want equal only one-half of the space of a television channel, and the roads' needs should come ahead of such "luxury" or "amusement". Webster said television helps keep the public informed, adding:

"I don't know of anything that takes precedence over an informed public."

Souby predicted all major railroads eventually will use radio to increase safety.

In addition to the AAR, several individual railroads are taking part in the hearing in an effort to keep the frequencies now available to them, or to get more wave lengths.

Rural Power Group Attacks Hoover Body

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association yesterday charged that advisers to the Hoover Commission are antagonistic to the rural electrification program.

The charges were made in the association's magazine, Rural Electrification. They came as the 12-man Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, met for a two-day session here.

The article entitled "Private Power Cracks the Whip," listed the members of the Hoover Commission, and added: "It is dangerously lacking in any majority of members like Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) who are friends of the rural electrification program and the people's public power program."

One of the members selected for attack was Dean Acheson, former Undersecretary of State. "In the late 1930s," the article stated, "Acheson's law firm represented the Alabama Power Co. in the only case directly challenging the legality of REA [Rural Electrification Administration] in its history."

Two "task forces" are preparing data for the commission, both made up of interests engaged in work for private utility companies, the magazine charged.

One of the two, it said, is headed by Price, Waterhouse and Co., New York accounting firm, now serving 16 private utilities.

The other is another New York accounting firm, Haskins and Sells. Both firms, it said, "have a much greater than average preponderance of clients in the private utility field."

The magazine further charged that Sidney A. Mitchell, who, it says, is listed in "Who's Who" as a director of American Gas & Electrical Co., is one of Hoover's chief advisers.

A. G. & E. is the holding company controlling the Appalachian Power Co., the magazine states "which in turn launched an all-out attack to swallow up a Virginia rural electric cooperative last spring. Mitchell's father was chairman of the board of Electric Bond & Share before he died in 1944."

Officials of the Rural Electrification Administration were quick to disavow any knowledge of the attack. They pointed out that the magazine is published by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, and has no Government connection.

However, the attack is along the lines that former Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, administrator of REA, has carried on against private utility companies for months. Wickard, however, has never mentioned the Hoover commission.

The association declared that its investigation of the Hoover group has disclosed "an amazing story with startling implications for the rural electrification program."

It said that the Hoover commission defends its selection of the two accounting firms "on the ground that all accounting firms have some private utility clients.

"There is little hope that the rural electrification program will get fair consideration in any recommendation based on the reports of these firms," the magazine states.

Investigations of Rural Electrification Administration and policies seem to be aimed at handing the electrification of the remaining two million American farms over to the private power industry," the article concludes.

Chest Campaign Blow at Reds, 80 Community Leaders Told

Support of the newly launched Red Feather campaign will strike a blow at communism, while strengthening democracy, a former Assistant Secretary of State declared yesterday.

Shaw

G. Howland Shaw, addressing a meeting of men's civic service clubs in the Hotel Washington as the 1949 Chest drive officially got under way, warned:

"If this campaign fails, which God forbid, there is one place where there will be genuine satisfaction—and that is Moscow."

"That," he told some 80 Washington community leaders, "is the challenge that is before you. Do you want to make a contribution to the democratic way of life in this life and death struggle . . . or are you going to be indifferent?"

Because of the "real Communist danger" facing this country, the drive for funds is of "far more than usual significance," Shaw said. The campaign seeks to raise $4,566,790.

Private Agencies Praised

One good way to promote democratic institutions, the veteran of 20 years' Community Chest service declared, is "through the private agency" in the field of health and welfare.

If citizens allow the Government to become a "really effective substitute for private initiative," he asserted, that will be the time the United States "is no longer the United States.'"

"There is nothing inevitable in the democratic way of life," Shaw, who heads the Chest-sponsored Bureau of Rehabilitation, emphasized. "If it goes out, it will be because you and I have not adequately demonstrated our belief in it."

Morgan Beatty, Washington news analyst and another key luncheon speaker, also spoke of the East-West conflict. He described the Berlin crisis as a symbol to the world of Russian aggression. He saw "hopeful aspects," however, in the North American continent's tremendous "industrial capacity."

The Rev. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, in his invocation, urged residents to assume their rightful "sense of responsibility."

Government Unit Rally

At another luncheon, in Hotel Burlington, 60 top chairmen in the Government unit drive conferred. C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, chairman, presided.

Thousands of volunteer workers, in the meantime, began ringing doorbells canvassing in behalf of the Chest. Funds raised will be used to operate 104 Red Feather health, welfare and recreation agencies, and the USO.

"Chest workers are definitely engaged in God's work," 50 District chairmen and team captains of the Prince Georges County Community Chest were told at a kickoff dinner last night by Edward J. Keyes, executive director for the federation campaign.

"No community would be worth living in for ourselves and our families if its citizens failed to meet the basic human needs of people," Keyes said at the dinner meeting, held in the First Methodist Church, Hyattsville.

In Arlington, the Chest drive will be highlighted today by a display in the J. C. Penney Co. window on Wilson blvd. From noon until 9 p. m. a block of ice containing many small red feathers will be shown, together with prizes donated by county merchants.

Kitchen Blast Injures Woman

A 39-year-old woman was reported in critical condition at Alexandria Hospital last night as the result of an unexplained explosion which rocked her apartment in Fairfax County near Alexandria yesterday morning.

Mrs. Annie B. Coffee suffered first, second and third degree burns of the body in the blast, which occurred as she was preparing to cook breakfast in her apartment at 302 Belleview ave., in the Belleview Apartment development just off the Mount Vernon Memorial blvd., 2 miles south of Alexandria.

Her husband, Frank E. Coffee, who was still asleep in a bedroom, was uninjured in the explosion.

Thomas Dodson, manager of the apartment building, said the explosion apparently was due to gas, but said he could not explain Mrs. Coffee's use of a match, since the kitchen stove had an automatic pilot light. He said representatives of the Rosslyn Gas Co. had inspected the stove and all fixtures in the building and found them in perfect order.

Fairfax County police speculated that the pilot light might have been blown out by a draft some time during the night, resulting in an accumulation of gas.

P. & O. Tries TV but Riders See Very Little of Ball Game

By Arthur Edson

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—Television boarded a moving train today and passengers, whizzing along at 80 miles an hour, watched the World Series, after a fashion.

Technically, it was surprisingly good, so good that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad may install it as a regular fixture on its better trains. But, it wasn't much of a way to watch a ball game.

The experiment began at Washington's Union Station. The set was in a special car hooked to a New York-bound train.

First, Miss Frieda Hennock, the blond Federal Communications Commissioner, came aboard. Torgeson singled to right.

Miss Hennock and Frank Norton, who works for a radio manufacturer, were photographed in front of the set. When she moved away the baseball fans learned Cleveland was now at bat.

Miss Hennock then posed—again in front of the screen—with J. H. Wallis, electronics engineer for the B. & O. They finally moved. Al Dark of the Braves lashed out a single.

Then the science writers moved in. They marvelled at the way the set was built, how it worked under high tension wires, how—.

A baseball fan fought his way through to ask, "What's the score?"

"I don't know," said Norton.

I got off here, and I am now trying to reach the B. & O., to let them know who won.

Africa Held Needing Christianity Soon

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 7 (AP).—Christianity must win Africa in the near future or it never will, Chief Albert Luthuli of the Zulu Tribe said in a speech to the World Mission Assembly tonight.

Luthuli

The simple African culture, he said, is crumbling under the thrust of western civilization's commerce and industry "with tragic results" for a people "quite unprepared for such a dramatic and swift change in their way of life."

It is imperative, the chief warned the 3000 assembly delegates, that the Christian church attain the same missionary standard in Africa as exists in other overseas areas. He added:

"We especially need help in the field of education and social rehabilitation, with special emphasis on securing and training African leadership, both clergy and lay."

Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, the man who conceived the idea of the World Mission Assembly, previously had outlined needs of an expanded Protestant missionary program.

He said "we never will get Christ before the world today if we do not have bigger plans and exercise more tremendous power than we have exerted in the past."

A few minutes before Chief Luthuli met Gov. Thomas J. Herbert today, he remarked:

"We don't have the woods in South Africa that you have here. It came as quite a surprise to me to discover that America is quite a jungle."

VA Trying To Save Jobs of 63 Employes

Sixty-three Veterans' Administration workers who seek special White House and civil service action to save their jobs, "are being given every consideration to 'save' them," VA officials said yesterday.

"We hope we can keep most of them on the job," said one personnel spokesman.

The employes involved hold war-service and temporary ratings in the central office of the claims service here, adjudicating claims filed by veterans and their dependents. Most are veterans, with employment ranging from two to six years, representatives of the 63 said.

All participated in a competitive adjudicator examination in February, and received eligible grades for permanent civil service status, their spokesman said, but to hold their jobs they must compete against others with long experience ratings.

A Civil Service Commission ruling requires that all these employes with nonpermanent ratings must be off employment rolls by December 15. Nineteen of the 63 have dismissal notices effective October 15, and the rest are slated to go November 15 or December 15, they said.

Russians Report Great Loss of Life In Earthquake

Moscow, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—A violent earthquake rocked Ashkahbad, capital of the Turkmenian Republic, at 2:17 p. m., Wednesday, causing a great loss of life and destruction to property, the official news agency Tass said today.

Tass reported that the Soviet government is rushing aid to the disaster area.

The seismographic station here said the Ashkahbad quake was the worst of 25 earthquakes recorded during the past half century. The last serious disturbance in central Asia, in 1929, reached a force of seven points, while yesterday's at Ashkahbad was a force nine quake, the station said.

(A fordham University spokesman said the force of quakes is measured from zero to 10 points. The Turkmenian quake was placed by the Fordham spokesman at between and 8 and 8½.)

Coast Guard League Elects Pennsylvanian

Boston, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—John P. Henrie of Glenside, Pa., today was elected national commander of the National Coast Guard League at the closing session of the organization's four-day third annual convention here.

He succeeds James S. Hunt of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The league is composed of Coast Guard veterans and former members of the Spars, the women's auxiliary.

UMW Makes Taft-Hartley Act Its Target

Cincinnati, Oct. 7 (AP). — The United Mine Workers voted today to work for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and the defeat of all but one of those lawmakers who helped enact it.

The aims are the same as those of the AFL, CIO and other independent unions, but John L. Lewis and his miners were proceeding strictly on their own political trail.

The miners' convention agreed to support Senator John S. Cooper, (R. Ky.) for reelection and to work for six Democratic Senatorial candidates.

Cooper Is Exception

The one exception in the drive to beat Taft-Hartley act supporters was Senator Cooper. John T. Jones, director of labor's Non-Partisan League, the mine workers' political arm, advised Kentucky miners that Cooper had an otherwise good labor record.

Jones said that Virgil Chapman, the Democratic candidate, on the basis of his record in the House, would be "possibly the worst enemy labor could have in the Senate, even considering Senators Taft and Ball."

The CIO's Political Action Committee, however, is supporting Chapman along with other Democratic candidates in Kentucky.

GOP Chief Target

Most of the men marked for defeat by the Lewis organization are Republicans, although the UMW chief two days ago severely criticized the President and said Mr. Truman was "unfitted" to be President.

The UMW announced its support of Democratic senatorial candidates Matthew Neely of West Virginia, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, former Governor Kerr of Oklahoma and James E. Murray of Montana. In addition the UMW is opposing Republican Senators Brooks of Illinois and Robertson of Wyoming. Those are the principal States where the mine workers may influence elections.

Independent Proposal Beaten

The convention overwhelmingly defeated a resolution to create an independent labor party, proposed by Mike Demchak and Allan Croyle of St. Michael, Pa.

The UMW president told the convention in connection with the 100 million-dollar (M)-a-year welfare and pension fund that the best way to fight communism was to give labor a share of the gains under a free enterprise system.

He said the union intends to "move in" and insist on spreading the work "if evil days come across the industry."

"If there are only three days (a week) work left in the industry, we'll all have three days work. If we are going to starve, we'll all starve together."

He did not say how he would accomplish this.

The convention voted to make Lewis' birthday, February 12—also Lincoln's birthday—a holiday in the coal industry. The delegates also agreed to pay the $30,000 in fines levied against the UMW boss in strikes of 1946 and 1948.

Meat Drops 2 to 20 Cents

warned against expecting any permanent meat price break before 1950.

In an announcement, the department here said the Nation's livestock feed situation—on which the meat supply depends—is "the best in history," up 8 per cent over the previous record production of 1946. This will mean more pork, chicken and milk in 1949, the department said, but beef will lag.

Wholesale Drop Shows Up

Matter of fact, added the department, the beef supplies must be reduced somewhat before they can be increased, because animals must be held back from slaughter for breeding. The Department pointed out it requires about two years to produce a slaughter steer.

Yesterday the drop in wholesale prices of livestock and hogs slowed up, holding firm or declining only slightly. James Elliott, president of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, called the whole meat price skid simply "a temporary flurry."

And to further wet-blanket the cheerful meat news came a prediction from the United States Agriculture Department's poultry expert, C. C. Warren, at Annapolis, that turkeys this year will be higher—more than 70 cents a pound. The reason: fewer turkeys because of higher feed prices.

many years. He gained minor office after Ford signed a closed shop agreement in 1941 with the UAW-CIO.

He served as vice president of Local 400 from April, 1944, to April, 1945, when he ran for president and was defeated. In April, 1946, he again was elected vice president, but was defeated for reelection the following year.

Bolton worked a short time afterwards at the Ford plant, then took a leave of absence and went on the union's inactive list, where he since has remained.

UAW-CIO headquarters recalled him as a Reuther supporter prior to the 1946 convention, when Reuther won the presidency. At that time Bolton voted for Reuther's opponent, R. J. Thomas. However, a spokesman said, he never was regarded as an enemy of the administration.

Church Votes School Aid Goal

Philadelphia, Oct. 7 (AP).—The United Lutheran Church of America today adopted a $6,000,000 aid program for its seminaries and colleges.

The money, to be raised in 1950, will be in addition to the usual financial aid given the institutions and will be used largely for "pressing building needs."

Adoption of the aid program for higher education came at the end of more than two hours of discussion by the more than 500 delegates attending the 16th biennial conference of the church.

There was some opposition.

Art Grade, Milwaukee businessman and member of Northwestern Lutheran Theological Seminary, recommended the goal be cut in half. The figure was called "too great," by Dr. Joseph D. Krout of Harrisburg, secretary of the Pennsylvania Synod.

But Dr. Levering Tyson, president of Muhlenberg College in Allentown, Pa., urged adoption of the additional aid program.

He pointed out that no matter what political party controls Congress after the November elections, "a Federal aid program for higher education probably will be adopted.

"The Lutheran Institutions will not be eligible, no matter how much is appropriated," Dr. Tyson added.

'Wrong Number' A Blood-Curdler

By Richard L. Coe

THE WARNER'S "Sorry, Wrong Number" turns out to be a chiller-diller of the iciest first water. If your blood craves violence, this one's for you, but be sure to see it from the beginning.

This is the film version Lucille Fletcher has written of her frequently aired radio drama about a woman who chances upon a telephone conversation that's plotting her own murder. With Barbara Stanwyck as the hysterical victim, the juicy role is in forceful hands and the picture as a whole is a neat stew of imminent violence.

Barbara, who's so good at playing such parts, is the hard, selfish daughter of the rich. She first laid eyes on Burt Lancaster at a college dance and quickly decided he was for her. She snags this poor, honest lad from a more pallid lass and tells her: "When I want something I fight for it and I usually manage to get it." This is the sort of line that Barbara always spits out with so much more steely determination than anyone else in the business, and it is the heart of the character she's playing.

Buy the young man the rich girl does, toting him all about Europe, setting him up as a v. p. of her father's impressive drug store kingdom. Burt's attempts to strike out on his own always brings a fit of heart trouble in her and, eventually, he's involved in filching drugs to make some money of his own. This brings him to grips with some mobsters, and to get hush money he hires a man from Murder, Inc., to loosen up his wife's insurance potential.

So there Barbara lies in her luxurious bedroom of a Sutton pl. manse, hearing the rumble over the bridge of trains whose roar, at 11:15, will drown out the sounds of her own murder. She watches the clock, she fiddles with her snazzy Edith Head nightie, she impatiently dials around town trying to crack down clews and help. It's an actress' dream, this part, and Barbara frets and stews and searches back into her past like a frantic kitten driven mad by catnip.

What weakness you may find in the film lies not so much in the necessary flashbacks, but in a flagging pace near the end. The final climax picks up just as the start promised, but there is a lag as the last pieces of the plot are fitted together. While this may be inherent in such a tour de force, the effect is that a half-hour radio play has been stretched a bit too far.

But this is a comparatively minor flaw in an otherwise superior movie chiller, acted to its back bicuspids by Miss Stanwyck and her efficient fellows. Director Antatole Litvak has this time socked home a curdling hit.

"SORRY, WRONG NUMBER." Paramount release produced by Hal Wallis and Anatole Litvak. Screen play by Lucille Fletcher from her half-hour radio drama. Directed by Litvak. Photographed by Sol Polito. Music by Franz Waxman. At the Warner.

Hey KIDS! Write a RADIO SLOGAN
Win up to $100 and be on the RADIO!

It's The Washington Post
SAINT MYSTERY COMIC SLOGAN CONTEST
Open to all grade school, junior high, and high school kids in the Washington area.
Try your hand at writing a catchy radio slogan for the new "Saint" mystery comic strip in The Washington Post. If you submit one of the ten best slogans you'll get $10. And you'll get a chance to step up to a microphone and sing, chant, yell, whisper or recite your slogan over the air. The one who does it best gets his (or her) $10 bill turned into $100. A record will be made of his slogan and he'll be hearing it on Washington radio stations as part of The Post's promotion on the "Saint" comic strip.
Here's What You Do:
First, begin by turning to the comic pages of The Post and get acquainted with "The Saint."
Next, decide what you want to say about this new mystery comic. Then say it—in a slogan, a jingle, what have you. With or without sound effects indicated—it doesn't matter.
Finally, write your slogan on a piece of paper, put on your name, address, age and school and send it to the "Saint Mystery Comic" Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. You may enter as many slogan ideas as you wish. Be sure your name and address are on each one.
The contest lasts until October 31. Entries received after October 31 will not even be opened. So get going—now. Read the Saint Comic in The Washington Post. Put on your thinking cap. Try your idea out on your family. Then send it in. In case two or more persons send in the same slogan, the one reaching the judges first will be considered to be the original, so it pays to get your ideas in right away.
JINGLE—HERE'S HOW! IT'S EASY TO WRITE A WINNING SLOGAN OR
Remember that radio slogan about another comic strip character? "It's a bird! It's a plane! It's S-u-p-e-r-man!" What's hard about that one? You can think up another equally simple, equally effective for "The Saint." Or maybe a jingle would be more along your line. Here's an example:
(Man's voice): The Saint is a pain to the cops.
(Girl's voice): They grab him, but then off he pops.
(Man): He goes after crime.
(Girl): And wins every time.
(Together): So Post readers think he is tops.
(Close harmony): You'll see him in the c-o-m-i-c-s ...
Easy? Sure! Didn't take two minutes. Corny? You bet! You can do lots better. And win $10—maybe $100. Let's go!

'Sofia' Proves Helter-Skelter Story of Balkans—at Met

By Orval Hopkins

A PICTURE like "Sofia," which opened yesterday at the Metropolitan, you got to approach it with the proper approach. I, for example, went over to the Met with a spring in my step, ruminating cozily over the tales of George Barr McCutcheon. George, as the more elderly disciples will attest, was a rare one with tales of the Balkans. Nothing was too improbable for George, though it must be safe to assume that he never saw "Sofia."

This was the wrong approach. Much too optimistic. For "Sofia" turns out to be a maudlin tale of a brave young American trying to smuggle some atomic scientists out of Bulgaria. One of the scientists is a beautiful Nordic type (Sigrid Gurie), who always looks as if she's about to weep with delight. Her husband, whom she had married out of pity, is knocked off by the opposition, so that all the young American has to do is pick up the marbles.

The Yankee is played by Gene Raymond, and his good man, Ali, a Turk, by Mischa Auer. I can see how they got Raymond into this, but Auer I cannot understand. Anyway, Raymond and Auer successfully stampede some sinister parties from the wrong side of the Iron Curtain, including one patterned after Ana Pauker, the Foreign Minister of Romania. There are slappings and sluggings and shootings and chases and some rather hurried lovemaking.

Through it all stalks Gene Raymond, looking almost incredibly like Dick Tracy, and giving the completely unintelligent performance for which he has been known so many years. Auer, as I attempted to indicate, has a role as straight as a string and just about as meaty. Miss Gurie is convincing enough, and a young lady named Patricia Morison is satisfactory as a woman of intrigue with the completely probable name of Magda Onescu.

There are newsreel shots of President Truman, Governor Dewey and the Cleveland Indians, at least one of whom has got to win. Also there's one of those Edgar Kennedy comedies.

D. C. May Raze Buildings for Parking Spaces

Potential Room For 475 Cars Seen In Structures Near Municipal Center

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

District Commissioners, seeking to augment the city's parking spaces, are giving serious consideration to the razing of several city-owned buildings near the Municipal Center, it was learned last night.

Clearing of the antiquated, rat-infested buildings on Indiana ave. and C sts. nw., would provide about 75,000 square feet of space or sufficient parking area to accommodate about 475 cars, according to Paul Chalupsky, District property officer.

District agencies located in the structures have already been requested to state their physical needs, but no action has been taken toward their removal because of the current shortage of District-owned space, Chalupsky said.

Four city-owned buildings in the area at 458 and 460 Indiana ave. nw. and 463 and 467 C st. nw., were vacated and razed in the fall of 1946 after the District Health Department reported them as "rat-infested."

At the same time, three other buildings in the 400 block of Indiana ave. nw., were scheduled for razing and bureaus located there were transferred to 462 Indiana ave. nw. The action was taken to save fuel and to eliminate rodent-breeding places.

Eventually the area is earmarked as the location of a second wing of the Municipal Center, matching the present structure, but thus far funds for the construction have not been available.

The Federal Diary starts on Page 1 today.

Alert Issued To Police on Night Driving

As part of Operation Safety and because a "crucial traffic period" is now at hand, Washington's traffic policemen have been alerted for "selective enforcement" of traffic regulations to prevent night accidents.

The American Automobile Association and Traffic Director George E. Keneipp issued warnings to motorists on the danger of skidding on fallen leaves.

Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller announced yesterday he has ordered all men in the traffic division to pay particular attention to cars with defective headlights and improper high-beam headlights, and to watch for speeding drivers and those who ignore stop signs.

This order, he said, was intended to stress for traffic officers the hazards of night driving, emphasized this month by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, sponsor of Operation Safety.

Miller also announced the seasonal traffic hazard under attack each month by Operation Safety will be included in the curriculum of the District Traffic School attended by persons seeking restoration of driving permits, and those who have been involved in accidents.

Starting with the 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. class tonight at the AIU offices in the Municipal Building, the safety program will be presented by Sergt. Walter Roy Ostrom.

Ostrom plans to reenact with model autos one or more of the four actual accidents in October, 1947, in which a pedestrian was killed in the dark hours of 6 to 8:30 p. m.

He also will show his classes two traffic films dealing with night driving, one emphasizing the increasing danger of drunk driving at this time of year.

Among Ostrom's pupils at tonight's class will be several boys aged from 16 to 18 who have been recommended for the course by Juvenile Court.

Man, 73, Injured When Struck by Bus

William C. Ridenour, 73, of 1417 Potomac ave. se., suffered a possible skull fracture late last night when he was struck by a bus while crossing 15th st. near his home.

Police said the bus driver was H. N. Wynkoop, jr., 21, of 405 10th st. ne. He told police he had one month's bus driving experience.

Four-year-old James Piatt, of 1714 T st. ne., suffered a possible skull fracture when he was struck by an automobile at 2:05 p. m. in the 1900 block of Montana ave. ne.

The child was reported in serious condition at Casualty Hospital. Police said the car was driven by Dorothy E. Stickley, 30, of 2224 R st. ne.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury yesterday exonerated William H. Wendling, 24, of 1738 G st. nw., a Capital Transit bus driver, in the traffic death of Miss Mary Barbieri, 34, of 4400 Jenifer st. nw.

Miss Barbieri, a drugstore clerk, was struck by a bus Tuesday night at Wisconsin ave. and Fessenden st. nw. Witnesses at the inquest testified she walked into the side of the bus.

Falls Church To Sell Bond Issue Oct. 26

The Falls Church city council last night set October 26 as the date it will sell a one-million-dollar bond issue to construct a new water supply system.

Discussion of the proposed issue was carried beyond midnight to iron out sontract wording. Among matters decided on in the prolonged talks was to seek bids in the first week in November on materials to be supplied for the project.

In setting October 26 to receive bids from financial houses for sale of the issue, the council also drew up a description of the bond issue.

The bonds will be of $1000 denomination and with interest rates not to exceed 6 per cent. The issue will be self-liquidating—water revenue will be used to pay off principal and interest.

The move marks Falls Church's first major financial credit venture. The former town became a second class Virginia city on August 6. The city's two financial advisers on bond sales, Donald Halsted of B. J. Van Ingen & Co., Inc., of New York, and Wilfred L. Goodwyn of Goodwyn & Olds of Washington were present at last night's council meeting.

Also present was W. Martin Johnson of the consulting engineers' firm of Wylie & Wilson, Lynchburg, Va., which drew up plans for the new water system.

The new water system would link Falls Church more directly to the District's Dalecarlia reservoir. The city now receives its water from Arlington County.

Fredrick County Fair Draws Thousands in Its 86th Year

720-POUND PORKER—Betty Hause of Hagerstown, Md., looks at a potential pork meal for several hundred. The grand champion sow, owned by Roy Crum of Frederick, Md., is a spotted Poland China. It weighs 720 pounds

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

COCK OF THE ROOST—Joyce Rinehart of Westminster, Md., holds the prize-winning, black, long-tailed Phoenix cock. The fowl is owned by John Kriner of Sellersville, Pa.. It took first prize yesterday at the Frederick Fair

Frederick, Md., Oct 7 (Spl.).—Ever old, ever new, the Frederick Fair this week is entrancing its thousands of devoted patrons as it has for 86 years.

The midway and spacious grounds afford a variety of diversions and entertainment, but fair officials continue to run the exhibition to stimulate interest in better farm production. Today's crowd of 25,000 was ample proof that a typical county fair is still popular.

To the Frederick Fair, almost everyone from miles around, even from neighboring States, has brought his choicest treasure, it seems, whether it be a lovely flower, a juicy red apple or even an enormous sow like the 720-pound champion of Roy Crum of Frederick.

Farmers and their wives, dressed for a gala day in their best finery, beam at the exhibits. They like to meet old friends, whom they may not meet again until next year's fair.

There's so much to be seen that one day at the fair is scarcely enough to cover the wonder of the household buildings, where cakes, pies, jellies and preserves, not to mention knitting, rug making, embroidery and dozen other feminine handicrafts, are on display.

Meanwhile, the band plays all the time and there is action aplenty for those who can tear themselves away to sit in the grandstand and watch the harness races.

At night the regular grandstand show is augumented by a musical comedy revue. Then there's the midway, where one may swing through the night in a ferris wheel or ride "Citation" on the hobby horses, or have one's fortune told—and perhaps view the freak show.

The Frederick Fair actually began 127 years ago. There were periods, however, when the exhibitions were suspended, notably during the Civil War and the two World Wars.

550 Attend Dinner for Home Show

More than 550 members of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington and guests attended a kickoff dinner last night at the Statler Hotel for the forthcoming National Capital Home Show Exposition.

The Home Show, sponsored by the association, will be at the National Guard Armory October 16 through 24.

Entertainment followed last night's dinner at which Edward R. Carr, past president of the National Association of Home Builders, was master of ceremonies.

Meanwhile, Betty and Jane Butterfield, 23-year-old twins, who live in Nebraska Hall at Arlington Farms, added their names to the list of girls seeking to win the Home Show queen contest.

The girl who is crowned queen of the show will receive a present—an all-aluminum cottage with furniture and equipment.

Postoffice Clerks to Meet

Local 140, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, will meet at 8:30 p. m. today at Masonic Temple, 8th and F sts. ne. A "boosters" meeting" will be held at 8 p. m.

District P-TA Congress Unit Approves Sex Education Film

The social hygiene committee of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers yesterday favorably reviewed the sex education movie, "Human Growth."

The film, which shows the development of the body and glands and the reproductive process, was run off at the twelfth annual Parent-Teacher Institute held at George Washington University.

At the conclusion of the showing, Mrs. Helen Dow, educational assistant for the D. C. Social Hygiene Society, asked for written comment. The 13 responses from committee members were unanimous in favoring the film. A majority said they would like their children to see it.

Although produced to teach the facts of life in grade and junior high school classrooms, the film cannot be shown to children here unless the Board of Education asks for it, Mrs. Dow said.

A special showing for educators will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the South Agriculture Department auditorium. Members of the Board of Education have been invited to attend by the Social Hygiene Society, which purchased the film from the University of Oregon.

At present, the film will be used to assist parents in explaining sex to children at home and will be available to all qualified organizations, Mrs. Dow said.

The sound film, 19 minutes long, is in color and is a movie within a movie. It opens with a classroom scene in which a teacher is explaining sex with the aid of a diagrammatic film and ends with the children asking questions.

St. Elizabeths Aide's Trial Begins In Lottery Case

The trial of Leo Lo Jacono, 38, of 3853 Halley ter. se., charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, opened yesterday in District Court.

Lo Jacono was arrested July 7 at St. Elizabeths Hospital, where he was a photographer, after a mental patient led police to him. Police had made several bets with the mental patient and had asked him to show them the man to whom he turned in the bets, they said.

Lo Jacono admitted taking several slips of paper and some money from the patient but denied he was accepting bets as such. He said the patient merely asked him "to hold" the slips of paper and the money for him. The trial will be resumed today.

District Man Picked Up in Md. Slayings

A 36-year-old Washington man was arrested by Baltimore police while he was drinking in a Camden st. bar last night after he reportedly talked "about the Glen Burnie murders."

Police said the man was being held on an open charge for investigation and questioning this morning.

They said they received a call from the tavern opposite Camden Station at about 3:30 p. m. The man was speaking freely about the double slaying of John Mahlan and Mary Kline, youthful Glen Burnie couple, who were found murdered more than two weeks ago, the report said.

Police said he indicated having had a hand in the crime, but questioning was deferred because they could not get a clear story from him.

In the only other development reported during the day on the mysterious double murder, police were checking the story of a convict who escaped from prison two days before the couple were killed.

Two assistants in the State's attorney's office at Baltimore and a city detective have gone to Ashland, Ky., to question the man, William Chesser.

Army Dredging Potomac to Deepen Channel and 'Raise' Park

The Washington Post

SILT FROM THE POTOMAC IS PIPED INTO EAST POTOMAC P ARK. REPORTER STANDS ON RIM OF EARTH DAM

Putting part of the bottom of the Potomac River on the top of East Potomac Park is under way at a high-pressure rate—16 hours a day.

It is a dual purpose job—begun early this month and to continue through November—of dredging the Potomac to maintain its required 24-foot channel, and using the "fill" from the dredging work to build up low spots in the park.

From the dredging operations just below the 14th st. railroad bridge, mud, sand and rocks are being scooped from the Potomac's bottom. The silt is then pumped hydraulically to an area one third of a mile long, adjoining the roadway on the Washington channel side of East Potomac Park.

The "fill" area, just below the tennis courts, comprises 50 acres surrounded by a dike 15 to 18 feet high. Pipes carry off the water from the filling work into the Washington Channel.

Most of the 327-acre East Potomac Park, completed in 1914, was "built" the same way, from mud flats and a swampy area. National Airport's site came into being through a similar operation—all thanks to upstream soil erosion pouring into the Potomac.

The Army's Corps of Engineers, which is conducting the work, plans to remove about $12,000 cubic yards of silt from the bottom of the Potomac in this manner.

"This is really taking 'nothing' and doing something with it," one Army engineer said. "It's the most economical type of dredging operation you can have."

Robert C. Horne, chief of the engineering division of National Capital Parks, with which the Army is cooperating in the work, said it is hoped that over a long period of years all of East Potomac Park can be "raised" in this manner.

More than two million linear yards of silt have already gone into the area, but that is only a mud flat compared to the amount of eroded soil which passes this way annualy via the Potomac.

In his recent book, "Road to Survival," William Vogt, chief of the Conservation Section of the Pan-American Union, states that during the past 100 years the Potomac River has carried more than half a billion tons of soil past Washington. This, he says, amounts to 75 tons of soil from each of the 7,400,000 acres that make up the drainage basin above Washington.

The Soil Conservation Service estimated that in 1947, 5,500,000 tons of sediment would flow by Washington, despite 20 soil conservation districts organized on the Potomac watershed.

A gambling case in which Dr. Max Schwartz, 54, of 2151 California st. nw. and Louis W. Dove, 40, of 1796 Columbia rd. nw. are charged with setting up a gaming table was continued to October 21 in Municipal Court yesterday.

Continuance was requested by Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson, who said the case is still being investigated, and that if the facts warrant, will be presented directly to the grand jury.

Schwartz and Dove were arrested Wednesday in Schwartz's apartment. Bond was continued at $2000 each.

Fay Not 'Naive' In Gaming Probe Launched in May

Polio Hits 2 In Family at Takoma Park

Three new polio cases, including a Takoma Park brother and sister, were reported in Greater Washington yesterday raising the area total for the year to 198.

The Takoma Park cases were 13-year-old Janet McKenzie and her 10-year-old brother, Edward, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson E. McKenzie of 397 Carroll ave. They are now being treated at Children's Hospital by Dr. William F. O'Donnell, and are improving, Mrs. McKenzie said yesterday.

The cases were diagnosed Wednesday night after the children complained of colds and dizziness. Dr. O'Donnell examined them and directed that they be taken to the hospital.

The father is employed by the Washington Daily News.

The third area case was a 7-year-old boy of the 2900 block of Northampton st. nw. The case made the District total for the year 105, as compared with 19 for this date last year.

The McKenzie children raised the near-by Maryland and Virginia total to 93, as compared with 27 for the same date last year.

Throughout Virginia, the total for the year is now 463, with one case in Lynchburg reported yesterday by the State Health Department.

U. S. Attorney Says Best Hope Is to Keep 100-Million Racket Here Under Control

George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District, yesterday said he was not "that naive" as to think the antigambling grand jury probe he launched in May could wipe out gambling here.

"We're not that naive as to think we can take the gambling instinct out of human nature," youthful-looking Fay told the Criminal Justice Association.

Stating that he never aspired to be a "crusader," Fay said the probe is geared only to "getting enough information to keep gambling under control."

Must Control Gambling

Experience in many large cities, he noted, clearly shows that gambling and serious crime are linked and encourage each other. To control crime, therefore, he said, it is necesary to control gambling.

Fay, who has previously estimated the yearly gambling take here at more than 100 million dollars, observed he still believes "I had a good sound basis for asking for the special grand jury investigation."

The probe, he said, has made "satisfactory progress to date for the limited resources we've had available." He announced plans to make a report on results "in the not too distant future."

Need More Police

Earlier, the association meeting in the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. building, 723 13th st. nw., was told Washington, with 2.1 police employes for every 1000 inhabitants, needs 180 additional policemen to attain the average of 2.3 policemen for every 1000 inhabitants in other cities with more than a quarter million population.

Recommendations of more policemen was made by Edward J. Flynn, managing director of the association, in a report on thefts here the first six months of the year.

Flynn, who said his figure were based on police statistics, reported $1,450,385 worth of property stolen from January through June, of which police recovered $814,875 worth, or 56.2 per cent.

"This compared favorably with 60.4 per cent of property recovered by police on a national scale as reported in Uniform Crime Reports of the FBI," Flynn said.

Preliminary hearing for three men charged with gambling violations in Prince Georges County yesterday was continued until October 14 in Hyattsville Police Court.

Defendants were Milton Belzer, 35, and Albert Tavan, 42, both of 1424 N st. nw., charged with operating and promoting a lottery and bookmaking, and William C. Dunn, 40, 3801 39th st., Brentwood, Md., accused of permitting the operation of a lottery and bookmaking.

All are free under $2000 bond after arrests made following a raid by county police on the premises at 3801 39th st., owned by Dunn.

The continuance was granted by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens as several witnesses were appearing before the county grand jury yesterday.

School Bond Issue Put Up to Arlingtonians

The Arlington County School Board yesterday put its bi for a $4,750,000 school construction bond issue squarely up to the people of Arlington.

In an open letter, the five board members discussed the school financing problem from every angle and answered critics of the proposed bond issue.

The bond will be accepted or rejected by Arlington voters in a special referendum November 2.

Since "15,000 pupils expected by 1950 cannot be crowded into buildings already filled to overflowing by 12,000" the board said, new buildings must either be built, or Arlington schools put on a half-day shift basis.

The board pointed out that an alternative pay-as-you-go method would add "at least $2,375,000" to present tax collections each year, more than double the tax collected for schools. It would force present property owners to bear costs of new schools "which will be used for the next 30 to 40 years."

The State sales tax as a financing method was dismissed as too remote a possibility. The Virginia General Assembly will not meet until 1951, the board pointed out, and there is no assurance the Assembly will approve a sales tax when it does meet.

But if other revenue sources become available, the board said it will use such sources for school construction since the voting of the bonds "does not make it mandatory that they be sold."

The proposed bond will cost Arlington taxpayers 24 cents more yearly on each $100 of assessed valuation, the board said, with an average of $262,500 needed annually to cover interest and principal.

Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green has set the cost of retiring and bonds at closer to 75 cents annually.

Other bond issue critics have said present construction costs are too high, that money spent now for school construction would be "thrown away."

Admitting building costs are high, the board said it had "no assurance that they will be lower in the next few years," and added that Arlington children "will continue to grow up in spite of building costs."

Police Clubbed Navy Man, Friend Says in Court

A friend of Navy Chief Petty Officer Archibald I. Koester, testified in Municipal Court yesterday that he saw one policeman hold Koester while another beat him on the head with a nightstick. The court hearing will be continued today.

Koester, of Falls Church, who has filed a complaint of police brutality, is on trial on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct. He also is accused on two counts of assault on an officer.

The friend, John Monahan, 1081 Wisconsin ave. nw., near whose home the fracas occurred August 28, said he was arrested for disorderly conduct after he interceded. He testified yesterday that Koester was like a wild man after he was struck on the head, and that he cursed and fought police.

Police said a nightstick had to be used on Koester "in self-defense and to maintain arrest." They charge he bit two policemen and struck and tried to choke police officer.

$5000 Bond Set In Slashing of Youth

A 37-year-old man, accused of disfiguring a young man for life, was ordered held under $5000 bond yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

He is Raymond Masterson of 1704 Capitol ave. ne., who also faces a jury trial on a charge of simple assault for allegedly striking the young man's father.

Donald F. Bushong, 21, who lives with his parents in another apartment at the same address as Masterson, testified in Municipal Court that Masterson slashed him across the right cheek with a straight razor. The wound required 18 stitches and he was hospitalized for 3 weeks, he said.

Young Bushong said he was attacked September 4 by Masterson when he stepped out into the hallway between the two apartments to look for his father, Joseph Bushong, after a fight between Masterson and the older Bushong. He, himself, had not participated in the fight, young Bushong said.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short requested Bushong to show the disfiguring scar to Judge Armond Scott, then introduced Masterson's three-page FBI record in an unsuccessful effort to get Masterson's bond raised to $10,000.

Initial Wilner Award Is Made To H. C. Fisher

By S. Oliver Goodman

First winner of the Wilner Memorial Trophy is H. Cochran Fisher, judged as the man who has done most for the insurance business in the Washington area during the last year.

Fisher

Fisher was awarded the silver bowl at a luncheon meeting yesterday of District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association in the Mayflower. A record 288 attended the season's first meeting, presided over by Charles F. Suter, association head.

Fisher, a past president of the local group, is a trustee of the National Association of Life Underwriters and active in its committee work. As national committeeman, he played a major role in swinging the 1950 convention of the national group to Washington. He has been associated as an agent with the Aetna Life Insurance Co. for 24 years. He is one of the founders and a former president of the Washington Chapter of Chartered Life Underwriters.

The trophy was donated by Morton H. Wilner in memory of his brother, Bernard, former life underwriter who died in military service.

In the principal speech Harry S. Redeker, general counsel of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Co., praised the Revenue Act of 1948 as "one of the finest pieces of tax legislation" ever enacted by Congress. He outlined major changes in the act relating to the insurance business.

BRIDGE SYNDICATE: Investors found news of interest in the formation of a Nation-wide syndicate headed by Alex Brown & Sons of Baltimore to bid on a proposed offering of $37,500,000 Chesapeake Bay Bridge revenue bonds. Cocky Indians Expect to Wind It Up in Cleveland

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, OCT. 7.—Thus far the Braves have been getting excellent mileage out of their two runs in this World Series. At the end of two games, they have no worse than an even break with the Indians. You couldn't call their one-run-per-game attack fundamentally sound, however, and the portent isn't good for the Braves.

POVICH

And the circumstances won't improve for the Braves starting tomorrow when the Series wheels into Cleveland for the next three games. In Boston, the Indians were not only battling the Braves but were contesting, too, against the young gales that sweep Braves Field and reduce well-hit fly balls to luscious things for plucking by the outfielders.

It doesn't quite work both ways, for the Braves are mostly slap and poke hitters. The Indians hit the kind of balls that can hang in the wind, if there is a wind. In the friendlier confines of their Cleveland park, made for Cleveland homers, the Indians will probably tee off. The sight of nearby fences goads the Indians. And they won't have that dratted Boston wind.

ANYWAY, the BRAVES are learning about the high efficiency of the Indians. They've seen one Cleveland pitcher (Feller) who could hold them to two hits, and today they met up with a guy named Lemon who gave them one more run, and that unearned. They know they have to meet up with Feller and Lemon at least twice more in this series.

They learned about Lou Boudreau, too. His strategy of the opening game may have been a bit sour, but his strategy with the bat today was beyond reproach. They shaded him to the left, and he opened the Indians' big fourth inning with a double to right. They played him toward right in the fifth inning, and he contrived a smart single over second base. But the double play that he started in the sixth on Stanky's grounder was his prize contribution.

The last thing Boudreau did was to grab Stanky's smash, undaunted by the bad hop it took. He had time to tell Joe Gordon to cover second, and it appeared for all the world that he was stealing a look, too, at the goings-on in the Cleveland bullpen on the chance that he might have to change pitchers. He does a lot of things in the process of starting a double play. Getting the ball, as I say, is the thing that comes last with him. That part is simple. And he seems to prefer bad hops.

WARREN SPAHN was outpitching Bob Lemon in the first three innings today, moving nicely into the fourth after allowing only one hit, and no runs. There was more assurance in his performance than in Lemon's to that point, but matters didn't last that way. Lemon steadied and got tougher. Spahn weakened suddenly and didn't last out the fifth.

While he was working and winning, though, Spahn was something to see. He worked from a wind-up that could land him a job as an India-rubber man in any carnival, and he threw elbows, knees and finally a No. 12 brogan into the Indians' faces before he finally let loose of the ball. The skinny gawk looked like something by Fred Allen, out of Ichabod Crane.

They weren't hitting him, but they would, opined Whitey Lewis, the Cleveland author, who wasn't impressed with the long delay and the machinations in Spahn's windup. "He's gotta let loose of that ball sometime," said Lewis, and what he said was so true, and eventually the Indians rapped him good.

THE INDIANS WERE on the bit today, anyway. Their whole bench got up in a loud fury when National League Umpire Bill Stewart called Bob Elliott safe at first in the opening inning on Joe Gordon's momentary fumble. Stewart is the man who didn't give them the decision on that pick-off play at second base in the opening game, and they were undressing him verbally when Umpire-in-Chief Bill Summers walked to the dugout and made 'em desist.

They also accused Stewart of calling the play before it happened, and from the press box it looked that way. However, it all serves to recall Billy Evans' reaction to the same charge when he was the majors' best umpire. "Only the good ones can call 'em before they happen," grinned Evans.

Bill Grieve called the play that gave the Indians the decision on their pick-off of Torgeson later in the first inning, but it was out of no sense of American League loyalty. It was a clean pick-off by Lemon to Boudreau, and even the Braves wouldn't dispute it. They were probably too busy feeling sheepish, and with their mere two runs in two games they have been acting like sheep in sheep's clothing, anyway.

He Did It Last Year

Terps Afraid Ittner of VPI Will Mess Up Their Attack

Saturday's V. P. I. game may be a breather for Maryland, but Coach Split-T Tatum will breathe a sigh of relief when it's over.

Tatum, who often worries because he has nothing to worry about, was in full gloom yesterday as he whipped his Terrapins into shape for the Griffith Stadium clash.

All he could say between moans and frowns was "Block Ittner, Block Ittner, Block Ittner.

Ittner, first name Jack, is the 220-pound V. P. I. tackle who chose last year's Virginia Tech-Terp game to spend considerable time in the Terrapin backfield. He got so chummy with Lu Gambino that day that gone—but not forgotten Gambino could hard y make a move.

Ittner missed Tech's opener this year and played only briefly against Virginia last week, but he's completely recovered from a bu knee and ready to shackle the Terps again.

Tatum isn't too deeply concerned about the Gobbler offense. He figures that Capt. Gene Kinney and the Terp line can smear the Tech offense. But he's on a king-sized worrying jag fearing that Ittner will stop the Maryland offense.

In an effort to foil Tech and Ittner, Tatum has installed a half dozen new plays. They include a few tricky laterals, a pass maneuver and a special little number which is known as "super-secret 63."

CONFERENCE CLEANUP—Motion pictures of the W. and M.-Wake Forest game show that Fullback Jack Cloud bounced over for a TD against the Deacs, but the officials apparently didn't see it. They put the ball in play on the 1 and the Deacons held . . . William and Mary will be without a backfield coach until St. Paul either wins or is eliminated in the Little World Series. Eric Tipton, who tutors the Indian backs, is also the St. Paul leftfielder . . . A home-and-home series between Maryland and Boston College is in the discussion stage. If a date can be agreed upon, the series would open in Boston next year . . . Brian Bell of Washington will serve as cocaptain for Washington and Lee when the Generals meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday

World Series on Radio But Not Television

The World Series will be broadcast over the Mutual network today (WOL, 1260 on your dial in Washington) at 12:45 p. m. Television set owners are out of luck for the games in Cleveland—transmission facilities still haven't been developed. However, if the series returns to Boston, sixth and seventh games will be televised.

to cushion their lead with a fourth run in the ninth inning, but they sinned otherwise with a pair of absurd throw-ins by Outfielders Tommy Holmes and Marv Rickert.

Made Braves 'Inferior'

The Indians not only beat the Braves, but exposed them as an inferior ball club, at least today. Twice Cleveland runners dashed to second on singles and in the opening inning Boudreau worked the second-base pick-off play that failed to get the winning run off base yesterday.

Joe Gordon's rank fumble of Alvin Dark's grounder with one out in the first inning launched the Braves' only run, though the Indians squawked loudly at Umpire Bill Stewart's decision that Dark beat Gordon's throw to first base.

Earl Torgeson lashed a single to right and Dark scrambled to third. Bob Elliott banged a single to left to get him home, but there was to be no big inning for the Braves.

With Torgeson on second and Elliott on first, Boudreau called for the Indians' patented pick-off play, and took the throw from Lemon himself to catch Torgeson napping off the bag. Lemon fanned Rickert to retire the side, and never again were the Braves to get two hits in any inning.

There was more trouble for Lemon in the second when Salkeld led off with a single to right. On Mike McCormick's attempted sacrifice, Lemon dashed in to grab what evolved as a pop fly for the first out, but the pesky Eddie Stanky waited him out for a walk. He got rid of Spahn and Holmes, though, on infield taps.

Again in the third Boston led off with a hit, when Dark singled to left center, but the fat end of Braves' batting order was a breeze for Lemon as Torgeson, Elliott and Rickert flied out, struck out and grounded out.

Doby Whacks a Double

Meanwhile, Spah was holding the Indians to one hit in the first three innings—Larry Doby's two-out smack into center for a futile double in the second inning.

And then in the fourth inning, the Indians drew a bead on him. Boudreau, with the actions of a man who has had enough of this nonsense, opened the inning with a smartly placed and solidly tagged double to right that would have been a three-bagger for a fast man.

The Indians got the tying run right away, on Joe Gordon's line single to left. When Outfielder Holmes, against all orthodoxy, threw to the plate instead of the infield, the alert Gordon raced to second. Keltner fouled out harmlessly to Holmes but Doby fetched Gordon home with what proved to be the biggest hit of the ball game, a single to right that skipped past Torgeson.

For the second time in the same inning, a Cleveland runner took second on a single, with Rickert the culprit this time. Rickert's throw on Doby's hit was to home, and Doby raced into second before Torgeson could cut it off. The Indians got no more runs out of the inning, but they had a 2-1 lead, and the Braves weren't looking good.

Holmes Makes the Catch

They made it 3 to 1 in the fifth, very simply. Mitchell simply greeted Spahn with a single to left, Allie Clark simply laid down the conventional sacrifice, and Boudreau simply bashed a single over second base into center field to score Mitchell. That blow also drove Spahn to the showers and brought 33-year-old Charles (Red) Barrett onto the scene.

The Indians didn't get any runs in the sixth off Barrett because out in right field Holmes made the catch of the game, a one-handed grab of Jim Hegan's fierce liner that was headed for the wall. Eddie Robinson, who had previously singled, was particularly astounded at Holmes' catch. He was on his way to third base at the time, and was easily doubled off first.

In the ninth, though, the Braves made one error too many—Dark's fumble on Hegan's grounder that opened the inning. Lemon's infield out moved Hegan to second, Mitchell moved him to third and Kennedy moved him home with a fuzzy, luck-anointed Texas League single to center.

When the Braves did try to get back into the ball game, the Indians were pretty brutal about it. Lemon was in a spot of trouble in the sixth inning when he walked Salkeld with one out and McCormick dumped a feeble single into short center.

Then the Braves learned about the double-play combination that all season has been the talk of the American League. Boudreau grabbed up a grounder by Eddie Stanky, flipped it to Gordon for a force play at second, and then clapped his hands in applause when Gordon rifled the ball to first ahead of the slow-moving Stanky.

In the eighth, the Indians varied it a bit. Torgeson opened the inning with a single to center and the Braves Field fans were on the scent of a two-run rally that would tie the score.

All they got was a two-play out. Gordon snatched up Elliott's grounder and with Boudreau the middle man this time, the Braves again were double-play victims.

AN INDIAN DANCE—Allie Clark, Cleveland right fielder, goes into a dance at home plate as he skips over a low pitch by Warren Spahn in the fifth inning of yesterday's World Series game. The Boston catcher is Bill Salkeld. The Tribe won, 4-1.

Feller's Luck Recalls That Of 'Big Train'

By Bob Considine

Boston, Oct. 7 (INS).—If Bob Feller, the Cleveland pitcher, was a little older we might be able to draw some kind of a vivid parallel between his failure in the opening game of the World Series and the frustration of another pitching immortal, Walter Johnson, in 1924.

Johnson came into the American League in 1907. He cost Washington $200, though the man who went out of Coffeyville, Kans., to pick him up pocketed a C-note of the money and gave him the other C. With some of the most abysmal teams in the history of baseball, Johnson won 414 ball games through the years, and then, in his semidotage, finally got into the World Series.

He was on the shopworn side by the time that glorious hour arrived. He was beaten by Art Nehf of the Giants in the first game of the 1924 series by one run—as was Feller in the opener in Boston.

He came back in the fifth game and was beaten again, this time by a 6-2 score with Jack Bentley pitching for the Giants. It was all very sad for us who lived in Washington. Just as there must have been tremendous tears, none of them on the crocodile side. In Cleveland the other day when Rapid Robert, as a prominent baseball writer named Arthbuthnot nicknamed him, failed in his first series start.

Of course, Walter came back as a pinch-thrower in the eighth inning of the seventh and final game of the '24 series and won with theatrical skill in the 12th, with Calvin Coolidge, a most reserved soul, doing a jig on the roof of the Washington dugout—unnoticed.

How It Looks

'Sain, Rain Back With Sain' Lone Series Hope for Braves

By Whitney Martin

Boston, Oct. 7 (AP).—The slogan up here in the cod country during the Boston Braves' regular season was "Spahn and Sain and two days of rain," but they may have to revise it a little now.

It might be changed to "Sain and rain and back with Sain." The big guy appears the lone hope of the Braves in their epic, but to date rather drab, World Series with the Cleveland Indians. Warren Spahn failed them today.

And in winning the second encounter to even the series at one game apiece, the Indians indicated that the experts who said that the Cleveland pitching would prove the difference for once might be right.

In the three games the Indians have played in Boston this week their three starting pitchers have finished their games and allowed a total of only two earned runs—one in the Red Sox game Monday and one against Feller yesterday, although the Indians probably will dispute the latter.

In fact, there was some speculation as to whether Umpire Bill Stewart might be considered the series goat should the Braves eventually win out, as the pictures of the much-discussed play at second base yesterday certainly fail to back up his decision calling Phil Masi safe at second on a pickoff play.

Steewart was ignored by the crowd today, which might be expected, as his decision favored the Braves. The Indians, however, urged a few choice remarks in his direction early in the game and were warned by Stewart and Plate Umpire Bill Summers to keep their big yaps shut. Thereafter there was no trouble.

The crowd, in fact, has been rather subdued during both games. Maybe it is the traditional dignity and restraint of the New Englanders, but whatever the cause even the trains which skirt the outfield fence seem to cough apologetically.

There wasn't much for the Bostonians to cheer about today, for a fact, with Bob Lemon in control of the situation and most of the misplays being charged against the Braves. So the fans just sat on their hands to keep them warm and appeared lost in thought gazing at the sprawling, stumpy skyline of the city in the distance.

Bob Elliott, who looks more like a real pro—and is one—than any other player on the field contributed another bobble, and young Al Dark came up with two to equal Elliott's pair of yesterday, but considering the condition of the infield the boots might be excused. Elliott calls his third base section "Hogan's brickyard."

Braves Field 'Wrecked' by Football Play

By Jack Frost

Boston, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Infielders Eddie Stanky, Al Dark and Bob Elliott weren't trying to alibi tonight for those five Boston errors between second and third base in the first two World Series games at Braves Field.

They didn't have to. Two strawberry-colored bruises on Elliott's leg and upper arm told the story clearly the football games played at Braves Field this month had wrecked the infield.

"Cleveland beat us fair and square today," said Stanky as he limped toward the dressing room shower with his subdued mates. Cleveland had just whipped Boston, 4-1, evening the series at 1-all.

"It was their day, sure enough. But that infield is stinking to play."

Elliott and Dark, both victims of errors in two games, grimly nodded approval.

"Jim Hegan (Cleveland catcher) was dumfounded by it," Elliott remarked, gingerly kneading his bruised leg. The Braves' third baseman now had three errors charged against him.

"Its spongy as a powder puff along the bases and the hole——"

"That's right," said Stanky. "Bob's too good a ball player to boot 'em like that. Why, when that ball's coming at you you never know whether you're going to get smacked in the teeth or have it bounce in your eyes. Look how Joe Gordon (Cleveland second baseman) fumbled that easy one. He's the best in the business and there must be something wrong when he can't hold onto that ball."

Worst spot in the field, all agreed, was between second and third.

Two Rookies, Bearden and Bickford, to Pitch Today

By Oscar Fraley

Boston, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Cocky was the word for the Cleveland Indians tonight.

They roared into their dressing room after squaring the World Series at one game each and it was apparent they figured they had the Boston Braves over a barrel.

"It's Gene Bearden tomorrow. I don't know who on Saturday and then Bob Feller on Sunday," Manager Lou Boudreau chortled happily, and it was obvious that the smiling shortstop expected that to be all.

"Big one tomorrow," Lou yelled, and everybody let out a cheer.

Righthander Vern Bickford, the Braves star rookie, will oppose Bearden. His record for the season was 11 and 5 while Bearden hit 20 victories—the last seven in a row—and lost only seven in his brilliant freshman year.

James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, immediately installed third-game odds of 9 to 20 on Bearden and 9 to 5 on Bickford. For the series, Carroll now figures the American Leaguers 1 to 3 favorites and rates Boston 2½ to 1.

When Southworth learned that Southpaw Bearden would start, he promptly revised his line-up, packing it with righthand hitters.

"Mike McCormick will play left field, Clint Conaster center, Frank McCormick first base and Phil Masi will catch," the percentage-minded Southworth said.

And Billy may have something. During the regular National League season those line-up changes resulted in the Braves knocking out more than 60 per cent of the left-handed pitchers who opposed them.

Only change for the Indians probably will be Wally Judnich in rightfield.

Bearden, the handsome hurler who goes to the hill tomorrow, hardly looked up from his dressing after today's game.

"Just another ball game," grunted the guy who beat the mighty Boston Red Sox in the American League playoff to put Cleveland into the series. "They can't be as tough as those Red Sox. They don't have the power."

Pickoff Helped

Players congratulated blue-eyed Bob Lemon for his eight-hit victory, but it was perfunctory. They felt just as did the almost bored Bearden. They were on their way to their home park, rushing to catch a train, and they figured they'd wind it up quickly once they reached Cleveland.

All the Masterful Steps

Here's How the Indians Pull Pickoff Play Causing Masi Row and Bagging Torgeson

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Cleveland Indians must have gotten a tremndous kick out of trapping Earl Torgeson at second base yesterday.

When they picked off the Braves' first sacker in the first inning, it was vindication of a sort for Manager Boudreau's vigorous protest after Phil Masi was called safe on a similar play in Wednesday's opener. It happened just before Holmes' single sent Masi across with the winning run.

The Cleveland second-base pick-off play is a well-planned, well-executed maneuver over which the Tribe labored long in spring practice to perfect.

This rally-killing play calls for split-second timing, and the Indians execute it as if they owned the copyright.

When an Indian pitcher other than Bob Feller is working, Catcher Jim Hegan flashes the sign to the pitcher and Shortstop Lou Boudreau. When Feller is on the mound, he and Boudreau work it together.

When there's a runner on second base and Feller thinks the time is ripe for the pickoff, he walks off the mound with his back to the batter. To flash the signal to Boudreau, he tightens his belt, adjusts his cap or employs another prearranged signal.

The play isn't set in motion until Feller toes the rubber. Then Boudreau and Feller start a count. On a given number, Feller wheels around while Boudreau, who has purposely allowed the runner to stray from the bag, breaks for the base. Feller fires to second and the result is usually an out.

With a pitcher other than Feller working, Hegan flashes the sign to set up the play. Then the count between Boudreau, who, 95 per cent of the time takes the throw, and the pitcher starts. Between them they count "1-2-3-4-5-6" then the pitcher whirls and throws.

The play itself is almost as old as baseball, but the Indians work it best. Many times during this and last season they have called on second-base pickoff play to stymie a rally and more than not it works.

Even ancient Satchel Paige collaborated with Boudreau to pull the play against the Nats here. The victim was Carden Gillenwater, whom Boudreau tagged before Gillenwater knew what was happening.

The secret of the play is to allow the runner to take more than his usual lead off second. When the play is set up, neither Joe Gordon nor Boudreau will feint the runner back to second base.

Then, all of a sudden, the runner is a dead-duck as the pitcher wheels and Boudreau tags him.

The Grid Line . . .

'Cats Picked To Turn Back Minnesota

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Off on another run with the football guessing special, trying to improve on a two weeks' record that shows 37 misses in 156 attempts:

Minnesota vs. Northwestern—Here's a game that may prove to be one of the highlights of the season. Northwestern is the surprise of the Big Nine. Minnesota was the preseason favorite. The winner likely will wind up with the conference title and a Rose Bowl trip. On the theory that a team which can blank both UCLA and Purdue must be tough, one healthy vote for Northwestern.

North Carolina vs. Wake Forest—This should be easy for the Tar Heels after their triumphs over Texas and Georgia. But Wake Forest bounced back from a loss to Boston College to whip William and Mary, 21-12. As long as Charley Justice is hale and hearty, however, a confident vote for North Carolina.

Navy vs. Duke—The Middies missed their chance against Cornell. The Blue Devils can't go through the season playing ties. Duke.

Princeton vs. Pennsylvania—the Quakers wish Princeton had beaten Brown instead of losing. Still, they aren't too worried. Pennsylvania.

Michigan State vs. Notre Dame—Leahy's first stringers should be ready. They didn't have to exert themselves against Pitt. Notre Dame.

Columbia vs. Yale—The Lions, who gained 482 yards and 26 first downs but lost to Harvard, must know how Bob Feller feels. Columbia.

Kentucky vs. Georgia—Both lost last week but the Bulldogs came nearer to winning and they had the tougher opponent. Georgia.

Oklahoma vs. Texas—It's been eight years since Oklahoma won this annual tussle. This'll make it nine. Texas.

Army vs. Illinois—We still don't know just how good Red Blaik's 1948 Cadet outfit really is, but we may find out here. Army has rolled up 82 points in two games. Illinois was unimpressive in dividing its first two. The Illini may find themselves, but our guess is Army.

Harvard vs. Cornell—What with the Cantabs walloping Columbia last week and the Braves winning the first game of the World Series, they haven't had so much fun up that way since the Boston Tea Party. It's a new day for the Crimson. Put this one down as No. 2 for Harvard.

Wisconsin vs. California—If the Pacific Coast is going to win one from the Big Nine this season, including the Rose Bowl squabble, this had better be it. Probably close. A shaky vote for California.

Michigan vs. Purdue—Michigan won its first two. Purdue lost the same number. That makes Purdue due. The Boilermakers couldn't shake off their narrow loss to Notre Dame but should be tough now. Purdue.

Coolidge, Central Also In Loop Game

The surprising Western Red Raiders get their big test today when they face improved Eastern in the top Interhigh Football League game at Western.

Central, tied with the Raiders for first place, faces lesser opposition when it meets last-place Coolidge at Central Stadium. Both interhigh games begin at 3:30 p. m.

Two important non-league games are also on today's 10-game scholastic grid agenda.

Unbeaten Gonzaga collides with once-beaten Anacostia at Fairlawn at 3:45 p. m. And Georgetown Prep, conqueror of Wilson and Sidwell Friends, flexes its muscles against Devitt Prep at Garrett Park at 3:30.

Western will loose its 15-year-old sophomore backfield ace, Dale Larsen, on Eastern. The blond youngster, who learned his football at the Georgetown Branch Boys Club, has made an inexperienced Western team into a winner with four touchdown runs of over 50 yards in the first three games.

The Raiders weren't expected to pick up momentum until they'd had a few games under their belt. But they've whipped Roosevelt and Wilson, successively, to move to the front alongside touted Central.

Handling the ball out of Western's tricky T is Wade Hubbard. Speedy Dale Summerbell is Larsen's halfback running mate, and Dick Casey, a junior, operates at fullback. The Raiders have one of the finest tackles in the league in 190-pound Lennie Fay, a veteran of last year.

Eastern was upset, 19-12, by Wilson in its opener two weeks ago, but bounced back to trounce Coolidge, 20-0, last week. Ritchie Hite, a deceptive scatback, is Eastern's answer to Larsen. He scampered to two 45-yard touchdowns last week. Eastern also has a good passer in Ray DiGiovanni and an excellent receiver in Joe Viqueria.

Sauer Makes Win Over Duke A 'Must' for His Navy Squad

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

A victory-hungry Navy football squad, unable to accomplish much in two tries in its own back yard, made a brief stop here last night before heading South to meet Duke University tomorrow afternoon.

The Middies came over from Annapolis by bus and entrained at Union Station at 9:15 p. m., pulling out at 11.

As usual, Coach George Sauer was slightly noncommittal. He did say, rather grimly, his team considered Saturday's engagement at Durham a "must" game.

There's a strong suspicion that if Navy doesn't beat Duke the Middies won't be able to win a game all year. Although even Duke is favored by 6 points, the Blue Devils aren't considered as strong as some of the tartars the Tars are going to catch on the rocky road ahead.

For instance, Missouri follows Duke—then come Penn, Notre Dame, Michigan, Columbia and Army.

Sauer said he's going to string along with most of the starters who were beaten by California, 21-7, and surprised by Cornell, 13-7. However, both starting guards will be new men who have fought their way onto the first eleven—Charley Cooper, a junior, and Senior Don Weir. They replace Ken Schiweck and Bob Hunt.

In Duke, Navy faces an opponent that's having almost as much trouble trying to reach the winner's circle. Wallace Wade's boys were in a scoreless duel with N. C. State and played a 7-7 tie with Tennessee.

Unusual thing about this Wade team is its weak offense. Fearless Freddie Folger, Duke's triple-threater, was third best punter in the Nation last year and continues to get off booming punts. However, the Blue Devils gained only 46 yards in the air against N. C. State and 73 against Tennessee. Their rushing total for both games was only 20 yards better.

Significant is the fact that Tennessee gained 225 yards via the air lanes and therein lies Navy's chance for victory. Reaves Baysinger completed six consecutive passes against California and Bob Home threw four strikes in Navy's lone scoring march against Cornell. With these boys doing most of the flinging, Navy has amassed 277 yards through the air.

Sauer just hopes his varsity boys will be inspired by the Navy Plebes. Last week against Duke Frosh, the Middie youngsters scored a thumping 52-0 victory. Mike Sorentino, Bullis star last year, racked up four of the touchdowns.

Bones McKinney Star In Caps' Squad Game

Bones McKinney, the Caps' colorful basketball star, took high-scoring honors last night at Uline in a regulation intersquad game played before about 500.

McKinney bagged 22 points while Kleggie Hermsen, acquired from Baltimore during the off-season, scored 18. Both McKinney and Hermsen played with the Reds, the regulars. For the Greens, Don McNary, former GW ace, who has been playing independent ball locally, racked up 20.

Montreal Wins, 7-3, Squares Little Series

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 7 (AP).—Montreal put on two big innings tonight to defeat St. Paul, 7-3, and even the Little World Series at one victory apiece. The Canadians were forced to install a pair of relief moundsmen in the last of the ninth inning to turn back a determined drive by the Saints.

Rain Starts Early For World Series Bleacher Fans

Cleveland, Oct. 7 (AP).—Bleacherites were singing in the rain tonight outside the gates of Municipal Stadium, awaiting tomorrow's third World Series game. If the rain continues, as forecast, their long wait will be doubled.

A cold front moved through here tonight, bringing heavy showers and winds up to 38 miles an hour. Tomorrow's prediction called for showers, windy and cooler.

Temperatures were expected to range from a chill 52 degrees to 59 with topcoats and raincoats recommended apparel.

Middleweight Fight

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—A couple of youngsters with wallops and ambitions—Rocky Castellani and Walter Cartier—will meet tomorrow night in a middleweight feature 10-rounder at the St. Nickolas Arena.

Romans' 65, 5 Under Par, Sets Record

Walter Romans, slim Country Club of Baltimore pro, shot a sizzling 5-under-par 65 to set a competitive course record and take a two-stroke lead in the District Open Golf Tournament yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club.

Playing over the fast 6345-yard Silver Spring course, Romans was pressed by six other competitors who shot below 70.

The 36-hole event winds up today with the first threesome teeing off at 10 a. m.

The black-haired Romans teamed with Denny Hevener of the host club to capture pro-am laurels. Hevener shot 36-37—73 to help his team to a best-ball score of 32-31—63.

Romans excellent performance included six birdies, and one bogey. Five of his sub-par holes came on the incoming nine to give him a 34-31—65 score.

Catholic Faces A Tereshinski

Joe Tereshinski, Redskin end, will have more than a casual interest in tomorrow's Catholic U.-Western Maryland game at Brookland. It's a family matter with Joe, because brother Tommy Tereshinski is assistant coach of the Green Terrors and another brother, Faul, is a halfback on the squad.

The Cardinals haven't beaten Western Maryland since 1935, when "Irish" Carroll and Bill Adamaitis sparked a 20-6 victory.

Hank Corrado and Joe Giannelli, the Terrors' one-two punch, are back for their third season of play. Corrado is a powerful fullback and Giannelli an explosive breakaway runner. Opponents last year dubbed them the "Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside" of Western Maryland.

Six other lettermen in the backfield—Si Tullai, Gene Frank, Lee Lathroum, Jim Formwalt, Al Jacobson and Julian Dyke—assure Coach Charley Havens of plenty of dynamite to blast the Cards. The Terror tutor also has six of last year's linemen back in uniform. The Terrors beat C. U. by 21-7 a year ago.

Jockey Club Pays $3521 Minus Pool

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 7.—Rampart, almost as popular at Atlantic City as Miss America after winning three stakes there, brought her speed to Maryland, it seems.

The black mare, owned by Mrs. H. K. Haggerty of Philadelphia, faced four rivals of her sex today and came into the finish line a lone neck in advance of Mrs. O. L. Niberg's Irisen. Three lengths farther back came E. C. Algutt's Meetmenow, the one-time half-mile queen and the hope of the Rockville, Md., fans.

Although Rampart, fresh from her All-American Handicap victory, got home by a slim margin, the crowd of 9500 bet and rebet the 6-year-old miss. She finally paid a $2.80 win mutuel.

With Irisen and Meetmenow, the second and third choices in the money circle in the vest-pocket field of five there was a "minus pool" for show costing the Jockey Club $3,521.20.

Rampart carried 121 pounds, the topweight in the fieid, and ran the mile and a sixteenth—called the Fort Myer—in 1:48 2-5. The track was still dull from rain early in the week.

The victory was the eighth of the year in 21 tries for the gallant daughter of Trace Call and Boat. By picking up $2600 today, Rampart ran her year's earnings to a healthy $95,900.

Foes Meet Again

The Fort Myer was fashioned as a conditioning race for the $10,000 added Queen Isabella Handicap to be run at a mile and a furlong next Tuesday and both Rampart and Irisen are expected to run back in that stakes affair. Rampart drew a 124-pound package for the Columbus Day headliner.

The 6-year-old mare has been raced hard this summer and broke sluggishly in today's mile and a sixteenth test. She found her best stride on the first turn, however, and moved from fourth to second with Jockey Mike Basile sitting still in the saddle.

Basile seemed in no hurry for the first three quarters of a mile, permitted his willing charge to move by Meetmenow to take the lead coming to the eighth pole and then encouraged Rampart with a handride while holding Irisen safe.

Second for Gilbert

Running six furlongs in 1:14 1/5, good time considering the condition of the track, Slammuring carried Apprentice William Gilbert, leading "bug rider" of the meeting, to his second win of the afternoon.

The popular Calumet Farm Stable let the form players down in the Anne Arundel Purse when Whirl Top was made the 7 to 5 favorite and then finished third after moving up with a strong burst of speed on the far turn. Slammuring paid $10.40.

Rail Wage Dispute Goes to Truman

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP).—The problem of settling the wage and hour demands of 1,000,000 nonoperating railroad workers was before President Truman today.

Attempts of the National (railway) Mediation Board to find a solution collapsed late yesterday.

President Truman will name an emergency fact-finding board in the next few days to study the dispute and make recommendations.

If either side balks at the emergency board's report, the 16 unions involved would be legally free to strike—60 days from that date.

Intervention by a presidential emergency board is the last peace step provided by the Railway Labor Act. However, the Government went beyond that act last May 10 and obtained a court order preventing a threatened walkout by three operating unions representing engineers, firemen and switchmen.

The question of the validity of that injunction, issued under a World War I law, is now pending before the United States Supreme Court.

The mediation boards efforts collapsed when the unions rejected a recommendation for arbitration. Direct negotiations between the railroads and unions ended in failure September 17. The unions are taking a strike ballot, with strike sentiment reported running about 93 per cent.

Paris Ballet Touches Off Excitement

By Paul Hume

Ballet from the Opera in Paris touched off new highs in excitement waves last night in Constitution Hall.

The dancers, obviously more at home on the minute stage, maneuvered with assurance. Where Christiane Vaussard had been a bit tentative the first night she shone in the constellation of stars clustered about her in Sleeping Beauty.

Yvette Chauvire, seen Wednesday in both interpretative and classic roles, was breath-taking as Princess Aurora. Mlles. Bardin and Lafon won themselves special applause for their work. Bardin came in again for personal triumph in the wit of Punch and Judy.

The entire company won those bursts of enthusiasm which an audience gives when everything catches fire at once. And the evening continued that way. The Tschaikowsky ballet, with one of the magical scores in all music, was a dream. Even without sets and proper space it was marvelously effective because of the superb dancing. For a single company to boast of Ritz, Renault, Kalioujay, and Bozzoni is to pour out national riches in lavish array.

Guignole et Pandora, or Punch and Judy, is a flowing tribute to Gallic wit. Satire and high comedy are mingled as mother-in-law, husband and wife, flirtatious policeman, judges, jailers and executioner carry on in deadly earnest. But the immortality of Punch foils the plot so that everyone must join in the end in revived merrymaking.

Jolivet's score is apt, ingenious, and musically sound. It is a real ballet piece, with Lifar's choreography to the point all the time. This was true the previous evening also, in the classical display of Suite en blanc, one of the older works of the Paris repertoire. If Lifar could pull together his designs for Mirage to that admirable tautness he achieves in Punch, it would be far more agreeable.

We have learned much from the Parisian visitors. Their corps de ballet is superb. Their timing in solo and ensemble work has a high degree of precision. Their stars and lesser principals are skilled in the extreme. We hope they will return soon and often to remind us of the international nature of the art they have done so much to popularize.

Six Taximen Ask Voiding Of Suspension

Six taxicab drivers, whose licenses were ordered suspended Tuesday because they were found guilty of soliciting fares in Union Station, yesterday asked District Court for an injunction restraining the suspension.

The suit, which named the District Commissioners and Traffic Director George Keneipp as defendants, charges their action was arbitrary, and that they had exceeded their authority. The suit also protested that the plaintiffs will be deprived of their livelihood by the suspension.

The suit was filed by Paul T. Hodges, 642 Chestnut ave., Falls Church, Va.; John Lacovaro, 1140 17th st. ne.; Thornton P. Meadows, 642 Chestnut ave., Falls Church; Charles H. Werner, 1801 N. Oak st., Arlington; Elmer Wyatt, 5020 Wisconsin ave. nw., and James A. Wyatt, 201 Timberwood ave., Silver Spring.

The licenses were ordered suspended for 15 days. Two other cab drivers got suspensions at the same time. Nine others were found not guilty.

Red Teacher's Ouster Upheld In Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Baltimore School Board today unanimously upheld the action of its superintendent in dismissing Mrs. Regina Frankfeld as a kindergarten teacher because she is a Communist.

Mrs. Frankfeld, whose husband Philip is head of the Maryland-District of Columbia Communist Party, watched the proceedings from the rear of the meeting room.

After the vote, she rose and said: "I am a member of the Communist Party. I admit it. I am proud of it.

"Nobody will question my loyalty. History will judge who are the Americans, you or I."

Dr. William H. Lemmel, superintendent of public instruction, refused to reassign Mrs. Frankfeld to her teaching post at the opening of the present fall semester. He said he was acting under the new policy adopted by the school board last June to bar Communists and "other subversives" from the school system.

Before the vote, Board President Roszel C. Thomsen declared: "We are not concerned here with the question of the right of Mrs. Frankfeld to believe what she pleases or to express her views."

Thomsen quoted from an article entitled, "The Schools and the People's Front," which he said was written by a Communist named Richard Frank.

"Only when teachers have really mastered Marxism-Leninism,'" Thomsen quoted from the article, "'will they be able skillfully to inject into their teaching at the least risk of exposure and at the same time to conduct struggles around the schools in a truly Bolshevik manner.'"

Man Starves in Home, Leaves $150,000 Estate

Tap Sun, Wind For Electricity, Engineers Told

Percy H. Thomas, consultant engineer for the Federal Power Commission, yesterday urged electrical engineers to seek electric power from the winds and the sun.

Such electric power, he said, could at first augment and perhaps eventually supplant electricity now obtained from water and steam-driven generators. The need for new sources is best shown in areas of periodic droughts and in the exhausting drains on the Nation's coal supplies, he said.

Thomas spoke before a Government relations section of the Middle Eastern District meeting, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, at Hotel Statler. The three-day conference, attended by more than 700 members and guests, ended last night with a dinner dance.

Admitting he was "speculating somewhat," Thomas said he was nevertheless convinced that all that is needed to get electricity from windpower and solar energy is "a lot of money and a lot of scientific effort."

Research work already done on producing electricity from windpower, he said, "seem to offer considerable possibility of conservation of fuels."

Thomas said he was "admittedly hazy" on the advances made in obtaining electricity from solar energy, but pointed out that "experimental machines have been devised" and that residents in sunny climes are already using the sun's rays for home heating.

New Precision Device Perfected By GE Engineers

New electron scanning instruments capable of analyzing the top, quarter millionth of an inch thick surface of metal have been perfected, General Electric Co. engineers announced yesterday.

Known as electron diffraction instruments, they enable scientists to study submicroscopically a variety of surface conditions of metal, including corrosion and crystal structure of the molecules.

They are expected to aid in development of longer-wearing metals for aircraft engines, bearings and a wide range of other industrial products, according to Dr. J. G. Hutton, who headed work in perfecting the devices. Many have already been placed for testings in industrial, Government and university laboratories, it was said.

X-Ray Advances Open New World To Physicians

Philadelphia, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Two advances in X-ray diagnosis, opening new "visual worlds" to physicians, were described tonight before the American Roentgen Ray Society.

Dr. Charles M. Slack, research director for the Westinghouse Lamp Division, Bloomfield, N. J., reported development of super-speed X-ray motion pictures. He said they would enable scientists to make X-ray pictures of speeding objects without blur.

An X-ray "telescope" was described to the society by Dr. John W. Coltman, who supervised its development at the Westinghouse research laboratories, East Pittsburgh, Pa. He said the telescope brightens by 500 times the living image viewed by a physician on the X-ray fluroscope.

Link Discovered Between Flies and Diarrhea Spread

The damning link between flies and diarrhoea's spread has been exposed by a two-year fly control project of U. S. Public Health Service, according to a report made public yesterday.

Scene of the investigation was Hidalgo County, Texas, where Dr. James Watt and his aide, Dale R. Lindsay, both of Public Health Service, found that the diarrhea rate rose and fell in direct proportion to the fly population.

The county was chosen, according to Public Health Reports, of the Federal Security Agency, because it had both a high incidence of infectious diarrheal disease and a major fly problem. DDT spray was both used and withheld in the scientific study.

3 on Arlington Board Admit Oversight on Incinerator Bid

Three Arlington County Board members admitted in Arlington Circuit Court yesterday, that when they awarded an incinerator contract, they didn't know specifications excluded all but one bidder.

This disclosure came during the third day of hearings on a suit brought by the 'osing bidder, the Morse-Boulger Detractor Co. of New York, to force reconsideration of the award.

Another contractor, the Nichols Engineering and Research Corp. of New York, got the board's nod to build the incinerator on a bid of $646,575—nearly $18,000 more than that bid by Morse-Boulger.

Specifications, drawn up for the County Board by the Alexander Potter Associates of New York, consulting engineers, permitted bids only from contractors who had built at least two mechanically stoked incinerators which had been in service for one year or more.

Board Members F. Freeland Chew, Mrs. Florence Cannon and Alfred E. Frisbie admitted on the stand yesterday that they hadn't known when they granted the contract that these specifications excluded all contractors but the Nichols firm.

Chew said yesterday he had made his own study of the bids, surveying one plant in Norfolk and two in Montgomery County, and felt the Potter Associates were "perfectly justified" in stating to the board that the Morse-Boulger incinerator would cost $124,000 more to operate over a 20-year period than the Nichols plant.

Board Member Frisbie said he was unable to recall being told that the proposed Nichols incinerator was "below minimum specifications at six or eight points," as charged by Oren Lewis, the plaintiff's attorney.

Two more board members—Chairman Daniel A. Dugan and Basil M. DeLashmutt—are scheduled to be called when the case resumes at 10 a. m. today. Dugan was the only board member to vote against award of the contract to the Nichols firm.

Painter, 61, Ends Life In Hotel

A 61-year-old Alexandria painter, after two years of brooding over the death of his wife, ended his life Wednesday in an Alexandria hotel room.

The body of James Cook, 216 E. Alexandria ave., was found in a room at the Humphries Hotel. Two notes and an empty sleeping pill bottle were found beside the body. Coroner John A. Sims issued a suicide verdict.

Cook's sister, Mrs. Ruth Dodson, with whom he lived, said he had been increasingly despondent since the death of his wife in 1946, and last Saturday told members of his family he considered ending his life. She said she did not become alarmed when he failed to return home Monday night, however, as he frequently visited relatives in the Alexandria area for several days at a time.

A veteran of World War I, Mr. Cook was a member of both the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Fortune-Teller Held As Lacking License

An "unlicensed fortune-teller" was being held last night after she failed to read the "troubled mind" of a Thirteenth Precinct detective.

The trouble was that Detective Thomas E. Williams queried Mrs. Teresa Ely, 26, of 2131 Georgia ave. nw., "Where's you license?", after he paid a marked $1 bill to have his fortune told, police reported.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1948

VOLUNTEERS from the Washington Building Trades Council will renovate part of the Barney Neighborhood House Saturday. The playground in the rear of the nursery at 1319 Fourth st. nw., has always been popular during warm weather. When the workers finish Saturday it will be black-topped and suitable for use on rainy days

Workmen Give Day's Labor

Barney House to Receive Red Feather Remodeling

By Adrienne Tassler

BARNEY NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE, the city's oldest settlement house, will get a face-lifting Saturday.

Some hundred civic-minded citizens will give their services for the one-day renovation job on parts of the old buildings at 470 N st. sw., which date from the 1700's when they were fashionable residences.

Carpenters, painters and other AFL workmen, aware of the financial problems that have beset one of Southwest Washington's most humanitarian operations, will give a day's work. They will use materials donated by local contractors. It will be their contribution to the current Red Feather Campaign of the Community Chest, which urges each person with an income to donate one day's pay.

The kids at Barney will know the difference. Already they're excited, and many will be on hand to watch the remodeling job.

Boys like Robert Sampson, 9, of 457 N st. sw., who's been going to Barney since he was 4, will turn up to watch the gym changed. The gym's "like home" to Robert; he plays basketball there every afternoon.

It'll feel like winning a game to Robert when he sees those workmen tear down the battered old celotex wallboard and put up a brand new one in its place. And won't he dance when the floor gets slicked and shined, just like new.

Redecorating the Playroom

THE BIGGEST JOB will be done upstairs in the playroom, just above the gym. The rafters, ugly and gray, will be covered with 2 inches of sheet rock and then a final coating of celotex. This will keep the heat from going out through the roof. The windows and French doors will be weatherstripped and the floors improved.

Over at the nursery school, around the corner at 1319 4th st. sw., a large play area will get an asphaltic surface to cover the present dirt bottom. The kids over there—they're mostly 2 and 3—won't know the difference; but the conversion will mean they'll be getting more fresh air this fall and winter.

As Mrs. Pauline Knepley, who cares for the children, explained, in wet weather the play area gets so slushy that the youngsters have to be kept indoors for days; things will be different after Saturday, however.

Mrs. Jean S. Goodrich, director of the house, doesn't mean to complain, but she points out that Community Chest allocations permit only a small allowance for repairs—none for reconstruction. This year's allotment of $35,368 did, however, provide enjoyment, instruction and assistance to many hundreds. Overall attendance from January through August alone totaled more than 50,000.

But the $35,368 didn't buy new boxing gloves, pool tables, shower rooms, heating equipment and an assortment of other sorely needed items for the 500 area residents on the house's membership rosters. Some of these, it is hoped, will come out of the $42,325 the Community Chest hopes to raise for Barney in its current drive, but that depends on how much residents contribute.

History of House

JUDGE William Cranch was the first occupant of the mansion which is now one of the main Barney buildings. He served more than 50 years on the bench, and not one of his decisions was reversed.

"Neighborhood House," as it was first known, came into existence on November 5, 1901, when Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Weller opened their residence in the old Lewis House, at 456 N st. sw., to a group of girls. Later they established the city's first playground, using their garden.

Mrs. Alice Pike Barney and her daughter, Laura Alice, gave great financial assistance to the infant project and also helped to shape its policies. After Mrs. Barney's death in 1931 the two houses which she had loaned passed to the settlement. In 1933 the corporate name was changed from "Neighborhood House" to "Barney Neighborhood House and Social Industrial Settlement."

In addition to providing a nursery, kindergarten, art classes, music instruction, boys' clubs, girls' clubs and several adult projects, the house offers all sorts of necessary assistance to families in the neighborhood.

Miss Amelia D. Kemp, personal service worker, has 327 families in her files. The problems she deals with are many and varied. Many of the homes she visits have no running water; others have no bathtubs. In not a few, both parents must work; in some there are many mouths to feed and not enough money.

That's the kind of neighborhood it is.

Solving Problems

LAST week, for example, Miss Kemp related, a young woman came in and announced, in frantic tones, that her husband had "just plain walked out on her" and she didn't know what to do. Miss Kemp told her what she might do—namely put her youngsters, 5, 4 and 2, in the day nursery and go out to work. That solved that problem.

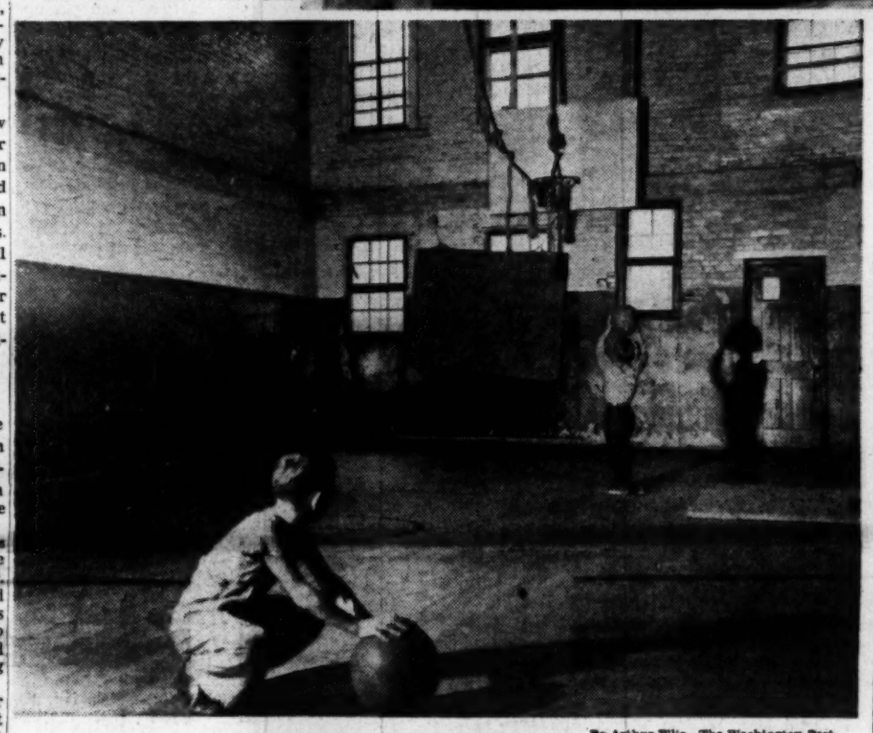
In another case a mother was sick with worry over her little girl, Laura Mae, who wasn't "a bad child but just couldn't sit still—she was so nervous." Barney arranged to send the child to a convalescent home—that did the trick.

More recently, an elderly charwoman turned up at Barney, pleading to be allowed to stay overnight. She explained that she was afraid to sleep alone at her house. Workers arranged to get her a police dog—now home is her castle again.

Funds contributed by residents to the Community Chest don't do all these things. But they accomplish more than 80 per cent; without them, life would be bleaker for many a Washington neighbor.

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

WORKERS' plans for this playroom in the Barney Neighborhood House include a new ceiling of sheet rock. Officials of the settlement house would like a new or second hand pool table to augment the one now in use. The workmen are donating their services for the day as their contribution to the current Red Feather Campaign of Community Chest.



By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

WORKERS expect to greatly improve the gym by repairing the walls and coating them with celotex. Floors will also be refinished in the remodeling project.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Moved to Her Mother's, Bag and Baggage, After Husband Ordered Her Out in Jealous Rage; Now She Longs to Go Home, but Rift Persists

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After seven years' marriage, I have been estranged from my husband this last week, having moved to my mother's, bag and baggage, after Grant told me to get out, during a jealous explosion on his part.

Most of our married life together has been happy, but Grant seems to have grown more suspicious and easily irritable since his Army service ended three years ago. He has a violent temper and is extremely jealous, but he has been like a real father to my son, Tommie, 9, who was born of my first marriage, a teen-age mistake that ended in divorce.

Grant has always been jealous of my younger sister, Nan, whom he blames for our latest quarrel. He says Nan tries to break up our marriage, yet she is the mother of two children and very happy with her husband.

A week ago two childhood friends of Nan's and mine came to the house, accompanied by Nan. Both are family men and have always been brotherly toward my two sisters and me. One of them had just returned here to live. During their visit one of the men came into the kitchen, where I was doing the dishes, and stayed there talking until I finished, about ten minutes.

She's Waiting on Man to Apologize

THEIR VISIT was short and after their departure Grant loudly and falsely accused me of accepting improper advances from this friend. In the presence of Tommie, who was terrified, Grant

Dewey Defense Post May Go To 'Astronomer' Hinshaw; Unique Horse Show Planned

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

TOWN TALK has it that Representative Carl Hinshaw, who hails from Pasadena, is Dewey's choice for Secretary of Defense. Mr. Hinshaw, who was instrumental in assembling and getting through the House the recent 70-Unit Air Force appropriation, is reported to know more about defense than any of his confreres. But privately he's achieved quite a reputation as an amateur astronomer and is a member in good standing of the Astronomy Society of the Pacific. Perhaps his interest in celestial mechanics is responsible for his passion for planes.

Representative Hinshaw, who's a graduate in civil engineering from Princeton and in business administration from the University of Michigan, dropped into politics via California real estate a decade ago. His first, hotly contested campaign was won against a hill-billy-crooning politician.

The musical angle was amusing as the Representative's father, the late William Wade Hinshaw, once sang at the Metropolitan Opera. The father's career, incidentally, was terminated by a curious accident. Playing opposite a brawny diva whose role included a mock-rage slap, she hit extra heftily one night, broke Mr. Hinshaw's eardrum. Ten days later he had to give up singing. Today, though there are about 30,000 more Democrats than Republicans in Representative Hinshaw's district, he picks up both nominations with ease.

Off Stage Impressions

MLLE. YVETTE CHAUVIRE, the premiere danseuse of the Paris Opera Ballet, which packed in the customers at Constitution Hall these past two evenings, is much younger, prettier off stage than on.

At an after-ballet reception at the French Embassy petite Mlle. Chauvire sat enthroned in a huge chair, ate and ate pate, salmon, salad and almost dozens of small cakes all with exquisite relish. She is a native of Anjou but has lived in Paris most of her brief life. A pupil of Serge Lifar she is so devoted to him that she refuses to accept any social invitations unless he accompanies her.

Though the Paris Opera Ballet, which was invited here to participate in New York City's jubilee celebration, has toured half the country—she has scarcely seen a thing—extra rehearsals having taken up all her time. Wednesday evening she wore her brown hair, so tightly coiffed on stage, loose around her shoulders, a strapless black satin gown, its bodice crossed with palest pink, a flick of a train snaking behind her silver kid slippers. And a tiny mauve orchid tucked into one silver kid ankle strap!

Lifar, one of the greatest contemporary choreographers, flew back to Paris yesterday. The ballet company, after a Baltimore performance, will rest three days in New York, sail on the De Grasse.

Balmain Wings to Paris

BALMAIN, the masculine, very Americanish French couturier who has been in town showing his newest collection, winged back to Paris yesterday. Practically No. 1 international commuter, he wafts between Paris, New York, Washington and points West several times a year. Recently, he claims to have been resting in, of all places, Hollywood, as guest of the Jack Warners.

Balmain, incidentally, has made an unusual business arrangement here in Washington. His collection, or part of it, will be at Garfinckels and customers can make their choice, have measurements taken and the actual dress will be made in Paris and shipped back in remarkably short order. It's not as expensive as one might imagine, a snappy number comes to a mere $350.

Korea's Charming Representative

DR. TYOUNG OK CHOUGH, special representative of Dr. Rhee, Korea's new President, is probably the only diplomat hereabouts elegant enough to carry a gold-headed cane just about 24 hours a day. He's off to Paris via Canada today, serving as general counsel to the Korean goodwill committee which has come from the Orient and Korea's famous Thirty-eighth Parallel en route to the United Nations session.

Dr. Chough, who is wonderfully convivial and socially minded, grew up in this country. He went to a Pennsylvania prep school, emerged some years later with a Ph.D. from Columbia. Back in 1925 he returned to Korea and was immediately clapped in jail by the Japs but after a while emerged and busied himself with such profitable activities as running a gold mining company and working as a topflight newspaperman. He has a charming wife, five children and makes an especial hit with the ladies. He's an intimate friend of President Rhee, that small, charming man who was in exile here for over 20 years and put up such a battle for what he hopes will be his country's freedom. On his return from Paris, Dr. Chough will settle down to being an ambassador and opening some kind of Korean mission.

Virginia Horse Show

OUT IN the Virginia hunting country the traditional horse show is again on the calendar for the second weekend in October. The 9th is the day set for this unique show. Starting 12 years ago as a neighborhood hunter show and costume pageant, it has grown into one of the most popular horse shows in Virginia.

The seated luncheon under a festively decorated marquee is an interesting feature. Silver platters of old hams, pipin' hot chicken and tetrazinni will be served from the buffet this year.

Some of those who are helping with the show are Mrs. V. B. Cushman, Mrs. Paul Llewellyn, Mrs. Hunter de Butts, Mrs. Robert H. Dulany Randolph, Mrs. Robert Fletcher and Mrs. Calvin Cumming.

On the Party Calendar

THE Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco was host at dinner last evening at the embassy having as ranking guests the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan.

Mrs. Day Tells Club Women

Democracy Must Begin On Neighborhood Level

By Genevieve Reynolds

"American people must lead the way in the practice of democracy, if democracy is to provide the answer to the vexing problem of human relations," declared Mrs. Gertrude Hart Day, executive director of the New Haven Neighborhood Project in New Haven, Conn., in an address yesterday at the opening session of the Twentieth Century Club held in the YWCA.

"Living in a country unravaged by war and knowing freedom in its largest sense, we must be willing to use our individual skills and resources to strengthen the character of our own community," she explained. "That means creating the spirit of democratic citizenship in the home, the school, the church, within civic organizations and wherever people come together."

Mrs. Day, originator of the New Haven Neighborhood project, said that the participants in the experiment of community living have a truly democratic spirit.

In the New Haven community of 162,000, a group of middle and upper middle-class people, representing the diverse races, creeds and cultures of their neighborhood are practicing the ideals of democracy and educating themselves through face-to-face contact, according to the speaker.

Children Take Part

"The learning experiences take place around a neighborhood nursery school, summer playground for 5 to 12 year olds and a variety of adult activities centering in the homes," she said.

Mrs. Day, whose forebears came to America eight generations ago, lived in a house built in 1775 by her own ancestors in a small New England village. There she lived amidst the symbols of early American life—the spinning wheel, butter churn and candle mold. Then her husband, a doctor, joined the Air Corps, and was ordered to Texas to train as a flight surgeon. So on December 6, 1942, the Days with their little girls, aged 3, 5 and 7, joined the thousands of World War II migrants on a trek across the country.

At the training center in Texas they first encountered the housing problem. Mrs. Day said that because of the children they could not obtain an apartment. "Finally we located a house 'off limits' for enlisted men, next to a beer joint and nearby a tremendous open-air market," she recalled. "There was no yard, only dirty, dangerous streets and no central heating. We paid $100 a month for the privilege of living there."

From that bitter experience she began to hate the landlord, the OPA official who didn't investigate the situation and all the people around her. Also she learned to value neighborliness whether the people came from the market place, the machine shop up the street or the saloon.

Smile Does Trick

"On Christmas morning the garbage collector broke the wall of hate I had built up," she told the audience. "A friendly smile and sharing the fact that he was a father did the trick.

"Out of sheer loneliness one day I picked up the wash and went out to hang it on the line at the same time Mrs. Zibitski was hanging out her laundry so I could speak to her," she continued. "In answer to my hello the woman replied, 'damn poor wash,' gathered up my clothes, took it to her own poorly equipped kitchen and did the clothes properly."

Later, Mrs. Day met other women like Mrs. Zibitski who could speak only broken English. Soon the women began to exchange recipes and admire each other's treasures, such as a ship model carved in Norway, a German Bible, wooden shoes from Holland and candlesticks from England.

Using her talent as a group worker and organizer Mrs. Day gathered together parents in the neighborhood to make a playground in an open lot. "I then persuaded the project manager to let us have an empty house on Sunday afternoons and soon over 50 children of all faiths and cultures were coming together to learn about God and one another," she related.

Pioneering Task

After Mrs. Day's husband was given overseas duty, June, 1944, she returned to her home. About six months after, following the same pattern in the hometown as she had before departure, she decided to pioneer in the community project. Thereupon, she sought out people with, like ideas in the schools, homes and churches.

"In the beginning there were 2 or 3, and then 10, and now many of us meeting in one another's homes, talking across the tea table, working together as people representative of the race, creed and culture differences in our community," described Mrs. Day. "Always we are building for the world tomorrow. "First there was a playground, then the Neighborhood Nursery School, next the Summer Play School for 5 to 12 year olds, and now a council of both men and women of sincere convictions to join the forces of our neighborhood for the good of all.

"I am convinced that brotherhood as a way of life must take place on the threshold of daily living," she concluded.

Mrs. Robert S. Townsend, club president, presided at the program meeting and the preceding business session.

Hadassah Has Discussion on Fund Raising

Representatives from the Seaboard Division of Hadassah agreed yesterday that most of their share of the six million dollar National goal should come from the annual donor party and from private donors.

They came to that conclusion at the fund-raising discussion which completed the two-day training institute for the Seaboard Division at the Jewish Community Center.

Mrs. Paul W. Aschner, chairman of Hadassah's National speakers bureau, who led the discussion, explained that the uses of the funds will be determined at the National convention on November 5-9 in Atlantic City, N. J.

A leadership meeting, also led by Mrs. Aschner preceeded the fund-raising sessions. She outlined basic requirements for a Hadassah president and gave tips for a good speaker or presiding officer. A leadership clinic followed at which each member gave a talk on some phase of the Hadassah projects and then was analyzed by Mrs. Aschner.

MRS. CLIFTON E. MACK, who will be in charge of demonstrators at Saturday's hooked rug show at the Wardman Park Hotel, completes a beautiful rug which is a copy of a museum piece in New England. The edge is a deep blue and the scroll design adjoining it is gray and maroon. The center is mixed flowers on a cream background. An old blanket, cut in ¼-inch strips and dyed in various shades at home, was used in making this rug. Mrs. Mack is the wife of the director of the Federal Bureau of Supply of the United States Treasury Department

Hooked Rugs in Old Patterns To Be on Exhibit Saturday

An exhibit of hooked rugs made by Washington women from treasured antique patterns and new designs will be held at the Wardman Park Hotel Saturday.

Demonstrations of this craft, popular a century ago and revived in recent years, will accompany the exhibit in the Madison Suite from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. The show is sponsored by Mrs. Phyllis H. Larsen.

Besides the locally made rugs, there will be three exceptionally fine ones from the studio of Pearl K. McGown in Massachusetts. One, in the Gainsborough pattern, is a large circular rug which was awarded first prize in design at the art exhibit held by the National League of American Pen Women in May, 1946. It was exhibited at the Smithsonian Institution at that time.

Old Patterns Used

Many of the rugs in Saturday's exhibit were made from designs by Mrs. McGown and by Louise H. Zeiser, nationally known rug designer. Others are taken from 100-year-old patterns found in New England. The secret of the beauty of rugs chosen for the exhibit is said to lie not only in the patterns but in the dyeing of the woolen materials, which produce shaded antique effects. A fine hooking technique is also important in giving the finished rug a velvety surface.

"Most of the rugs are made from old materials or scraps," says Mrs. Clifton E. Mack, who is in charge of hostess demonstrators for the showing. "I first became interested in rug making because I inherited a lovely rug made by my grandmother from my grandfather's Civil War uniform. One of my own rugs is made from an ancient blanket, cut into ¼-inch strips."

A technique worked out by Caroline Cleaves Saunders in New England was used in making most of the rugs in the exhibit. Strips of materials used are home-dyed, and every leaf and petal has at least five shades in it. This shading gives the rug a three-dimensional effect, an appearance of depth that makes the design stand out.

Mrs. Robert P. Jones is in charge of patterns for the Wardman Park showing, and Mrs. Lyle Jones will assist Mrs. Larsen at the door. Among the exhibitors is Mrs. Angier Goodwin, wife of Representative Goodwin of Massachusetts, who has made 17 rugs under Mrs. Saunders' direction in Massachusetts.

Styles in Hot Rolls

Most popular roll is the good old cloverleaf style. Pan rolls and Parkerhouse come second and third in popularity. Over on the sweeter side, it's cinnamon and pecan by a landslide. The new roll mixes do a good job on any of them.

Home Show Will Name 'Queen'

Grandmothers may vie with equal opportunity against their daughters and granddaughters in the contest to name a "queen" of their annual National Capital Home Show Exposition, scheduled at the National Guard Armory October 15-24.

Unique in "queen" contests, the competition sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington and Home Show Exposition exhibitors will select a winner on the basis of appearance, personality and achievement in some worthy endeavor.

The woman chosen as "queen" will be presented an all-aluminum cottage, with furniture, equipment and fixtures, valued at $3500.

The contest is open to any Washington area woman, regardless of age, marital status or pursuit. To enter, the candidate should submit a recent photograph along with a letter, including a description of herself and some interesting facts about the candidate and her interests. Anyone may nominate a candidate so long as the permission of the entrant is obtained. Entries should be mailed to the Home Show Queen Contest Committee, Investment Building, 15th and K sts. nw. Deadline is October 22.

Home Show Chairman A. Milton Talbert and Executive Director James W. Pearson have invited church, school, women's and civic groups to nominate outstanding members for the contest.

Dried Milk Usage

The use of dried milk is on the increase in this country, but not for fluid (or drinking) use. It is widely used in bread, baking, mix, some cheeses, sauces, and other foods now.

For the Youngsters' School Box

Scientists have reported that the protein of peanut butter and bread together are more nutritious than when either of these are eaten separately. For children's school lunch box sandwiches, combine peanut butter with chopped dried apples to make a good-tasting filling. Soak the apples 20 minutes before chopping.

Have Clothes Cleaned Before Storing

Have all the summer dresses and suits sent to the cleaner now. Don't let them hang like smelly ghosts in your clothes closet all winter long; get them cleaned and in their individual bags perfectly put away.

Newport's Way With Good Food

THE latest from Newport is a cook book, crammed with the jealously guarded recipes of the exclusive Rhode Island summer colony.

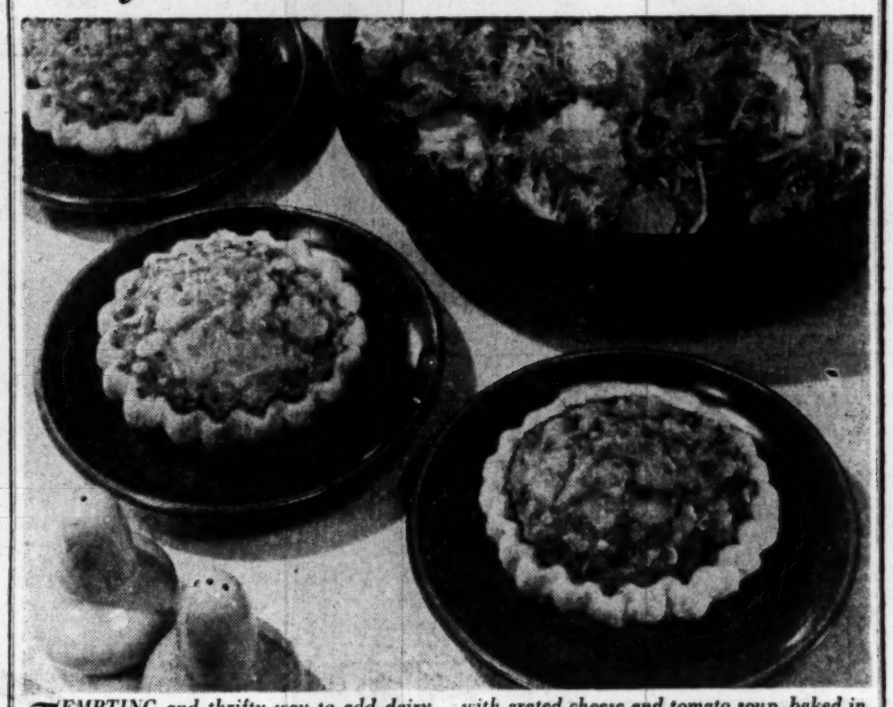
Called "Charting Your Courses," the book was compiled by the 20-30 group of St. George's Church of Newport. With a foreword by writer Mary Lasswell of Old Fort Farm, the recipes are reproduced in the handwriting of the persons who donated them, and each is signed.

If you wish to entertain in the Newport manner, you'll find recipes for many of its typical party dishes—lobster thermidor, crabmeat Newport, and shrimp supper loaf. Since Newport is famous for its shore dinners, there are also recipes for New England clam chowder, stewed lobster (a specialty of the Newport Clambake Club) and many other fish dishes.

Many of the recipes in the book have been private property until now, and were developed by Newporters with a special flair for cooking. Typical is the one for salamander pudding, donated by Anne Vanderbilt of the famous Vanderbilt clan.

Five Quarts Per Week Required

Study Shows Adults Need More Milk



TEMPTING and thrifty way to add dairy products—and needed calcium—to the diet is with main dishes such as these Cheese-Meat Pies. They combine ground chuck roast with grated cheese and tomato soup, baked in a flaky crust. The cost is about 22c for the average serving.

By Lucia Brown

Are you drinking 5 quarts of milk a week?

That's the amount needed—along with a varied diet—to provide an adult's calcium requirements, according to new findings by the National Research Council.

These findings, announced last week, mean a definite change in our ideas about diet. For years, most mothers have realized that calcium (found principally in dairy products) was vital in children's diets to build bones and teeth. Now comes the news that grown men and women should have more calcium than was previously thought necessary.

"When calcium is increased to a more generous level, the human body is able to put the added amount to use for long-range needs. That is, the added amount of this mineral is a good investment toward sturdy, healthy bones. It aids old people no less than young adults. In women of child-bearing age, it even extends its benefits to future generations."

PUTTING the new calcium recommendations in terms of daily food, Dr. Phipard says that the easiest way to plan regularly for calcium needs is to get plenty of milk and its products in the diet.

Ranking next as good sources of this mineral are dried beans and peas and certain of the leafy green vegetables such as turnip greens and kale, but the food economist says it is difficult to get enough calcium without milk.

You don't have to drink the whole 5 quarts a week, of course. You can get it in cooked dishes made with milk or through the use of other dairy products.

In meal planning, says Dr. Phipard, any of the following can do as alternates for 1 cup (½ pint) of fluid milk on the basis of calcium each contains:

1 ounce of Cheddar-type cheese
4 ounces of cream-type cheese
12 ounces of cottage cheese
2 to 3 large dips of ice cream

Non-fat milk solids (dry skim milk) or evaporated or condensed milk are as good sources of calcium as fresh fluid milk.

INDIVIDUAL CHEESE AND MEAT PIES
(Cost: About 22 cents a serving)

Pastry

2½ cups sifted flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
5 to 6 tablespoons cold water.

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening with two knives or pastry blender until pieces are about size of small peas. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon water over small portion of flour mixture, lightly pressing moistened particles together with fork. Put dough to side in mixing bowl. Repeat until all flour is moistened, being careful to add water each time to an undampened spot. Use only enough water to make particles stick together when gently pressed. Lightly form into ball. Wrap in waxed paper and chill ½ hour.

FILLING

½ cup finely chopped onion
2/3 cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound chuck roast, ground
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 10-oz. can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
3 cups cooked fine noodles
½ pound Chateau cheese, grated.

Line eight 3¼-inch pie pans with pastry. Cook onion and green pepper in butter until tender and lightly browned. Add ground meat, salt, and pepper, and mix well. Stir in tomato soup and noodles; blend well. Add cheese, saving ½ cup for top of pies. Fill pastry-lines pie pans with cheese-meat mixture. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon cheese on top of each pie. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 45 minutes. Serve hot in pie pans or let cool in pans 15 minutes and then lift out with aid of spatula.

BAKED EGGS IN HAM CUPS
(Cost: About 38 cents a serving)

4 firm tomatoes, about 2½-inch diameter
½ pound boiled ham, bologna, or tongue, cut in four 1/8-inch slices
4 eggs
Salt
Pepper
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon melted butter
4 slices bread, toasted
Cheese sauce

Remove thin slice from stem end of each tomato. Scoop out pulp and seeds; sprinkle inside with salt. Let stand upside down about 10 minutes. Line each of four 3-inch muffin cups with one slice of ham. Put a tomato into each ham cup. Drop one egg, being careful not to break yolk, into each tomato. Sprinkle eggs with salt and pepper. Combine bread crumbs and butter; sprinkle over tops of tomatoes. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) 25 minutes. Remove from pan and put each on a slice of toast on serving plate. Pour hot cheese sauce over them and garnish with chopped fresh parsley. This recipe makes four servings.

CHEESE SAUCE

Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
¼ pound Chateau cheese, diced
¼ teaspoon instant coffee
2 tablespoons flour

Mix instant coffee, flour, salt, pepper, and dry mustard. Melt butter in saucepan or top of double boiler. Remove from heat. Blend coffee-flour mixture and butter. Gradually add milk while stirring. Cook over low heat or boiling water until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until cheese is melted. This recipe makes about 1½ cups. Serve hot.

About Washing Woolen Garments

I would appreciate your suggestions on how to take the shrink out of fine woolen underwear. I laundered it with water too warm, causing the woolen exterior part of the garments to shrink greatly and causing the inner cotton layers to wrinkle or pucker, resulting in shorter, smaller and uncomfortable garments. P. J. C.

Washing woolen garments in too hot water reduces the elasticity of the yarn so that sometimes the size cannot be much increased. However, this treatment sometimes helps: Wash the garment in mild soap and luke warm water. Now, with the suds still in the fabric, gently pull and stretch it. Be sure not to pull vigorously and thus break the wool. When it has been stretched as far as possible, rinse and dry, pulling and stretching again several times during the drying process. If this entire treatment is repeated each time the garment is washed, with most of the stretching while the soap is in the garment, in time it should be returned to its original size.

I have a plywood cabinet that I would like to give a bleached limed oak finish. Could you tell me how I should do it? W. W.

To the bare, smoothly sanded wood, apply a coat of flat white paint and then wipe it off almost immediately. The idea is to fill the pores of the wood with the white. Allow the piece to dry thoroughly for a day or two and then sandpaper the surface until smooth. When thoroughly smooth, apply several thin coats of colorless wax, allowing each to dry and buffing well before applying the next.

I have always cleaned combs by soaking them in ammonia and water. Can hair brushes be safely cleaned the same way? I was wondering if the ammonia would harm the bristles. The combs have never shown any ill effects. J. E.

It is not wise to soak a brush at any time for this will soften the bristles and might even loosen them. The best way to clean a hair brush is to wash it in luke warm water and a mild soap, rinse well and shake off excess moisture. Lay with bristles up to dry away from heat or hot sunshine.

I have received a beautiful white pure silk blouse from China. It is so lovely, and I want to know the best way to wash it. It is all hand embroidered. A. S.

Use only lukewarm water and mild soap to wash your blouse. Gently squeeze the suds through the fabric and rinse several times to remove every trace of the soap. Do not wring, but squeeze the moisture from the blouse. When clean and thoroughly rinsed, roll in a white bath towel and gently squeeze the roll to remove additional moisture. Hang on a padded hanger to dry. (Do not use either a wire or varnished wood hanger unless it is thoroughly padded to avoid stains.) Allow to dry thoroughly, then sprinkle lightly. Silk must not be too damp when ironed or it might become stiff. When sprinkled, roll again in a towel until moisture is evenly distributed. Iron first on the wrong side with an iron which is not hot, and then touch up hems and seams on the right side.

Mary Haworth's Mail

slapped my face and called me vile names, and then he, too, left the house (which belongs to his mother) and ordered me to leave the following day.

I came to mother's, bag and baggage, and my family are all wonderful to me, but I am utterly miserable here, after having had a home of my own, and while I have a fairly good job and some money saved, I don't feel I can afford to live alone.

Thus I am ready to return to Grant and try a little harder to keep peace, if he should apologize and ask me back, and my friends seem to think he will; but would I be an utter fool? Do I need to see a psychiatrist or does he? He has always said he loved us, was always sorry after losing his temper (usually over nothing) and very nice until the next time. Please advise. C. B.

Convivial Episode Seems a Bit "Fast"

DEAR C. B.: In so-called sophisticate circles of society, and again in the underdog dregs, it may be accepted convivial custom for a happy young wife and mother to take two "family men," friends of childhood, in tow and go calling on a married sister, but in the great middle class such blithe disregard of legal demarkations in human relations is looked on askance, and the very men in the middle class who would trump up such a reunion or lend themselves to it would regard the obliging sisters as "fast." Surely you know that.

In your long letter, here much condensed, you mention that since the open rift, just a week old, friends are teasingly talking of finding you new boy friends, the last thing you want in the circumstances, you say. Here again is implication that you are rated pretty lightly on the score of prudence, decorum and conjugal stability, and perhaps this consensus view, also Grant's jealousy, is cued to a somewhat unmarried attitude toward the opposite sex.

Which is not to say that you misbehave, technically, but that you may have the air and the interests of a coquette, and in dealing with Grant may foolishly tend to defend your supposed "rights" to "be yourself" in this respect, with the result that you forfeit his trust, offend his pride (in figuratively playing him second to other men), and also garner a cynical public estimate of your character. And perhaps the same may be true of Nan, thus sparking Grant's distrust of her influence on you.

Take the Initiative in Repairing Breach

IN ANY EVENT, it is my feeling that you're not altogether an innocently injured, falsely accused victim of Grant's imagination. I rather think you've been contributing at least 50-50 to marital discord, and that you know it, else life with Grant wouldn't look so appealing in retrospect, now that you're out on a limb and debating your next move.

For advice: If you yearn to go back for a conscientious try at keeping the peace, don't wait for Grant to come on his knees, for you might wait in vain. Bestir yourself to get in touch with him, and if he seems unfriendly or outraged still, use your powers of persuasion, patiently and humbly, to negotiate another chance to work for harmony. And this time be resolved that reform shall begin in you. M. H.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Is This Before Tuesday or Is It After?

Some minor street repairs on I st. nw., between 6th and 7th, have set off a chain of events well worth recording.

About 10 days ago, some workmen dug a shallow hole in the street. It was only about 18 inches wide and 36 inches long. But the street is narrow, and traffic was impeded.

For days, I wondered when the police would prohibit parking for a stretch of 50 feet or so, to expedite the flow of traffic. But nothing happened.

Then, one day, the police swung into action. They closed off the entire block.

But it was so obvious that this was the wrong solution that the blockade was lifted the next day and traffic went back to a crawl.

Then a half-dozen tired signs were posted. The one at the far end of the block said "Emergency No Parking After 8 A. M. Tuesday."

But the remaining signs merely said "Emergency No Parking After," Nothing more.

Unable to understand such instructions, motorists ignored them, and lined the entire block with parked cars. The police retaliated by ignoring the motorists.

Of course the way to avert such a comedy of errors is to post signs which simply say "No Parking" whenever and wherever road work requires, and then take the signs down when the emergency is over.

The workmen have gone away now, and yesterday the "Emergency No Parking After" signs were taken down. Nothing is left to remind us of the incident except an unpaved hole in the street which, according to past performances, will stay unpaved for quite some time.

VITAMIN B IS CHEAPER BUT NOT AS MUCH FUN

When Mrs. Johnny Sain learned that her husband was scheduled to pitch the opening game of the World Series, she got so jittery she had to rush out and buy some new clothes to quiet her nerves.

Judging by the crowds in our local department stores, every female in Washington is nervous.

PERSONAL NOTES

Carl Van Horn, Admiral Club: The city desk thanks you for restoring the 630 years it had somehow misplaced. The Hebrew calendar is now starting its 5709th year, as you pointed out, and not its 5079th.

PILLOW SNIP SLIP WON'T LAND YOU IN JAIL

Like most women (and men), Mrs. E. A. Arneson of 4110 Fairfax st., Landover Hills, Md., is curious.

She's often seen those tags and labels which come attached to pillows and cushions and such, and wondered why they usually say:

"DO NOT REMOVE THIS TAG UNDER PENALTY OF LAW."

She confesses that she's often been tempted to take her scissors and snip them off; but then she'd think of spending long, dreary years behind bars—and the tags would remain in place.

Seriously, she wondered "why?" And when a District Liner gets curious, I get an item.

It turns out that practically every one of the 48 States and the District has laws requiring that "the manufacturer of any bag, filled with (insert here a long list of materials) and used for sleeping or reclining purposes" must attach to the outside a true statement of what is on the inside.

By law, this tag must not be removed by the manufacturer or the dealer. The person who buys such items for his own use, however, can do as he pleases about the tags.

Incidentally, my research also turned up the fact that the District of Columbia was one of the pioneers in this type of health regulation, and that our rules were formulated back in 1926, when Congress passed legislation authorizing them. For once, we don't have to take a back seat.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Black and white female kitten, 6 weeks old." (Decatur 7539.)

"Cute, healthy female kitten, 8 weeks old." (Woodley 0242.)

"Lovely, beautifully marked tomcat." (Warfield 1964.)

OVERHEARD

She: The Braves certainly were lucky to win on two hits, weren't they?

He: That's the way they play the game in the National League. When the batter works the count to three-and-nothing they think they have a rally started.

THE FUTILITY OF IT ALL

Margaret Miller of 2115 P st. nw. reports that a picketing skywriter recently tried to put his message before the public with three simple words.

First he spelled out "DON'T" and then he laboriously wrote out "FLY."

But by the time he named the airline, by adding "NAL," the wind had obliterated the "DON'T."

Margaret reports that the skywriter must have sensed that Fate was against him, "for he flew off in a dudgeon that was at least several thousand feet high, and hasn't been seen since."

A GOOD ITEM WITH WHICH TO UP FINISH

Mrs. Morris Benson of 5020 2d st. nw, tops my item about "mispell" with an incident that took place some time ago in a large Government office.

The chief of the Correspondence Review Section got a chuckle from his underlings by putting out a memo which said:

"I find that in a great deal of correspondence sentences are being ended with prepositions. This is indeed a serious error, and it is something up with which I shall not put."

Leonard Lyons . . .

DESPITE the fact that Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers is in jail, his knowledge of procurement matters is being made available to the Air Forces . . . George Jean Nathan, the drama critic, has been getting a medical checkup every week in the past few months. His doctor reports that after at last seeing a good play, Nathan's blood pressure went all the way up to 104 . . . Former Attorney General Francis Biddle's book, "The World's Best Hope," will be published in January.

Joe DiMaggio listened to the Red Sox-Cleveland game Monday in Toots Shor's, in the company of Tommy Laird, the San Francisco sportswriter. They've been friends since DiMaggio first became interested in baseball in his native San Francisco. . . . On the day Joe DiMaggio, jr., was born, the baseball star first telephoned his parents, and then telephoned Laird to tell him "It's a boy." . . . Laird, the native booster, told him, "Yeah? why wasn't he born here? If anybody's born in New York, who cares? But if such a boy is born in San Francisco—that would be an event."

Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall will do a Mr. and Mrs. program, in their campaign spiel for President Truman over ABC tonight . . . Sean O'Casey has recovered from his eye operation and returned to work on the final chapters of his autobiography . . . O'Casey, incidentally, has refused to give his new plays to the Abbey Theater because of his disagreement with the management and production staff . . . The campaign film of Tom Dewey, made by the March of Time and paid for by the Republican National Committee, will be exhibited in theater chains as paid advertising . . . The Henry Wallace campaign film is almost ready. Carl Marzani, the former OSS officer now out on appeal from his conviction, is helping make it.

Harold Makin of the American Veterans Committee has retained counsel to sue the Daily Worker over their reports of his dispute with Editor John Gates. Makin's lawyer is checking first to see if the Worker has any assets—because this is one case in which he doesn't want to wind up owning the paper . . . Ray Schindler, the detective, and Artist Russell Patterson will introduce beach shirts with dinner jackets in a tour of the swank cafes Saturday night.

Douglas Careful of Others' Cash

By Drew Pearson

Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court is a Scotsman. One look at his frank face and sandy hair leaves no doubt of that. Like most Scotsmen he counts his pennies, and also is careful of other people's pennies.

Douglas

The other day the Brandeis Lawyers Society of Philadelphia invited Justice Douglas to speak at their fall meeting and afterward sent him a check for $100 to cover travel expenses.

The Justice returned the check, and sent instead a statement of his actual expenses. He had itemized them down to the last penny—trainfare, tips, taxi, meals. The total was $13.75.

Apologies to Thomas

This column must apologize again for having been unfair to Congressman Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee. Once again his ability to use up the taxpayers petty cash has been underestimated.

Instead of getting salary kickbacks from four of his clerks, cleaning women and stenographers and receiving "contributions" from the families of two soldiers he kept out of combat, it appears that Congressman Thomas had some other "monetary activities."

It now develops that back in 1940 Congressman Thomas devised the idea of having his secretaries contribute part of their salaries to a pool to be used for his reelection campaign. The amount was not great—$12.50 a month from Helen Campbell, his first secretary, and $7.50 from Miss Mildred Kraemer. But these ladies' salaries were paid by the Government, not Thomas, and it is against the law to deduct any part of such salaries. Here are some of Parnell's other little financial short cuts:

..Special airplane travel—When the United States Army refused to send an airplane to Panama so the Congressman's son, Parnell, jr., could visit his father, the Un-American Activities Committee paid for special passage for Parnell, jr.

Un-Americanism Allendale

Free telephone—Thomas has a special telephone direct from his committee office in Washington to his home in Allendale, N. J., paid for by the taxpayers. His private number is Allendale 1-3313—in case you want to call him. There isn't very much un-Americanism to be investigated in Allendale, but Thomas keeps the phone on the pretext that it's committee business.

Before Thomas became Chairman and when the Democrats ran the Un-American Activities Committee, Thomas had to get Democratic Chairman John S. Wood of Georgia to OK all his phone bills. One of the last bills Wood OK'd was a voucher for $39.60 for "telephone calls on official committee business." But of the 22 calls listed, 21 were to Thomas' home or to other parts of New Jersey. The bill listed Thomas himself as calling in 14 cases.

Blank expense vouchers—Unlike Supreme Court Justice Douglas, Thomas' committee does not relish carefully itemized expense accounts. Blank vouchers are encouraged.

On July 6, 1948, Representative Thomas wrote Frederick R. Stevens of 106 College ave., Ithaca, N. Y., enclosing a voucher for $72.06 to cover expenses incurred by Stevens on a trip to Washington. For some reason he also enclosed a blank voucher for Stevens to sign.

"Will you kindly sign the enclosed voucher, also the blank voucher and return at your earliest convenience?" Thomas wrote.

Why Thomas wanted the blank voucher with Stevens' name signed at the bottom he did not explain.

Hard to Spend Dough

Committee clerks for political business—The Un-American Activities Committee has one of the most generous appropriations in Congress. During 1947-48 it was voted the huge fund of $300,000. But by June 30 of this year the committee still had a balance of $158,664.86.

Last summer he kept the committee clerks busy sending out 45,000 copies of a speech he had made reviewing the committee's 10-year record. Six to a dozen girls were hired at various times during the summer to address envelopes to the voters in Thomas' district.

Then there is Mrs. Jo Benisch, who is paid $3000 a year by the Un-American Activities Committee but has been working in Thomas' own personal office copying lists of voters in his district.

"Conference room"—Finally, to help the committee spend its money, Thomas submitted one voucher for rooms, tips, radio, etc., at the swank Mayflower Hotel here for $300. The rooms he listed at the rate of $20 a day and noted on the voucher that one was used as a conference room for witnesses.

The suite consisted of a parlor and two bedrooms, and Thomas never did explain why he needed the two bedrooms.

Really friends

I like the steady person who . . . Is always there to serve . . . No matter how much happiness . . . Or sorrow I deserve. . . The one I can depend upon . . . To do the greatest task . . . Or who will even undertake . . . The smallest thing I ask . . . For that is what will always prove . . . A person's final worth . . . It matters not how strong we are . . . Or powerful our name . . . Because when friendship deals the hand . . . The cards are all the same . . . We live together in this world . . . And we should try to be . . . An equal and unselfish part . . . Of all humanity.

AT THE HECHT CO. WASHINGTON AND SILVER SPRING

the lady's choice, in Monarch's fitted-for-a-queen coats with the little touch of fur!

Back when ladies swooned at the wink of an eye—and the genteel ways of the "little fur-trimmed coat" were the order of the day—broadcloth was practically a synonym for the finest of wool fabric! So it is again! So too does Monarch revive that gently-curved silhouette. Have your "lady-like" coat in the newest Fall shades, touched with Beaver, Leopard, dyed Persian Lamb, Ermine. Misses' sizes.
